Lincoln and Kingensetsu.
Henry Ford's News.
To Conquer Turtle Germs.
Mussolini Kneels.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 13.

America celebrated yesterday the birthday of Lincoln and wonders what he would think of our troubles, as compared with his own. Japan on Thursday celebrated Kingensetsu, which is her Fourth of July, but much more ancient than our fire cracker day. Kingensetsu is sacred to the memory of Jimmu Tenno, descendant of the sun goddess who founded Japan and started the present line of Mikados in the year 660 Before Christ, twenty-five hundred and ninety-two years ago.

Because Japan has a war, Kingensetsu was celebrated vigorously. One hundred thousand persons, mainly school children, paraded in Tokio, with bands. Japan believes in impressing the next generation with the enthusiasms of this. All the marchers bowed their heads as they passed before the imperial palace. Japan is a nation of solidarity, its sporadic radicalism not even skin deep.

WHILE CELEBRATING Kingensetsu, Japan announced a heavier drive against the Shanghai forts. Chinese resistance annoys Japan. Bigger bombs, heavier cannon, more planes are sent. Some bombs dropped on American "territory." Half a dozen Chinese were killed. Hundreds would have been killed had the bomb fallen a little later. Our Marines were there but not hurt, and Japan apologized. The pilot had dropped his plane too soon.

HENRY FORD'S plans are announced, semi-officially. He will produce an eight-cylinder Ford at moderate price and continue making his four cylinder Model A cars, probably at lower prices than hitherto.

The eight and four-cylinder engines will be interchangeable. You may put an eight-cylinder engine in your four-cylinder Ford for a long tour, or a four-cylinder engine in your larger eight-cylinder for gas economy at home.

DURING THE RECENT aviation exposition in Detroit, Mr. Ford told this writer that he was working on an eight-cylinder engine. As a matter of fact he had made such engines, showed one to this writer many years ago, and has been developing them ever since. The automobile atmosphere is now cleared, with uncertainty removed, except as to new Ford prices.

HERE IS NEWS important to doctors and their patients, especially the old that so often die of pneumonia. Dr. O. T. Avery, engaged in research at the Rockefeller Institute, has discovered a method of piercing the protective armor of the pneumococcus, a germ producing pneumonia.

That germ and some others, like the streptococcus mucosus, so deadly in the blood stream, are protected against the attacks of the phagocytes, your white blood cells that kill ordinary germs, as the turtle, armadillo or porcupine is protected against the bite of a dog.

IF DR. AVERY'S discovery saves you, or a relative, be grateful to the John D. Rockefellers, father and son. Their constructive philanthropy, and money generously given, make the Rockefeller Institute possible.

INTENSELY INTERESTING are details of Mussolini's visit to the Pope. No third person was present at the meeting, but this much is known, the Pope received the Italian premier with unusual honors, as dictator and as premier.

The papal guard of honor was more numerous than usual and picturesque in their uniforms designed by Michelangelo with striped legs of different colors. Mussolini drove to the papal frontier through rows of Italian soldiers and cheering men and women.

POPE PIUS received Mussolini benevolently, the latter kneeling and kissing the Pope's hand and the ring of St. Peter. The interview lasted a full hour, which is unusual.

When it ended, Mussolini, further to emphasize his respect for the Pope's spiritual power, entered St. Peter's Cathedral and kneeling, prayed at two altars, one, the altar built above the tomb of the martyred St. Peter, crucified head downward by his own choice because he was unworthy to be crucified as was the Saviour.

If you go to Cologne, see the magnificent picture of that crucified one, given by Rubens to the little church opposite the house his parents lived in.

IMPORTANT NEWS for the West Coast, is the overwhelming vote by which the Imperial Valley irrigation district showed its courage in assuming an indebtedness of more than thirty million dollars to provide construction of an all-American canal for waters from the Colorado River impounded by the Hoover dam, at Boulder Canyon.

Imperial Valley, now getting Colorado River water precariously, from a canal that runs through Mexico, will be hereafter independent and follows the example of Los Angeles and twelve surrounding cities. They appropriated two hundred and twenty million dollars for Hoover dam development, fifty-five millions more than the national government will spend, for the dam, power plant, and all.

FRANK PORTO, 3 . . . SMOKE ROUSED HIM, CALLED "DADDY"

Frank, carried from his burning home in Coraopolis today by his father, Dominick, 30, after he had aroused his family. His ill mother, Mrs. Mary Porto, 26, carried out two children, one sick, while father saved three. Fire destroyed the two-story house.

BUS CRASHES, WOMAN HURT

One woman was injured and taken to a hospital and the driver slightly bruised when a city-bound monitor coach of the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company crashed into the hillside, on the Boulevard of the Allies, east of Liberty Bridge this morning. Twenty passengers were shaken up and traffic was tied up for 15 minutes.

Miss Sarah Fingold, 26, of 6393 Morrowfield avenue, suffered bruises and shock when thrown against a seat. She was taken to Mercy Hospital.

H. R. Turner, 1323 Chelsea street, Wilkinsburg, driver, was injured about the chest when, he said, the steering gear locked and swerved the car against the hillside.

The front of the bus was crushed. The bus swung out, blocking heavy early traffic.

Volpe, Girl Forfeit $100, Fail to Appear

John Volpe, 35, ex-Wilmerding political boss, and Ruth Alvons, 21, of 1215 Ridge street, Wilmerding, contributed $100 to the city coffers today when they did not appear for a hearing in Oakland Police Station. That amount had been posted to guarantee their presence.

The two were arrested in Volpe's roadster in "Honeymoon Circle," Schenley Park, early yesterday when Volpe's replies to interrogations didn't please police. Magistrate William McNamara declared the bail forfeited when neither showed up today.

Killed in 'Chute Device Exhibition

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Making "just one more jump" to demonstrate the practicability of his parachute pistol release arrangement, Rollie M. Lane leaped from the roof of a 13-story building. The 'chute opened only partly. He was killed.

PARENTS SAVE FIVE FROM FIRE

Roused by cries of her 3-year-old son, Frank, Mrs. Mary Porto, 26, left her sick bed and carried two of her five children from her burning home at 512 Hiland avenue, Coraopolis, early today.

Mrs. Porto, ill for two weeks, from her bedroom on the second floor heard the child calling "Daddy" at the foot of the stairs. She awakened her husband, Dominick, 30. The mother carried out, Louis, 6, and Elvira, 5, ill with influenza, while the father rescued Frank, Lucy, 8, and Joseph 9.

The two-story frame building was virtually destroyed, with $7,000 loss. The fire is believed to have started from an overheated furnace.

The children were mourning the loss of Jackie, a pup, thought to have perished in the flames, when the dog was found in a neighbor's chicken coop.

Argentine War Veteran Dies at 113

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Argentina's oldest war veteran, Julian Cuenca, died yesterday at San Roque, at the age of 113. He fought against Paraguay in 1865.

STEEL LEADS BIG RALLY IN STOCKS

Share Prices Sweep Upward In Heavy Trading as Result of Credit Plan

BULLETIN.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—U. S. Steel closed today at 49.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Buying reminiscent of a bull market in full bloom swept into the New York Stock Exchange today, boosting share quotations $1 to $10.

Speculative enthusiasm stimulated by the Glass-Steagall bill appeared to have gained great momentum over the Lincoln's Birthday holiday and this morning's opening was the liveliest in months. Sales in the first half hour, when the ticker was running behind transactions on the floor, approximated 700,000 shares, a larger volume than was done during the same interval on Thursday.

Blocks of 1,000 to 6,000 shares appeared while the rush was at its height. Moderate reactions came when traders accepted their substantial profits, but the market was in a decidedly bullish mood and quickly absorbed the slack provided by these setbacks.

United States Steel common raced up more than $4 to a price above $48. American Telephone, which did not open until the session was a quarter of an hour old, climbed more than $5, crossing $123. Western Union had a similar gain. American Can jumped $3 to $65.50, while Union Pacific railroad sold $6 higher at $82.50. Santa Fe's gain was $4 and there were advances nearly as large for Consolidated Gas, du Pont, Allied Chemical and Columbian Carbon.

Commodities also forged ahead. Cotton opened with gains of 65 to 80 cents a bale, while wheat was ½ to one cent higher.

J. O. Horning, Mesta Vice President, Dies

J. O. Horning, of 5551 Aylesboro avenue, vice president and treasurer of the Mesta Machine Company, West Homestead, died early today in Rochester, Minn., following a serious operations, according to word received here.

Mr. Horning has been connected with the operation of the Mesta Machine Company here for the past 41 years, and was a lifelong resident of the Pittsburgh district. His wife was with him in Minnesota when he died. His body will be brought back to Pittsburgh late tonight, officials of the company said.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Secretary Hurley today walked out of a Senate committee hearing on Philippine independence asserting he would not "remain here to be called a liar."

In Theater Once, Saw Lincoln Shot

BRIDGETON, N. J., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—John Lindsey, 91, has been inside of a theater only once. The theater was Ford's in Washington. The date was April 14, 1865. He saw Abraham Lincoln shot.

Striking Pilots Picket Company From Air

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—(INS.)—Aerial picketing today was the latest development in the dispute between the Century Air Lines and 21 "locked out" pilots.

An aerial "sandwich board" flew over Chicago after taxiing back and forth on the runway at the airport where the Century planes arrive and depart.

Piloted by Michael Caffarelo, the picket plane on its fuselage bore the painted words: "Century is Unfair to Pilots."

Explaining this novel method of picketing, David Behncke, president of the Air Line Pilots' Association, said:

"We don't believe in violence, but we want our message carried before the public and we have chosen our own modern way of doing it."

The 21 fliers were discharged by Century Air Lines after they had threatened to strike against a new wage scale calling for an approximate 40 per cent reduction.

TEACHER IN COURT

MISS JOSEPHINE GEUSEN . . . TAKING OATH IN POLICE COURT

Miss Geusen, 27, 3889 Bigelow boulevard, part-time Monaca school teacher, who told Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd she is the 10-month bride of Pitt's Assistant Prof. Raymond F. Blackburn, pictured in Central Police Court. She was fined $25 for shoplifting.

TEACHER FINED IN THEFT CASE

A school teacher from Monaca who told police she married a Pitt professor 10 months ago, was fined $25 in Central Police Court today on a suspicious person charge in connection with shoplifting in downtown stores.

She gave her name as Josephine Geusen, 27, of 3889 Bigelow boulevard, and Detective Inspector Frank R. Boyd said she told him her husband is Raymond F. Blackburn, assistant professor of statistics in the school of business administration at the University of Pittsburgh.

Detectives of two department stores testified the woman admitted thefts of three dresses and a hat after her arrest.

They asked Magistrate Rothenberg to be lenient, after hearing her attorney testify she had just recovered from a nervous breakdown. After the $25 fine had been imposed, the woman said:

"I must have been crazy. I don't know why I took the dresses."

Prof. Blackburn was not at the hearing.

Dancer Who Wed Sportsman Sued

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Margaret Hawksworth, internationally known dancer, is charged with alienating the affections of James E. Bell, sportsman, whom she married in January, 1930, in a $250,000 suit by Mrs. Lilla Harris Bell, it became known today.

Mrs. Lilla Harris Bell, who claims to be Bell's common-law wife by virtue of having lived with him for 15 years, specifically charges the former Miss Hawksworth with alienating Bell's affections by purchasing a string of polo ponies for him.

ELECTION CASE GIVEN JURY

The First Ward vote conspiracy case involving Constable Paul Walsh, son of Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh; Samuel Ramsey, a former clerk in the office of the Board of Revision and Assessment of Taxes, and Saul Klein, battalion fire chief, was given to the jury shortly before noon today.

Completing the presentation of its evidence in rebuttal to the charge of the state that the defendants had conspired in the September primary, the defense made it closing arguments yesterday. This followed the action of Judge Davis W. Henderson, of Fayette County, in issuing a ruling directing a verdict of acquittal for George J. Schad, former chairman of the board. C. J. McBride, former secretary to the board, was similarly acquitted Thursday.

Attorney Charles Prichard, counsel for Walsh, opened the pleas to the jury and attacked the veracity of the state's "star" witness, Frank Alpert, who pleaded no defense to the indictment when the trial opened. He was followed by Attorney William Hunter, counsel for Ramsey. The closing argument for the defense was made by Attorney Benjamin Lencher, representing the third defendant, Klein.

'Ma' Sunday Speeds To Sick Husband

Mrs. William A. Sunday was speeding toward Pittsburgh from Los Angeles today to join her husband, Billy Sunday, evangelist, who is preaching against physicians orders.

The 70-year-old exhorter today said he was "feeling fine" after preaching last night in the First United Presbyterian Church, North Side. His meetings here end tomorrow night. Two doctors had ordered him to rest after an attack of laryngitis.

"Ma" Sunday will arrive at 9 p. m. tomorrow.

Fruit Crate 'Forts' Built In Beechview Price War

While opposing generals in Beechview's price war today were erecting "spite fences" of fruit crates, residents of the district were awaiting the next move in the argument which for the last two weeks has sent grocery and meat prices to new lows.

The crate fences were being erected between the warring stores. Early quotations today indicated that the "war" would be continued with all the gusto which has marked it to date. Pork loin was selling at 6 cents per pound, round steak and sirloin at 13 cents, and rib roast at 15 cents.

The prices were expected to drop during the day, as the competition waxed stronger.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 13.—The decisive battle of Woosung began tonight.

Preceded by a heavy bombardment and a thick smoke screen laid down by warships lying near the confluence of the Yangtze and Whangpoo rivers, the Japanese threw 1,000 men across Woosung Creek, where they have been held up for several days by Chinese machine-gun fire. They crossed on cork pontoons.

The crossing of the creek was admitted in a communique issued by the Chinese 19th Army at 7:10 tonight (6:10 a. m., eastern standard time). The communique said the Chinese were putting up a stiff resistance and attempting to drive the invaders into the creek.

BOMBARDMENT RENEWED

Japanese naval headquarters issued no communique but confirmed that Japanese troops "occupied positions west of the old Japanese lines while field guns and naval pieces continued the bombardment of Woosung village and the Chinese positions."

While the Japanese bombardment approached a crescendo tonight two more brigades of Japanese infantry, about 10,000 men, were landed.

The cruiser Tokiwa steamed up the Whangpoo toward the Yangtze carrying light buoys, indicating that night operations were to be carried on somewhere near the mouth of the Yangtze as the Woosung attack proceeded.

Meanwhile, fighting was resumed at daybreak in the Chapei

BOTH SIDES SUFFER BIG LOSSES

Nipponese Soldiers Blast, Bayonet Way Forward; Dead Strew Battle Front

By FLOYD GIBBONS

(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service.)

SHANGHAI, Feb. 13.—(10:49 p. m.)—Hello, everybody!

Excuse me for busting in sudden like, but here's the latest as fast as I can pass it on to you.

By golly, they did it—

Who? The Japs, of course.

One thousand of them got across Woosung Creek late this afternoon. Right this minute they're bayonetting and blasting their way northward through the smoking ruins of Woosung Village.

Both sides of that creek for a half mile inland from the river are shambles.

DEAD STREW FIELD

Chinese and Japanese dead and dying are lying about in groups, mowed down by each other's machine guns.

Chinese in blue-gray and Japanese khaki-clad bodies are floating down Woosung Creek into the Whangpoo River.

The conflict continues with the Japanese pushing northward in a desperate effort to clean up the village and overcome the stubborn Chinese resistance.

The Japanese employed a smoke screen for the first time in their 130 days of hostilities with the Chinese from Manchuria to Shanghai.

Taking advantage of an inshore breeze, Japanese destroyers in the Whangpoo steamed up and down the river past the shore defenses and the mouth of Woosung Creek, their funnels belching thick black columns of choking smoke which flattened out horizontally under a heavy mist and light snow and rolled and writhed inland, covering the village in a cloak of darkness.

Japanese on the south side of the creek also used gas projectors to hurl smoke bombs to the opposite shore, while low-flying seaplanes and land planes dropped containers of chemical smoke together with high explosive and incendiary bombs.

While the Chinese defenders choked and groped about the creekside and in their riverside trenches and dug-outs, Japanese field guns in augmented numbers let down the heaviest bombardment yet seen in this sector.

And at the same time naval guns from destroyers and cruisers in the Whangpoo raked the village with shrapnel.

G. O. P. OPENS CAMPAIGN, LAUDS HOOVER ON LINCOLN DAY

PEOPLE SHOW PATIENCE, SAYS PRESIDENT

Executive 'Most Maligned' Since Emancipator, View of Senate Leader Watson

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Out of the flood of orators that swept the country last night at scores of Lincoln dinners, it was possible today to discern something of the campaign chord which the Republicans will strike in the forthcoming presidential contest.

What the Jackson Day dinners are to the Democrats, the Lincoln dinners are to Republicans. In each instance the occasion marks the beginning of the party campaign. The Democrats launched theirs a month ago with a series of savage assaults on the Hoover record. Last night it was the Republicans turn and they replied from dozens of platforms that they are going into the campaign to defend that record.

HOOVER SPEAKS

President Hoover himself struck the Lincoln motif in a brief address from Lincoln's old study in the White House which went out over a national radio hook-up although he did not of course mention politics. He said:

"While we are in the midst of the difficulties of this day we may well entertain the feeling that history will record this period as one of the most difficult in its strains and stresses upon the timbers of the Republic that has been experienced since Lincoln's time.

"I am confident of the resources, the power and the courage of our people to triumph over any national difficulty. They are rallying to their responsibilities . . . They are showing the patience and the steadfastness of Abraham Lincoln."

Other speakers sounded a frankly political note.

Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, speaking in Washington warned that "we are facing another election of 1864." He said:

"People then talked and talked, and then began to think and think, and voted that Abraham Lincoln should stay in office, just as they will do for Herbert Hoover."

Senator Watson, of Indiana, Republican leader of the Senate, asked the same audience:

"What President, save alone the sainted Lincoln, was ever more maligned and misrepresented than the one who has just addressed us? No President's name appears who has labored more earnestly to lift the nation out of the slough of despond into which it had been plunged by sheer force of conditions than Herbert Hoover."

MRS. GANN SEES VICTORY

A feminine note was struck by Mrs. Dolly Gann, sister of Vice President Curtis. Addressing the National Capital Republican Club, she said:

"It is entirely fitting that on this day we should open the campaign which is sure to end in victory for the Republican party under the leadership of President Hoover."

At Charleston, W. Va., after accusing the Democrats of inaugurating a "Smear Hoover" campaign, Ex-Congressman McLafferty, of California, asked the Democrats to "remember that it was a Republican President (Lincoln) who saved this Union, and for a second time it is a Republican President, Herbert Hoover, under the hand of Almighty God, that is saving the Union again."

Charges Reduced In G. O. P. Fund Trial

GREENSBORO, N. C., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Judge Johnson J. Hayes yesterday directed the jury in Federal District Court to return a verdict of not guilty on 22 of the 57 counts in the bill of indictment under which W. H. Foster, secretary of the Republican state executive committee, is being tried for illegal solicitation of campaign funds.

The order reduced the counts to 26, nine having been dismissed earlier.

PA. ORGANIZES FOR ROOSEVELT

HARRISBURG, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Two hundred Democrats from 25 Central Pennsylvania counties, meeting here yesterday, formed a Pennsylvania Roosevelt-for-President League.

The group threw down the gauntlet to state committee officers, challenging them on their attitude for an uninstructed delegation to the Democratic National Convention.

A resolution was adopted unanimously calling upon the 16 candidates approved by the state committee for election as delegates-at-large and 16 candidates for alternate delegates-at-large to state definitely whether they will agree to vote at the convention for the candidate receiving the highest number of votes in the Pennsylvania primary election next April 26.

Warren Van Dyke, of Harrisburg, who resigned as publicity director of the Democratic State Committee, was elected chairman of the Roosevelt organization, and Edward B. Zimmerman, Philadelphia, who also resigned as secretary of the state committee, was elected treasurer.

German Price Cut Beer Strike Spreads

BERLIN, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The beer strike called in protest against a price-cutting decree by Carl Goerdeler, the nation's price czar, is spreading.

In Hamburg, the first city to go on strike, it was reported that 3,000 of the 4,000 saloons were refusing to sell beer. Similar steps were taken by saloons at Kiel.

Liquor Case Juror Dropped for Talking

Woman, 98, Feted At Brownsville

BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Feb. 13.—Felicitations were showered on Mrs. Jane E. Swan here yesterday on the occasion of her ninety-ninth birthday.

Mellon, Taking Oath, Calls Ceremony 'Divorce'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Andrew W. Mellon solemnly pronounced the words "I do" and a moment later they were echoed by Ogden Mills. As he signed his name Mellon remarked, amid a burst of laughter:

"That isn't a marriage ceremony. It's a divorce."

Whatever it was, the ceremony had made Mellon Ambassador to England and Mills Secretary of the Treasury. It was held yesterday afternoon at quitting time after the man who managed the Treasury under three presidents finished signing his last letters from that office, and cleared the desk for his successor.

Quite a gathering witnessed the transfer. Gen. Dawes, who left the London diplomatic post to run the Reconstruction Corporation; Gov. Eugene Meyer, of the Federal Reserve Board, Lawrence Richey, representing President Hoover, were in the crowd. After the formalities, the visitors made the event a reception by filing in a handshaking line to congratulate them both.

Arthur A. Ballantine became Undersecretary of the Treasury at the same time, taking the oath that permitted him to advance to the place vacated by Mills.

CAPITAL SPEEDS CREDIT BILL

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The speediest kind of committee work cleared the way today for action in both House and Senate the first of next week on the new bill to expand national credit.

In both branches the measure was given favorable report by the Banking Committees after only one day's consideration. The House is to take it up Monday, the Senate beginning debate the next day.

The committees acted on the assurance of Secretary Mills, of the Treasury, that the legislation would, theoretically at least, release $10,000,000,000 of credit and will "start the upward movement we are all looking for."

RECESS DELAYS RELIEF VOTE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—A truce today suspended the Senate's conflict over federal aid to the unemployed, a recess putting off a vote on the legislation until Monday or Tuesday.

Because many members were absent for the week-end, the remainder chose not to go on with consideration until full forces can be marshaled for the predicted close decision. Administration leaders steadily claim enough votes to defeat the La Follette-Costigan bill which would spend $750,000,000 equally on road building and grants to the states for relief work.

However, yesterday's powerful appeal by Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California, for aid to the women and children of the country's jobless, increased the confidence of relief advocates to the point that even some Republicans are predicting passage of some form of compromise bill.

BIG JOHNSTOWN GROUP JOINS RATE FIGHT

Utilities Base Charges on Unfair Values, Pinchot Aide Declares at Rally

By J. G. SHRADLE
Staff Correspondent.

JOHNSTOWN, Feb. 13.—Definite organization steps today were being taken here to mobilize Cambria County domestic consumers of public utilities in the state-wide attack on excessive rates for electricity, gas, water and telephone service.

Fifteen hundred persons indorsed the appointment of a citizens' committee last night at a public rally of the Pennsylvania Fair Rate Association in the Nemo Theater to lead the fight on Legislature candidates who oppose reforms to bring relief from exhorbitant tariffs.

Enthusiastic applause greeted the 10 speakers as unfair tactics were charged in basing tariffs on fictitious valuations and stock transactions. Mayor Eddie McCloskey, who arranged the meeting following failure of Council to take steps to join the fight, pledged himself to pay the $10 membership fee in the state association that municipalities are being assessed. Nelson A. Elsasser was named chairman of the citizens' committee and Attorney J. J. Kintner, secretary.

EXCESSIVE RATES

Declaring that Johnstown consumers pay more in excessive rates per year than the cost of the Johnstown flood, John M. Walker, special council of Gov. Pinchot on utilities, asserted:

"Pennsylvania investors have been sold $2, 30,000,000 worth of securities in the past two years, based on fictitious valuations. Excess earnings of $30,000,000 a year are taken from our people and when the Public Service Commission was informed of the conditions, they only said, 'Something ought to be done about it.'"

LAW REFORM URGED

State President A. B. Davidson, who presided, announced that the Fair Rate Association has set out "to correct the Public Service Commission situation by correcting the laws."

Executive Committeeman S. S. Baldridge, of Apollo, declared the proposed test case would cost $500,000 and take years to reach a conclusion. He said:

"We propose to send men to the Legislature that will accomplish reforms."

Other speakers included Mayor Joseph A. Heineman, of Butler, who cited the $47.95 yearly charge per fire plug paid by his city, as against Johnstown's $90 rate, as another reason why concerted action was needed; E. V. Shoup, secretary of the Allied Boards of Trade, Pittsburgh; C. H. Brodie, Wilkinsburg engineer; H. G. Anderson and Thomas Bender, deputy attorney general, both of Johnstown.

Pennsy to Hasten Electrifying Line

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Electrification of the Pennsylvania Railroad's main line between New York and Philadelphia is expected to be complete this summer, Gen. W. W. Atterbury, president of the road, said today.

The work will mark completion of the first unit of an electrified line linking New York to Washington for both freight and passenger trains. About 6,000 men now are employed to rush the work through, Atterbury said.

Sue Carol and her husband, Nick Stuart, noted screen actors, are in Pittsburgh this week. And so is their dog, "Stoodgie," 3½-pound toy bull pup. Stoodgie, a real trouper, makes herself at home in the dressing rooms allotted to her master and mistress wherever they appear. Miss Carol said:

"At first Nick thought it was silly to have a dog and would be too much trouble traveling. But now we argue about who will feed her. We both like her so much."

Nick calls Sue and Stoodgie his two women, but like Jiggs, draws the line at taking the dog for a walk.

Asked what they liked to do in their spare time, they both replied:

"We go to see a picture."

Brother of Envoy Asks Delegate Place

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Attorney Morgan S. Kaufman, brother of David Kaufman, United States Minister to Siam, has announced he will be a candidate for delegate to the Republican national convention. His candidacy has the support of virtually every Republican county official and Mayor Fred K. Derby.

LAUSANNE DEBT PARLEY IN JUNE

LONDON, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The Foreign Office announced today that the Lausanne reparations conference will be held next June and that its object has been enlarged to include not only reparations, but other world economic difficulties as well.

The new date for the conference is the result of Franco-British conversations on the reparations problem which have been going on since January, the Foreign Office announcement said, but Belgium, Germany, Italy, Japan and Great Britain have joined in recommending the new conference with an enlarged scope to the other governments concerned. The announcement said:

"The object of the conference will be to agree on a lasting settlement of the questions raised in the report of the Basle experts and on measures necessary to solve the other economic and financial difficulties which are responsible for, and may prolong, the present world crisis. This decision was reached in the hope it will ease the international situation."

Japs Charge Chinese Use American Flag

SHANGHAI, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Japanese military authorities declared yesterday that a group of Chinese soldiers bearing an American flag crossed Woosung Creek in a small boat Friday morning and attacked the Japanese positions.

The Chinese were repulsed, these authorities said, although the Japanese withheld their fire when they first saw the boat because they were confused at the display of the United States flag.

Idaho Republicans Organize for Hoover

BOISE, Idaho, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—An "Elect Hoover" slogan was indorsed by members of the Republican State Central Committee last night at a meeting called to map out campaign plans.

John Baird, Meridian publisher, urged that Republicans forget about the possibilities of defeat for Hoover and think only of success for him.

Americans Protest Japan's Methods to Borah

SHANGHAI, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The voice of 100 American residents of Shanghai today was raised in protest against the Japanese activities in a cablegram to United States Senator William E. Borah at Washington. Their protest was against what they called the violence of Japan's methods. They feared, they said, that if Japan were successful world reliance would again be placed on armed forces and the cause of disarmament would lose all it gained since the World War.

The Rev. Emory Lubbock, American pastor of the Shanghai Community Church, told the Associated Press the American Community, as far as he knew it, was "unanimous and indignant in condeming Japan's entirely misnamed 'defense' of Shanghai." Had her punitive measures taken a "saner and more civilized" course, he said, she would have received considerable support from Americans.

The belief now prevailed, he said, that the Chinese attitude toward foreigners in general would suffer and the future status of the International Settlement would be endangered.

China May Transfer Capital to Peiping

NANKING, Feb. 13.—(INS.)—A series of hurried conferences were under way here today with a view to the early removal of the Chinese capital back to Peiping, a move forecast in International News Service dispatches last Tuesday.

Two more Japanese destroyers arrived off this Yangtze port this morning and a new bombardment is feared.

Russia Denies Yielding Manchuria to Japan

MOSCOW, Feb. 13.—(INS.)—The Soviet government today officially denied reports printed in the London Daily Express that Russia had signed a secret pact with Japan giving her undisputed dominion over all of Manchuria and large tracts of Mongolia.

The government stated there was no basis for the report, which declared that Russia had no alternative to the agreement but war, which she was not prepared to wage with Japan's organized war machine.

CHINA APPEALS TO ARMS MEET

By ARNO DOSCH-FLEUROT
International News Service.

GENEVA, Feb. 13.—Addressing the disarmament conference here today, Dr. W. W. Yen, chief Chinese delegate, made a dramatic appeal to the League of Nations and to all signatories of the Kellogg pact, to force Japan to cease hostilities at Shanghai and elsewhere in China. He asked:

"Is brute force again to be restored to the throne from which it was pulled down 10 or more years ago? Upon your answer to this question will depend the success or failure of this disarmament conference."

Dr. Yen followed Sir George Halsey Perley, of Canada, [illegible] inferentially criticized the French proposal for an international police force by declaring the League was no super-state.

Count Apponyi briefly outlined the Hungarian arms views and Dr. Zarine, that of Latvia.

Chinese Coolies Battle Over Wheat

SHANGHAI, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—American wheat, intended for Chinese flood sufferers, was the cause of a bloody fight yesterday on the Shanghai docks.

Coolies working on the docks have been doing a big clandestine business in whatever wheat they could lay their hands on. An attempt was made to stop their activities and they attacked a group of Chinese detectives placed on guard over the wheat. One guard was killed and five were wounded.

Mounties Nearing Trapper In Arctic Chase

AKLAVIK, N. W. T., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The end of a blind Arctic trail over the snow carpeted foothills neared for Albert Johnson as pursuing mounted police began to doubt the Northland's belief the trapper is insane.

So baffling was the trail the Rat River hermit had laid in the bleak barrens that his pursuers, sworn to capture or kill the man who murdered one of their fellows, conceded Johnson to be a smart trapper and bushman.

The terrific pace Johnson has set in his flight seems to be telling on him. His trail, viewed from the air by Capt. U. R. (Wop) May, showed him somewhat "groggy."

Slayer of Constable E. Millen, Johnson was believed insane even before police made an attempt to arrest him. Indians said he was "queer" when they complained he "lifted" their traps.

WOMAN BELIEVED DEAD LIVES SEVEN HOURS IN MORGUE

POLICE CHARGE DOCTOR FAILED IN DUTY

Start of Autopsy Reveals Spark of Life; Mother Denounces Lack of Care

International News Service.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 13.—Exposure on an operating table in the city morgue caused the death of Mrs. Esther Falk, 32, seven hours after she had been received as "dead."

That the woman lived seven hours after she was believed dead was established by an autopsy today as authorities began an investigation to fix responsibility for her exposure on the morgue table.

Coroner Henry Grundman admitted that no physician had made a preliminary examination of the woman before she was received at the morgue as "dead" and allowed to lie on the table during all those hours when efforts to revive her might have been made.

Mrs. Falk was found in a pool in a vacant lot near her home, her legs submerged through a thin layer of ice. Believed to have been dead, she was taken to the morgue, where, some time later, Dr. E. L. Miloslavich, county pathologist, arrived to conduct an autopsy.

RESCUE ATTEMPT

Dr. Miloslavich discovered "a spark of life" in the woman. He summoned the Falk family physician, Dr. Gerald E. Sullivan, and a fire department rescue squad. The firemen worked frantically for two hours with a mechanical inhalator, but failed to revive the woman.

Explaining today how Mrs. Falk "came back to life," Dr. Miloslavich said:

"The absence of muscular contraction evident in all deaths and the fact that the pupils of her eyes contracted three times indicated that Mrs. Falk was still alive when I arrived at the morgue to perform the autopsy."

POLICE DOCTOR SCORED

Chief of Police J. G. Laubenheimer declared he will summon Dr. David Mehigan, police surgeon, to explain why he did not go to the pool and examine Mrs. Falk.

The National Coroners' Association, with headquarters here, accorded recognition to the case when its president, Peter J. Zisch, announced:

"This is a case of outstanding negligence and is the first of its kind I have heard of in the six years I have been head of the Coroners' association. I shall ask the Coroners in the leading cities of the United States to express their opinions."

Suffering from a nervous ailment, Mrs. Falk disappeared from her home Thursday night after weeping over the vacant crib of her 4-year-old son, Curtis, who is a scarlet fever patient in a hospital.

Indians' Trial Set In Co-Ed Slaying

TUCSON, Ariz., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Mac "Golney" Seymour, 21-year-old Apache cowboy, will go on trial in Federal District Court at Globe, March 14, for the slaying of Miss Henrietta Schmerler, Columbia University student, last July.

Miss Schmerler, who was studying Indian lore and customs on the Whiteriver Reservation in Northern Arizona, was beaten to death with stones after being attacked.

Brick Makers See Trade Improvement

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Members of the National Paving Brick Association said yesterday their business is good and promises to be better. Extensive road building operations in many states, with increased employment, was given as the reason for improvement in the business. O. W. Renkert, of Canton, O., was elected president and George F. Schlesinger, former director of the Ohio Highway Department, was named chief engineer.

W. Va. Wife Stabbed, Mate Held in Jail

HUNTINGTON, W. Va., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Mrs. Edith Moore, 19, was in a critical condition in a hospital suffering from stab wounds police said were inflicted by her husband, John Moore, 22. The Moores started to a theater in an automobile, police said, when without warning he pulled her from the car and stabbed her with a pocket knife. Jealousy was given officers as the motive. Moore was held in jail.

'All a Dream,' Ruth Judd Murmurs to Parents

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 13.—(INS.)—"It's all a dream; it's all a dream," murmured Winnie Ruth Judd, convicted slayer, to her elderly parents, the Rev. and Mrs. H. J. McKinnell, as they visited her today in her jail cell.

Mrs. Judd, accused of killing Agnes Anne Leroi and Hedvig Samuelson, whose bodies were shipped in trunks to Los Angeles, and doomed to die on the gallows by verdict of a jury, cannot understand she is to hang, her husband, Dr. W. C. Judd, explained. He said:

"Ruth doesn't realize what it's all about. If she is sane she is the most collected or bravest person I've ever seen."

Mrs. Judd's attorneys said they would advance "10 good reasons and maybe more" in their motion for a new trial. They obtained affidavits to show that certain members of the condemning jury were prejudiced before the trial started.

Judge Howard Speakman on February 23 will sentence Mrs. Judd to be hanged in the state prison at Florence.

DEATH OF GIRL AT SEA PROBED

NAPLES, Italy, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Mysterious developments surrounding the death of Elizabeth Barrett Cook, Boston (Mass.) girl, aboard the steamship Chinese Prince between Naples and Gibraltar, last week, led the girl's mother, Mrs. Mabel E. Cook, to prepare today to return home to try to clear up the mystery.

Just before her daughter sailed from Naples, February 4, Mrs. Cook said, the girl received a cablegram from Boston saying her fiance, St. George Arnold, had died following an operation for appendicitis and advising her "on no account to return home."

Yesterday, Mrs. Cook said, she herself received a cablegram, signed with the name, St. George Arnold, expressing condolences over Elizabeth's death.

Miss Cook sailed for home on February 4, in spite of the injunction in the cablegram telling of her fiance's death and Mrs. Cook was notified later by steamship officials that she had died of pneumonia on board the steamer. Mrs. Cook ordered the body buried at Gibraltar.

EX-ACTOR QUITS HIS EVICTED FAMILY

Jobless Man Puts Support Of Dependents Up to Society; Wife Approves

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—After watching his wife and four children moved into the street for nonpayment of rent on his home here, George Bratt walked away with the declaration that their care was "up to society." His wife today agreed he "did the right thing."

Bratt, described by his wife as a former actor and a graduate of Amherst College, left his family on the sidewalk where they had been evicted. He said he could shift for himself, but it was society's duty to care for his wife and children.

He refused to accept $25 from the Associated Charities for rent at another place. Mrs. Bratt later said:

"I glory in his spunk. He is fighting for a principle, the principle that as long as society has deprived him of his means of making a living, society must house and feed his family, and I stand behind him with all my heart and soul."

Mrs. Bratt, who with her children was given a temporary home by a charitable organization, said her husband was on the stage seven years and appeared at the Neighborhood Playhouse, New York. He had engaged as a furniture maker here. Another child is expected in the family soon.

2 BROUGHTON BOYS GUILTY

TROY, N. Y., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Stanley Chero and William Schemnitzer, of Broughton, Pa., were convicted of second-degree murder last night for the slaying of Sergt. John E. Frey, of the New York State Police. The verdict carries a sentence of 20 years to life.

The jury not only refused to convict the pair of first-degree murder, as demanded by the state, but asked leniency in returning the second-degree verdict. Court was adjourned until Monday morning as soon as the verdict was read. The youths received the verdict quietly.

Chero and Schemnitzer left Broughton, Pa., a year ago, seeking adventure and fortune. In March last year they were arrested by the sergeant and Corp. Updike, of the State Police, for theft. On the way to headquarters, Schemnitzer in one automobile and Updike and Chero with Frey in the other, a fight developed. Frey was shot and killed, Updike disarmed, and Chero and Schemnitzer escaped. They were arrested in McAlester, Okla.

20 MEN BEATEN IN CARD GAME ROBBERY

Thugs Hold Up 20 Players Of $1,000 in Fifth Ave.; Man Kidnaped Near Home

Armed holdup men left half a dozen battered and beaten victims in their wake following a series of daring holdups staged in different parts of the city early today. The holdups included:

1—Twenty participants in an upper Fifth avenue card game were robbed of hundreds of dollars in a holdup in which several of the victims were slugged with revolver butts.

2—A city fireman was beaten insensible by a Hill District holdup man.

3—Three armed gunmen kidnaped and robbed a Garfield resident after overpowering him near his home.

After battering in a first floor door in an establishment in upper Fifth avenue, near the Uptown Postoffice, a gang of armed thugs ordered participants of a card game to line up along a wall.

SLUGGED WITH PISTOLS

Those who were slow were slugged with revolver butts and two shots were fired to intimidate the victims. The robber gang included five men. One of the victims was described as a man named "Jaffee."

The proprietor, identified by another victim as Louis Kaufman, was slugged and knocked out.

One of those lined up was said to be a downtown district Constable who advised the victims not to resist.

Victims of the holdup, which was reported to police as a minor confectionery store robbery, estimated the combined loot at about $1,000.

Bleeding and unconscious, William H. Robinson, 33, a city fireman, of 2827 Chartiers avenue, was found early today in Center avenue at the entrance of Ewart drive. He was discovered by Dorothy Engelsburg, daughter of Joseph Engelsburg, Hill politician, of 3115 Center avenue. She called police. The motive of the attack was not robbery, police said.

MAN KIDNAPED

Three gunmen kidnaped Steve Dazelos near his home, 4204 Milgate street, early today, robbed him of cash and jewelry and pushed him out of their automobile a mile from his home, according to detectives.

While he was in the car, Dazelos told police, the men took $60, an $80 diamond and $900 in checks. They pushed him from the car in the 300 block of Roup street.

Louis Kaufman, of 1811 Locust street, reported that his confectionery at Fifth avenue and State alley, was held up by two bandits early today. They escaped with $75 cash.

Entering through a rear window, thieves last night took $12 from a desk drawer in the offices of the Pittsburgh Auto Body Company, Washington boulevard, according to a police report.

Smoke in Trolley Routs Passengers

INSULT AT JOB RALLY CHARGED BY VETS

McKeesport Post Calls Meet To Map Action on Alleged Accusation of Cowardice

Members of Bert Foster Post, American Legion, in McKeesport were up in arms today over an alleged insult said to have been hurled at the legion by a speaker at an unemployment protest meeting yesterday at the foot of Ninth street, McKeesport. The veterans will hold a meeting Monday night in the post home, 619 Market street, to protest the remarks.

The alleged insult was made by James Dowds, chairman of the rally which was held under the auspices of the Unemployed Councils and Metal Workers Industrial League.

INSULT CHARGED

Dowds was charged with saying:

"There were rumors that the American Legion was going to break up our meeting. But you people needn't worry. The American Legion hasn't got the nerve to break up any meeting."

The remark was reported to post members and the protest meeting was announced. Legionnaires interviewed later said they would seek to pass a resolution, to be forwarded to city officials, demanding that in the future the American flag must be flown at any meeting similar to the rally staged yesterday.

Two other legionnaires, who refused to reveal their identity, said:

"They will have another meeting some day."

The two veterans refused to make any other statement but made it plain that the insult was not to be forgotten.

3,000 DEMAND GIFTS

More than 3,000 persons, mostly men and boys, gathered along the bank of the Youghiogheny River at the foot of Ninth street where a permit had been given for the rally. Chief of Police Thomas Whalen and more than a score of uniformed patrolmen and motorcycle officers were on hand.

Dowds, after the several speakers had finished, read a resolution to be presented to City Council at the next meeting, demanding free rent, free heat and light, hot lunches for school children and a weekly allowance for all unemployed. A committee was named to present the resolution. Council will meet Monday night at the same time the Legion will hold their session.

Speakers were George Beaumont, Irving Herman, Ernest Careathers, Negro, and Rebecca Gregg. The same group will attempt to stage another meeting February 26.

Auto Injuries Kill Man, Another Hurt

Peter Ragano, 69, of 48 Zulema street, died early today from injuries suffered February 9 when he was struck by an automobile driven by Tildi Mendleson, of 5537 Bartlett street, at Dawson street and the Boulevard of the Allies, according to a coroner's report.

Robert D. Wasyel, 45, of 518 Aspen street, suffered a fractured skull early today when he was struck by an automobile driven by John Wilson, 28, of 24 Merritt street, at East Meyer street and Brownsville road, according to a police report. He was taken to the South Side Hospital.

Man Pleads Guilty In Berg Kidnaping

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Charles Tucker, one of the six men charged with kidnaping Alexander Berg, wealthy St. Louis fur merchant, pleaded guilty late yesterday and it was announced he would be called by the state as a witness against Charles Heuer, now on trial.

Circuit Judge Ossing announced sentencing of Tucker would be deferred until March 31. Under the Missouri law, kidnaping for ransom may be punishable by death.

Sentenced 5 Years For Slaying Friend

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 13.—Tony Mazur, of near this city, was sentenced to five to 10 years in the penitentiary after he entered a plea of guilty to having fatally wounded his friend, Edward Russell, at Manifold, Christmas eve, crushing his skull with a pickhandle.

'Fine' Speakeasies Doomed, Drys Hold

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—(AP.)—Prohibition Administrator McCampbell thinks de luxe speakeasies are doomed. His agents seized here recently $500,000 worth of bars and fine furnishings. He says the owners wouldn't be able to stand the pace much longer.

Swedish Prince Defies King, Plans Runaway Marriage

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 13.—(Universal.)—King Gustav, of Sweden, today saw his opposition to the love-match of Prince Lennart and the daughter of a Swedish commoner overcome by a conspiracy to stage a leisurely runaway marriage in London.

The prince and his lovely fiance, blonde Karin Nisswandt, sail for London next week, with all the royal family save the gruff old King showering blessings on their departure. Their wedding will take place March 1 or, at the latest, 15 days after their arrival in London.

The opposition of Lennart's royal grandfather prevents the marriage from taking place in Stockholm. Prince Wilhelm, the bridegroom's father, and Karin's businessman father and mother will accompany the couple and attend the London ceremony.

The prince will marry under the name of "Mr. Bernadotte," the Swedish royal family name. Miss Nisswandt will be regarded in Sweden as a morganatic bride. Children of the match will thus bear no royal title nor be eligible to the throne.

CHURCHES HERE TO JOIN IN TRIBUTE TO LINCOLN

OPEN FORUM TO FEATURE EXERCISES

Inter-Racial Program To Mark Anniversary Of Martyr Emancipator

Two inter-racial services tomorrow will mark the observance of Lincoln's birthday in this district.

At the evening service in Trinity Methodist Episcopal Church, Warrington avenue, the congregations of the Camphor Memorial Methodist Church, colored, of East Liberty and the First German Methodist Church of Millbridge street will join in an open forum. The Rev. B. F. Jordan of the Camphor Memorial Church will answer questions proposed by members of the other congregations, and the pastors of of the Trinity and First German churches will answer questions of the Camphor Memorial congregation.

The Rev. B. F. Glasco of the Bidwell Street Presbyterian Church, colored, and his church choir, will tomorrow night conduct the services in the Bellevue United Presbyterian Church. At the same time the Rev. Dr. James M. Ferguson of the Bellevue church with his choir will conduct the services in the North Side church.

Dr. Samuel H. Goldenson of the Rodef Shalom Congregation, Fifth and Morewood avenues, will speak tomorrow morning on "Abraham Lincoln in the Year 1932."

Lincoln's birthday will be celebrated tomorrow night in the Emory Methodist Episcopal Church, North Highland avenue and Rippey street, when the Brotherhood Bible Class will attend in a body. The Rev. Dr. M. B. Fuller will speak on "Abraham Lincoln." Special music has been planned for the occasion.

The event will be observed in many churches of the district with special services commemorating the life of the Great Emancipator.

Civil War veterans are expected to be present tomorrow morning in the Shadeland Avenue Christian Church, North Side, when the Rev. C. C. Crawford will speak on "The Soul of Abraham Lincoln." The veterans will relate personal reminiscences of Lincoln and the days of his administration.

ESSAY CONTEST WILL OPEN TOMORROW

Publication of Washington Farewell Address Marks Start of Competition

The essay contest on George Washington's farewell address, being conducted by the Sun-Telegraph, begins tomorrow.

The publication of the farewell address as the cover plate of the American Weekly in tomorrow's Sunday Sun-Telegraph will start off the test. The closing date has been set for April 4, and in the meanwhile the thousands of students and those out of schools—all under 21—may take part in the competition.

A great number of prizes and awards has been presented by William Randolph Hearst, and they will be given the writers of the best essays. The top prize, to go to anyone under 21 years, in or out of school, is a gold cup and $100.

The essays will range in length from 400 words for grammar school students, 400 for junior high school, 500 for high school and 1,000 words for those out of these schools in colleges or other institutions of higher learning.

Gold, silver and bronze medals and diplomas make up the remainder of the 500 prizes.

Dean of China Missionaries Sticks to Post

MISS EMMA LYON

Washington, Pa., Kin Get Note Telling Of Resolve

WASHINGTON, Pa., Feb. 13.—Miss Emma Lyon, dean of American women missionaries in China under auspices of the Christian Church, is safe in Nanking, where she is principal of a school for girls, according to word received here by relatives.

But she absolutely refuses to be evacuated from the Chinese city, recently bombarded by the Japanese. Recently she wrote a brother, William Lyon, and a sister, Mrs. A. O. Houghland, of this city:

"I have never deserted my post in 40 years of labor here in China, and I do not intend to run away now."

Catholic Mission Sections Separated

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The Rev. James G. Keller, of the headquarters here of the Maryknoll Fathers, has announced a separate church prefecture will be made of the section in Manchuria, where the Maryknoll Fathers have conducted missions for several years.

Announcement that the Manchuria section would be separated from the Mukden mission area came from the Vatican by cable, Father Keller said.

Here's the Way to Control Those Miserable Colds So Prevalent Here Now

AN epidemic of colds seems to be developing here now—just at the season when pneumonia takes its heaviest toll. Colds tend to pull down body resistance and pave the way for pneumonia's deadly attack. It is therefore more important than ever that you treat every cold promptly now. Don't take chances. Double your protection with the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds."

1 TO HELP PREVENT COLDS: Whenever you feel yourself "catching cold"—that unmistakable stuffy, sneezy feeling—apply a few Vicks Nose Drops up each nostril. This will check many colds before they get beyond your nose and throat—where most colds start.

2 TO REDUCE THE SEVERITY OF COLDS: If a cold has developed, don't neglect it—at bed-time massage your throat and chest with Vicks VapoRub. During the day use Vicks Nose Drops every few hours for added comfort and relief. This gives you full 24-hour treatment.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Events

In Mayfair

—With—

Patricia Pitt

When social engagements fail, folks can always find myriad things to do, and places to go. And this month there are several attractions for them to look forward to.

This evening, beginning at 8:30 o'clock, there will be a polo match at the Hunt Armory, for all those of you who are polo enthusiasts. And everyone who became a polo fan last summer, after seeing the matches at the Pittsburgh Hunt Club, surely be in attendance this evening to witness the tournament will surely be in attendance this evening to witness the tournament between the Vangs and 10th Field Artillery.

And then there are any number of people interested in hockey and they will attend the game at Duquesne Garden on Thursday between Pittsburgh and Detroit, and for them too, there'll be another match on Saturday, February 20, at the Garden when Pittsburgh plays Windsor.

TITLED WOMAN CITES SLAVERY

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—More than 5,000,000 human beings still are in bondage, Lady Simon, wife of Sir John Simon, head of the British delegation to the world disarmament conference, said yesterday in a Lincoln's Birthday address from Geneva. She declared:

"In parts of both Africa and Asia there is clear and indisputable evidence that some of the most appalling and horrible types of slavery still exist."

Lady Simon explained that an international crusade to abolish human bondage throughout the world began 10 years ago, when the League of Nations appointed a committee of experts to investigate areas where slave-holding was said to exist.

Forty states have ratified a convention abolishing slavery in all forms, she said.

DAVIS TALKS AT WINTERS FETE

Tribute to Abraham Lincoln was paid last night by Senator James J. Davis at a dinner in the German United Evangelical Church, South Side, by the friends of the late Controller Daniel Winters.

That a man of Lincoln's caliber was needed to relieve the country of the depression was charged by Controller James P. Kerr, close friend of Winters.

The moratorium and the depression were discussed by Congressman Harry A. Estep. He said Congress was doing its utmost to relieve the depression.

Other speakers included the Rev. R. L. Hutchinson, John C. Grau, President of Council John S. Herron, Attorney Alexander Cooper, Bert Winters, the Rev. R. O. Eisele, State Senator Joseph G. Armstrong, Jr., and Judge W. Heber Dithrich.

Butler St. Church Sunday Program

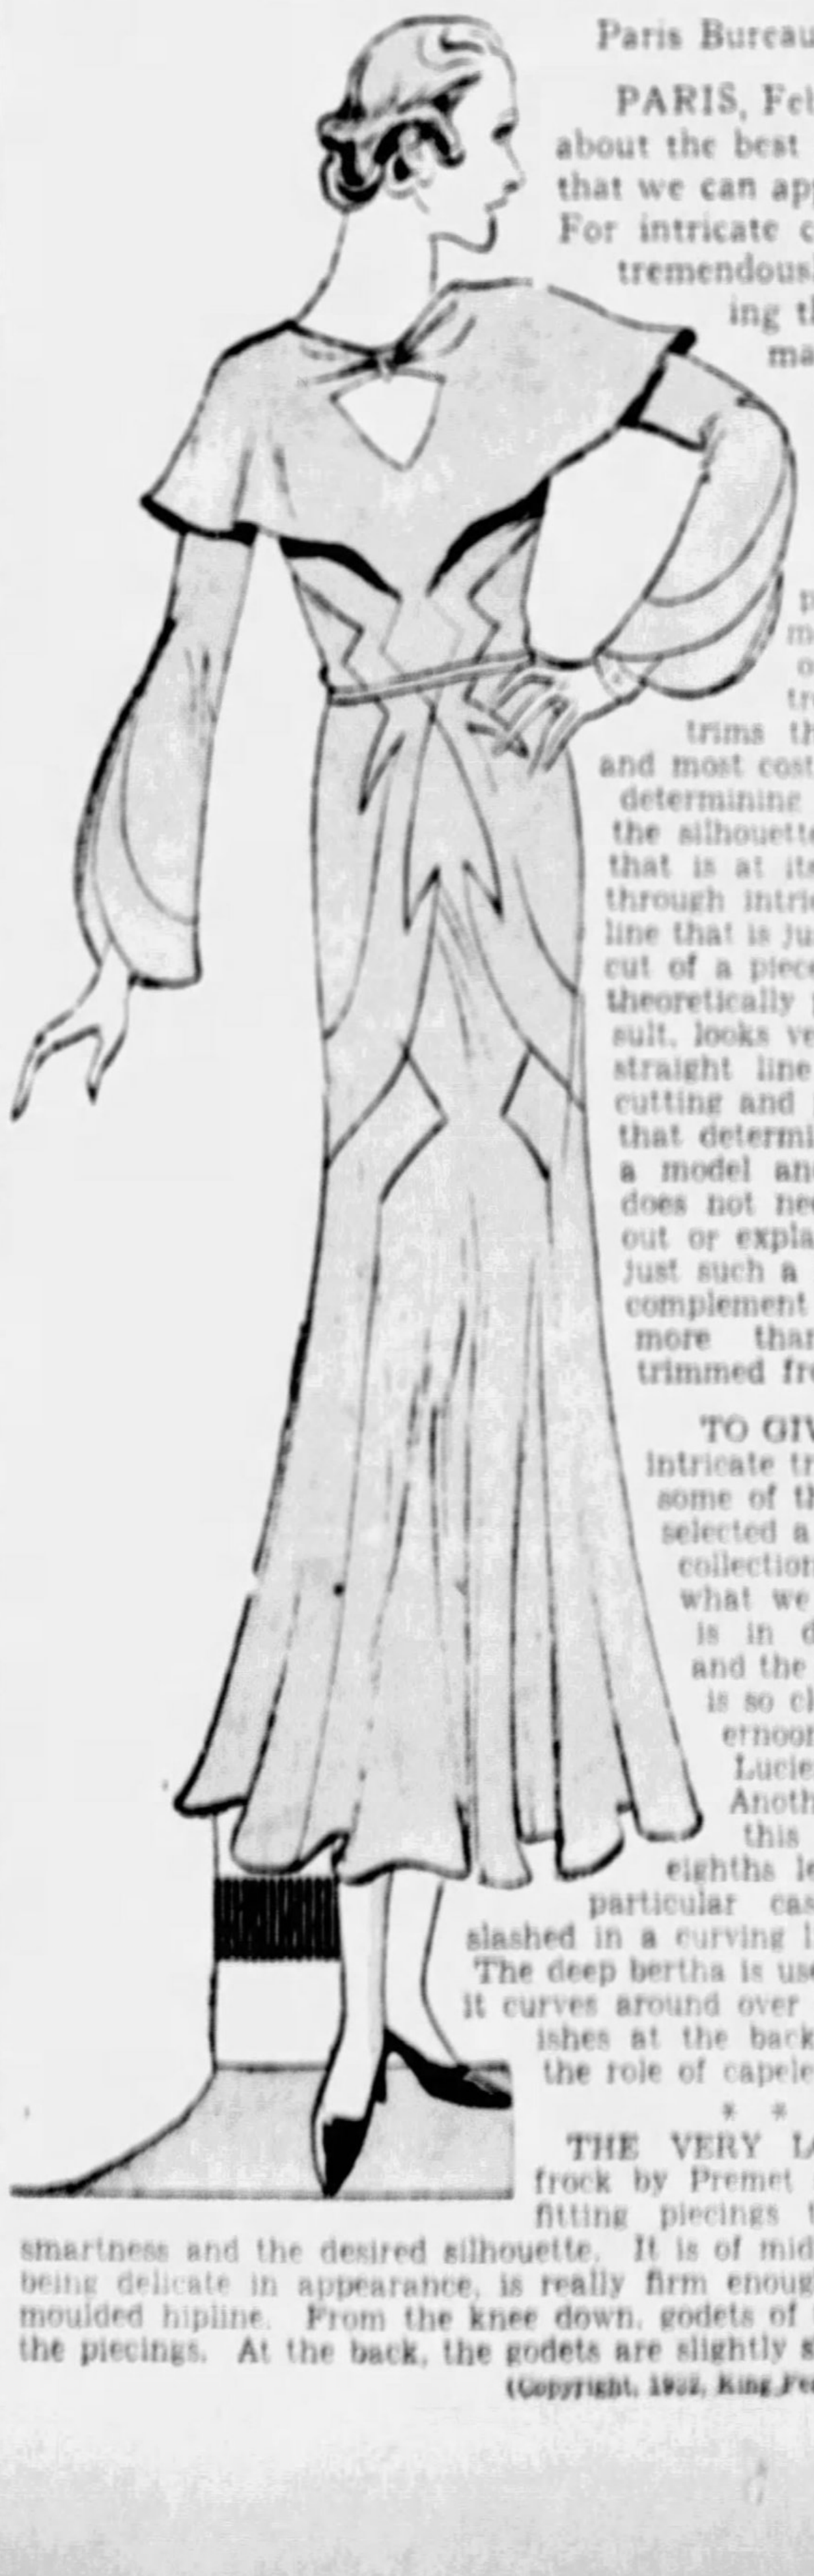
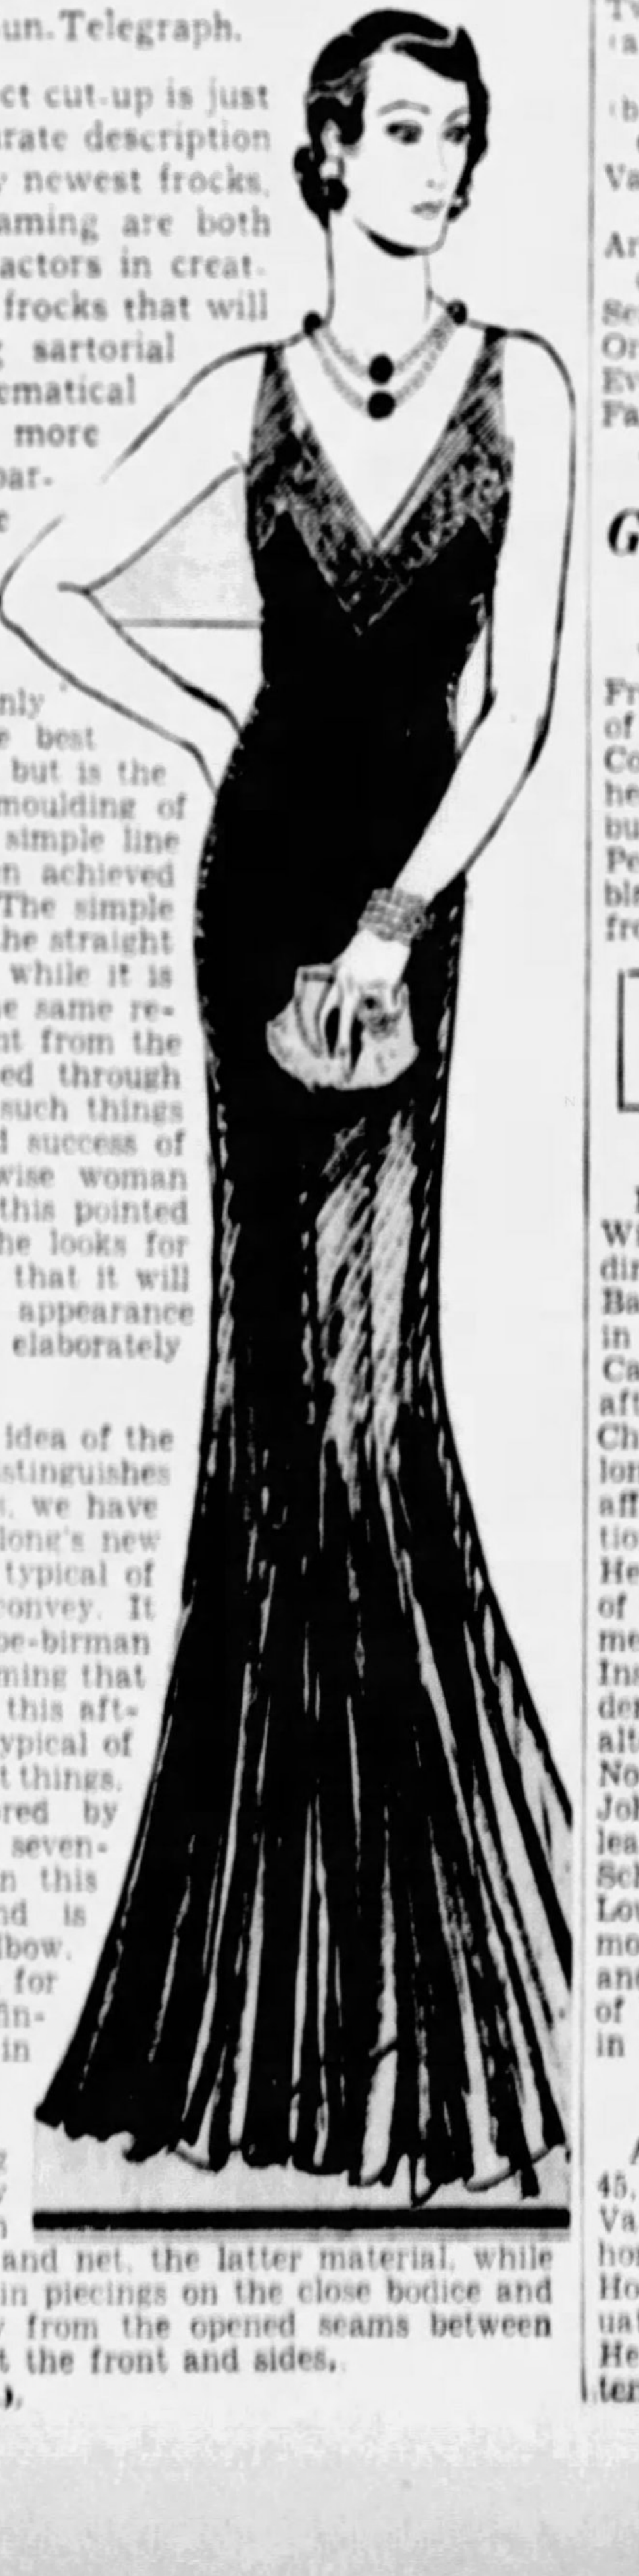
INTRICATE PIECINGS IMPORTANT FACTOR IN EARLY SPRING MODE

—Sketched in Paris—





Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Feb. 13.—A perfect cut-up is just about the best and most accurate description that we can apply to the very newest frocks. For intricate cutting and seaming are both tremendously important factors in creating the really good frocks that will mark the spring sartorial season. Mathematical precision is more and more apparent in the joining and placing of the meticulously cut out pieces. This treatment not only trims the frock in the best and most costly way possible, but is the determining factor in the moulding of the silhouette. It gives the simple line that is at its best only when achieved through intricate methods. The simple line that is just the result of the straight cut of a piece of a material, while it is theoretically productive of the same result, looks very, very different from the straight line that is obtained through cutting and piecings. It is such things that determine the cost and success of a model and the fashion-wise woman does not need to have all this pointed out or explained to her. She looks for just such a frock, confident that it will complement her chic and appearance more than the most elaborately trimmed frock could do.

* * *

TO GIVE YOU A good idea of the intricate treatment that distinguishes some of the newest frocks, we have selected a model from Lelong's new collection as being very typical of what we have tried to convey. It is in dark green crepe-birman and the cutting and seaming that is so clearly shown on this afternoon dress is very typical of Lucien Lelong's newest things. Another detail favored by this house is the seven-eighths length sleeve. In this particular case it flares and is slashed in a curving line up to the elbow. The deep bertha is used only in front, for it curves around over each arm and finishes at the back of the sleeve in the role of capelet.

* * *

THE VERY LOVELY evening frock by Premet also uses snugly fitting piecings to achieve both smartness and the desired silhouette. It is of midnight blue lace and net, the latter material, while being delicate in appearance, is really firm enough to be worked in piecings on the close bodice and moulded hipline. From the knee down, godets of net flare crisply from the opened seams between the piecings. At the back, the godets are slightly shallower than at the front and sides.

Tea Follows Program of Music And Play Given by Women From Drama League

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Yesterday was another of those days at the College Club when the need of the new clubhouse was very definitely felt, for with the stage at one end of the room and the piano at the other considerable turning and craning of necks had to be done. But the members met this inconvience with their usual good humor and enjoyed the program prepared for their Valentine celebration.

There was a little play, "May and December," in which Olivia Kelly, Annabelle Kempton Confer, William Ross and James MacFarlane, of the Drama League, appeared, and the program was completed with valentine songs by Miss Marie Chalfant.

A tea, with valentine appointments, rounded out the afternoon.

WOMAN WIRE OPERATOR DIES

Funeral services for Mrs. Lizzie Adams, 88, veteran telegraph operator on the old West Penn branch of the Pennsylvania Railroad, who died at her home, 213 Hartley street, Springdale, Thursday, will be held at her home tomorrow afternoon.

Born in Barree, Huntingdon County, she served for more than 26 years, until her retirement, as one of the few women telegraph operators employed by the railroad, and worked at stations between the old Federal Street Station and Blairsville, while the line was under construction. During the strike of 1877, she served as train dispatcher at the Union Station.

While working at Freeport, she met her husband, Jackson Adams, a passenger engineer, who drove the first locomotive into Butler when that branch of the railroad was built. They lived in old Allegheny until 1879, when they moved to Springdale.

Her husband died 29 years ago. She leaves a brother, George Adams, at home, and a son, Perry O. Adams, superintendent of the Springdale waterworks. Interment will be in Blairsville Cemetery.

Listening In-

—With the Radio Editor—

THRILLS OF WAR-DAYS will be revived tonight when Walter G. Myers, KDKA announcer, presents his dramatization of the sinking of the German U-boat 103 by the White Star Liner Olympic, with the 111th Infantry Regiment aboard.

Myers, who was attached to headquarters of the 56th Infantry Brigade, will relate the exciting incidents of that night in the English Channel when lookouts spotted the undersea craft and the huge liner, full speed ahead, rammed it and sent it to the bottom. The incident is of particular interest to the Pittsburgh district, for had the submarine shelled and sunk the Olympic, it would have resulted probably in a huge loss of life among members of the Twenty-eighth Division en route to France.

Every radio set in the country would have been tuned to the dramatic debate which has been raging in the Senate this week on federal relief for the unemployed if proceedings of Congress were broadcast, as advocated by the Hearst newspapers.

Imagine listening to the oratory of Fess, upholding the administration's opposition; Borah's vitriolic denunciation of the lack of action; Reed's presentation of the situation in Pittsburgh, and Johnson's fervent eloquence in behalf of the needy.

At any rate, the controversy should create interest in the debate on the same subject tonight at 10:30 on WJAS. Senator Costigan, Colorado Democrat, and co-author of the Costigan-La Follette bill, will uphold the affirmative, and Senator Glenn, Illinois Republican, the negative side of the question: "Should the federal government advance funds to the states and other political sub-divisions to relieve unemployment?"

Phillips H. Lord, radio's "Seth Parker," was made a Kentucky "colonel" recently. Just the other day he read that the Legislature of the Blue Grass State was considering a bill calling for a tax of $100 a year on the 1,000 or more men and women who hold the title.

So, with typical New England thriftiness, "Seth" wrote a letter saying that, while he would like to retain the honor, it was not worth $100 a year to be called "Colonel," and he offered to compromise for $22.50.

MOTHER'S AID IN 'CUB' DAYS MADE GIBBONS

Boy Reporter Always Discussed Stories With Her

'Scoop' on John Dietz 'One Man' War Won Fame

Following is the second of a series of six stories giving the high lights of the colorful career of Floyd Gibbons. The stories are written by Henry Wales, himself a famous war correspondent and a "buddy" of Gibbons for many years.

By HENRY WALES
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—Way back in his days as a cub reporter in Minneapolis, Floyd Gibbons began to develop two of the essential qualities of an ace newspaperman which later enabled him to rise to the heights of his profession.

And it was to his mother, directly and entirely, that he owes this training, he says. It was his kindness to and thoughtfulness of his mother that gave Floyd Gibbons the practice in analyzing his stories and developing their possibilities, that gave him his resonant speaking voice, clear pronunciation, complete enunciation and rapid-fire continuity.

Gibbons began newspaper work in Minneapolis in 1907, at the age of 20. Born in Washington, he had attended Georgetown University for a year, then abandoned the course when his parents moved away.

He soon was promoted to police reporter, stationed at "headquarters." It was night work. Late stories, breaking after midnight, frequently kept him out until dawn or later. But always his mother was waiting up for him, when he returned home to chat while he had a bite to eat.

FLOYD GIBBONS . . . . THEN A NEWSPAPER CUB REPORTER

Confided in Mother

In these nightly sessions, Floyd used to tell his mother of the day's happenings. Keen, alert, interested, Mrs. Gibbons would prompt her son to recount the night's news. Avid with curiosity, she would elicit all the details of every "story" by her searching questions and rapt attention to the explanation.

They would ponder crime mysteries together, speculating on motives and underlying reasons, seeking by induction and deduction to elucidate hidden points which baffled the detectives. These constructive conversations with his mother increased the young man's interest in his work, actuated his thinking processes into deeper reactions, forced his imagination and opened up vast new perspectives.

Gibbons has often stated that it was these nightly talks at home with his mother, over crackers and milk, that formulated his amazing propensity for detail and synchrony in his work.

Later, when his mother's eyes became dimmed with advancing years, Floyd read aloud to her. He continued this practise, almost daily, after his family went to Europe, and when they lived together in Paris.

Read Aloud

The reading aloud habit was to stand Floyd in good stead a few years later when he took up radio work. Always a good story-teller, with his forceful, convincing manner, Gibbons' daily reading of newspapers and books to his mother developed his elocution, gave inflection and a wide range of emphasis to his voice and soon developed the resonant, clear tone so useful on the air.

Constant reading aloud taught him, too, the knack of photographing entire paragraphs of copy with the eye, and then apparently reciting them without reading the written text line by line.

Floyd Gibbons has two sisters, Zelda and Margaret, and two brothers, Donald and Edward. The family moved to Des Moines when Floyd was but 18, and a year or so later, they moved again, to Minneapolis.

Floyd stuck over his first important newspaper story when he covered "The one man war," near Superior, Wis. John Dietz owned a farm which a lumber company tried to purchase. Failing to buy it, the company built a dam, so the water backed up and flooded Dietz's property. When the dam burst and the waters subsided, Dietz and his sons chopped up the stranded logs for firewood and the lumber concern called out the sheriff.

Battle Over Dam

The Sheriff's posse attacked Dietz's sons, Clarence and Leslie, and their sister, Myra, as they were driving to Cameron Dam to buy supplies. Clarence and Myra were wounded, but Leslie ran back to the farm to warn his father.

Then the Sheriff and his posse came up and laid siege to the Dietz farm, firing hundreds of rounds into the building. Finally the farmer surrendered, fearful his wife and children would be shot.

Gibbons covered this story, and scored a clean scoop when the telegraph wires went down in a storm and his competitors were unable to get their stories through. The affair created a stir throughout the Middle West and even attracted considerable attention in the East.

Jobless, Broke

Having "made good" in Minneapolis, Floyd's eye was glued on the "big town," Chicago, and at the first opportunity, he resigned his job and went to work in the "Windy City," on a Socialist newspaper. It was the only vacancy he could find.

Pretty soon the radical sheet folded up and Gibbons was out on the street without even his final week's salary paid. He was broke and definitely out of funds. He says:

"All I had in my pocket was my hand."

Floyd slept on the hardwood benches in the Union Station for a couple of nights and missed several meals, but finally he heard that his former editor on the defunct Socialist paper had grabbed a job as chief of the copy desk of a big morning daily.

Floyd galloped over and through his friend's intercession the city editor took him on as a reporter. Floyd struck for an advance immediately as his clothes were shabby and soiled after sleeping in them. Besides he was hungry and needed a bath, shave and haircut. Floyd says:

"Ten bucks they advanced me. I got all policed up on that. Paid a week's room rent in advance out of it, too. I didn't save out eating money because then I wouldn't have been sure of a sleeping place, and I felt confident I could collect something to eat a couple of times a day."

Five-Dollar Suit

For $5 Floyd bought a suit in South Clark street, one of those shops where they have dummies standing outside with appealing cards hung round their necks, "Take me home for $6," and where the pullers-in almost seize customers by force. Says Burton Roscoe, who saw him in it:

"It was a gray check suit. He looked made up for a character part in a low comedy. They were the largest checks I ever saw, as big as window panes. And how he got into the trousers will always be a mystery to me. They fit so tight they seemed to be painted on his legs."

Floyd pounded along, scoring several handy scoops, which endeared him to the city editor, and then one day he got his big chance. An assignment to go to Mexico.

The Sun-Telegraph will publish a third article on Floyd Gibbons' life Monday.

STOCK MARKET STAGES BRISK ADVANCE

Gains of 2 to 5 Points Made In Early Dealings; Steel Up 4, Auburn Soars 10

NEW YORK, Feb. 13—(AP.)—The stock market leaped forward even more violently than it did at the opening of the previous session today, as further analysis of the proposals to liberalize the federal reserve system brought increasing enthusiasm.

Gains during the first half hour ranged from 2 to 5 points in several issues and blocks of 1,000 to 2,500 shares were numerous. Auburn pushed up more than 10. American Telephone gained nearly 5, and United States Steel nearly 4. Issues up 2 or more included American Can, American Tobacco "B," Case, Union Pacific, Westinghouse and others.

Study of the probable effects of the government's program to loosen restrictions on the Federal Reserve system was again the dominating influence in the security markets.

Foreign markets reflected some further increase in buying of American stocks while dollar exchange was moderately lower, the pound sterling advancing 1¼ cents to $3.45 for cables and the French franc moving up ¾ cent to 3.94 11-16 cents. Talk of possible "inflation" had largely disappeared both here and abroad due to the concerted efforts of government spokesmen to point out that the proposed banking remedy is in line with sound central banking policy as practiced by countries which are firmly planted on a gold basis.

Proposals of the House Ways and Means Committee for higher income taxes than originally contemplated served to weaken the glow of speculative enthusiasm in some quarters, but in banking circles this recommendation was generally approved on the ground that any action which would serve to balance the government's budget would be helpful.

Detroit reports that Ford plans an immediate resumption of large scale production were cheerfully received in Wall street, which interpreted this development as a boon to business in general.

Brokers' loans showed another reduction, declining $19,000,000 to $486,000,000.

LONDON MARKET BUOYANT

LONDON, Feb. 13.—(INS.)—The strong upward tendency noticed on the London Stock Exchange during the last few days continued throughout the short session today.

Stock prices were bouyant while foreign bonds also reflected the more encouraging tone. German 7 per cent's recorded a gain of 2 points to 75½.

International developments were held chiefly responsible for the continued rise, although formal announcement of the Lausanne Reparations Conference came too late to affect today's trading. Stock market observers will watch Monday's session with interest to see whether crystallization of the long-awaited conference will result in further price gains.

The pound sterling opened at $3.44¾, and closed unchanged.

More Cotton Used By Mills in Month

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Bureau of the Census reports 435,337 running bales of lint cotton were consumed in the mills of the United States in January, compared with 415,517 bales in December, and 450,117 in the first month of 1931.

Total consumption for the six months ended January 31 amounted to 2,621,272 consumed running bales, against 2,460,250 consumed in the corresponding period of 1930-31 season.

Giannini in N. Y. Preparing for 'Biggest Fight'

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Amadeo P. Giannini, colorful California banker, is here today preparing to fight the greatest battle of his career.

The former errand boy who became president of the Bank of Italy, the Transamerica Corporation and affiliated corporations with total resources of $450,000,000, will attempt to wrest control of Transamerica from Elisha Walker and other eastern financiers.

He claims he now has control of 12,500,000 shares of the corporation, more than the 51 per cent required. He lost control of the vast holding company last September.

General Railway Signal Expected to Revise Dividend Rate

General Railway Signal dipped into new low territory several times during the past week. The selling was not heavy, but bids were scarce and moderate liquidation was sufficient to send the stock downward. It is probable that a small short interest exists in the issue. Directors meet for dividend action on February 25 and it is considered positive that a sharp downward revision will be made in the present $5 annual dividend rate. In conservative quarters, a $2 basis is looked for.

European financial opinion is almost unanimous in holding that the expansion of the Federal Reserve System's rediscount facilities is "inflation pure and simple." Operators on the London Stock Exchange and the Paris Bourse, for the most part, appear to be in favor of controlled inflation in the hope that it will supply the necessary psychological stimulus to break the vicious spiral of world deflation. Bankers and operators in the money markets are much more critical on more traditional grounds. Objections expressed include the fact that inflation is easier to start than to control and that bankers cannot direct the employment of credit, as experience in boom times proved. Several London experts suggested that after a few of America's leading financial institutions have been thawed out by the Federal Reserve, that institution will close down on the policy of inflation.

The fact that premiums have ruled on borrowings of a number of the popular stocks has been puzzling to many market interests. Those on the short side have been insisting that there is an artificial situation in the loan crowd. They point out that the number of shares outstanding in the stocks which have been ruling at a premium runs into the millions, and that a charge for borrowing them is not warranted. In this connection it is probable that the general discussion of short selling in recent months has had a tendency to keep stocks out of the loan crowd. Outsiders who have paid for their shares have taken them out of Wall street to prevent them being loaned by the short sellers to make deliveries. Naturally this attitude would reduce the supply and bring about a premium over a period of time.

Hudson Motor's progress has been impressive this year. The new Hudson and Essex models, with their various improvements and excellent performances, have been attracting buyers since the cars first were shown. Many cities have reported sales of the cars ranging up to 100 per cent in excess of the corresponding period a year ago, and a number of new sales records have been established in various sections of the country. However, the most significant development this year has been the addition to the dealer ranks of the organization. Up to the beginning of the current month 105 new dealers have joined the selling organization. In the automobile trade it is pointed out that such a record indicates the confidence of those identified with supplying consumer demand in the new models and their ability to move them.

There have been signs of accumulation in Gillette recently. The buying has been persistent whenever the general list became weak. In some quarters the view is held that part of the demand has represented short covering, but one or two commission houses have been calling attention to the action of the stock, maintaining that recent charter changes will allow dividend resumptions earlier than was at first anticipated. This has been responsible for bringing a moderate outside demand into the issue. Some of the buying has been credited to New England interests, but this explanation is forthcoming every time Gillette acts well.

Failure of Eastman Kodak directors to declare the usual extra dividend of 75 cents came as a surprise to many in the financial district, although there had been rumors recently that only the regular quarterly cash distribution was likely to be declared at this time. Many were of the opinion that the reports were put out by those who had been selling the stock short, so that the action resulted in increased selling in the stock on Wednesday. Some short covering took place while the reaction was in progress.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

New York Central Railroad Company for 1931 showed a decrease of $32,551,690 from the preceding calendar year. The company's net for last year amounted to $2,130,101, compared with $35,981,791 for 1930. [illegible]

Phillips-Jones Corporation reports for the year ended December 31 net loss of $170,-477, compared with a net loss of $249,618 in 1930.

Calumet and Hecla Consolidated Copper Company reports for year 1931 loss of $2,573,394 after taxes, depreciation and depletion, compared with loss of only $6,747 for 1930.

Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad Company for year 1931 shows net income of $3,072,666 after taxes and charges, compared with net of $6,510,194 in 1930.

Copper Producers May Seek Second Output Cut

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Announcement that F. Pisart and Camille Gut, representing Belgian copper interests, are arriving in New York next Tuesday gave rise to reports that discussions regarding further curtailment of copper production may be held.

Both Pisart and Gut attended the international copper conferences in New York last fall, but at that time they declined to meet the reduction ratios agreed upon by British and American producers. Later, however, when a price war appeared possible, the Belgian representatives reconsidered and joined with other large producers in fixing the general level of mining approximately 26 per cent of capacity.

Stocks Seldom Race to Extremes as at Present

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Seldom has the market raced from one extreme to another in the breakneck fashion it has currently shown, but it certainly is more pleasant to contemplate penetration through the January highs, as now seems likely, than the previous fear over the establishment of new lows.

While it is yet too early to say with any degree of certainty that the 1929-1932 bear market has passed into history, it is a rather pertinent fact that the turn in the tide came after the stock list had established a triple bottom, with the lows of December 17, January 5 and February 10, about on a par.

Stock market observers profess to see an analogy between the present anti-deflation step and the Hoover moratorium of last June. Both are described as heroic measures intended to wedge an opening in the brick wall of depression, and no apparent reason is seen why the stock list should not behave as well now as it did last June.

As an indication of the profit possibilities available in stocks when the market definitely turns upward, the following record of the percentage gain of speculative leaders from the low of 1921 to the high of 1922, should prove enlightening.

In this period, Air Reduction advanced 120 per cent; Allied Chemical, 170 per cent; American Can, 226 per cent; American Smelting, 128 per cent; American Tobacco B, 50 per cent; Anaconda, 80 per cent; Bethlehem Steel, 100 per cent; Borden, 38 per cent; Continental Can, 236 per cent; Corn Products, 129 per cent; Du Pont, 81 per cent; Eastman Kodak, 34 per cent; General Electric, 73 per cent; General Motors, 64 per cent; Goodyear, 76 per cent; International Harvester, 72 per cent; Liggett & Myers B, 61 per cent; Mack Trucks, 144 per cent; Paramount, 140 per cent; Radio, 315 per cent; Sears-Roebuck, 76 per cent; Standard Oil of California, 102 per cent; Texas Gulf Sulphur, 108 per cent; Union Carbide, 63 per cent; Westinghouse Electric, 67 per cent and Consolidated Gas, 87 per cent.

While some profit-taking may temporarily interrupt the upswing in prices, the concensus favors trading commitments on any moderate recessions.

Big Fuel Leader and Air Brake Reflect Booming Advances on 'Big Board'

Sensational strength in securities on the "big board" had reflection in prices on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange in today's short session. While the move in New York got under way in Thursday's market, the local list had shown no disposition to follow the advance.

At the opening today, however, prices of the leading issues on the board here moved forward for gains ranging from fractions to more than a point. Lone Star Gas and Westinghouse Air Brake were in good demand, the former scoring a large fractional gain and the latter moving up more than a point to above 16.

In other directions a firm to strong tone was evident but volume was not noticeably heavy.

FORD AWARDS BIG ORDER

TOLEDO, Feb. 13.—Ford Motor Company has awarded a contract for 1,000,000 distributors to the Mallory Electric Corporation. The contract does not conflict in any way with the ignition system being made by Electric Auto-Lite Company for the four-cylinder line. Auto-Lite is planning to recall several hundred workers to make starters and generators for Ford when the latter's production gets underway on a big scale.

Plants here making Ford parts are preparing to start heavy shipments during the latter part of this month.

DETROIT, Feb. 13.—Packard Motor Car Company is operating full time on an eight-hour shift five days a week, with 8,700 men employed. Its production program calls for employment of at least this number for the next three months.

An idea of the increased activity at Packard plant may be had from the fact that freight movements in and out of the factory are 100 per cent greater than they were in January.

COURT UPHOLDS HYDE PROBE

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—(INS.)—Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson upheld the practice of the Secretary of Agriculture in examining books of grain dealers to learn if they were violating the grain futures act.

The act itself was recently upheld by the United States Supreme Court. However, certain regulatory measures promulgated by Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, were attacked in a suit filed by the Barlett Frazier Company, of Chicago and Kansas City.

Judge Wilkerson, in his decision, said:

"It is difficult to see how the purpose of the act can be carried out unless the regulatory agencies are able to inform themselves as to the transaction in futures conducted on boards of trade."

TWO ROADS ASK FEDERAL AID

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Two railroads have asked Interstate Commerce Commission permission to borrow money from the Railroad Credit Corporation and the Reconstruction Corporation.

The Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie Railway asked authority to borrow $2,990,173 from the railroad corporation to pay interest on bonds due at various times between March 1 and September 1.

The application said "the proposed borrowing is absolutely necessary to prevent default in payment of obligations due at various times between March 1 and September 1." The application set out a long list of bonds on which the company says it cannot pay interest out of present earnings.

The Boston and Maine Railroad asked authority to issue $57,500,000 worth of bonds to mature March 1, 1952, to retire other bonds and reimburse its treasury for improvements.

Preferred Holders Control Bellas Hess

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—As a result of a default in four consecutive dividends on the preferred stock of National Bellas Hess Company, Inc., the preferred stockholders on December 1, 1931, obtained exclusive voting power for the election of directors and the amendment of by-laws. A meeting of preferred stockholders was held Feruarby 11, and re-elected the old board of directors. In addition, Clarence C. Vernam and Carl D. Berry were elected to fill vacancies.

Extension Granted Cuba on Big Loan

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Cuba has received a 90-day extension from Chase National Bank on its payment of $20,000,000 on short-term public work loan, and commission in the amount of $50,000 was turned over to the bank.

TRADE BALANCE FAVORS CANADA

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The favorable trade balance of the Dominion continued to grow in January, and for the 10 months of the present fiscal year totaled $24,058,355, H. H. Stevens, minister of trade and commerce, reports.

Imports in January were $34,114,507 and exports $39,063,469. For the 10 months the imports totaled $485,469,613 and exports $509,527,968.

The unfavorable balance of trade at the end of the calendar year 1930 was $103,019,363, and at the end of 1931 it was reduced to $10,855,363, a betterment in the year of more than $92,000,000.

Bank of France Raises Gold Point

PARIS, Feb. 13.—The Bank of France has decided to raise its minting fee on purchase of gold to 40 francs a kilogram from the present 20 francs. The gold point of entry, which will be affected two or three points by the forthcoming increase in shipping charges from New York, will thus be lowered about two more points to about 25.35-100 francs to the dollar. In terms of dollars, the franc will have to advance to about .03944 before gold can be shipped as compared with the present rate of about .03939.

British Free List Excludes Copper

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Nonferrous metal dealers are much exercised over the exclusion of copper from the new British tariff free list, which will seriously affect business. Strong representations will be made to the Chancellor of the Exchequer to alter his decision.

Barnsdall Plans Change in Stock

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Barnsdall Corporation proposes reclassification of the present Class A stock and Class B stock, par value $25 each share, to be exchanged for one new share.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

ROAN ANTELOPE OUTPUT

The Roan Antelope Copper Mill treated 90,700 tons of ore in January, averaging 3.77 per cent copper, according to cable advices from Rhodesia, South Africa, to C. D. Barney & Co. Smelter production was 2,457 tons of blister copper assaying 99.52 per cent. The December mill total was 159,900 tons of 3.78 per cent ore and shipments for that month were 4,164 tons of blister copper assaying 99.72 per cent.

CHILEAN COMMERCE

Total commerce between Chile and the United States fell off 60 per cent in 1931 as compared with 1929, the consul general of Chile in New York reported. A balance in favor of Chile in 1931 totaled $18,514,970. In 1929 it had a favorable balance of $46,248,000. Exports to Chile from the United States fell off 61.5 per cent, while Chilean exports to the United States decreased 60 per cent.

DIVIDEND INDEX DROPS

Moody's Investors' Service weighted dividend index for 600 stocks dropped from $1.96 on January 1 to $1.89 on February 1. The latter figure compares with the peak of $3.05 set in March, 1930. The analysis says a further substantial decline in the index is already indicated for February, due to dividend changes announced in the first few days of the month.

COST OF LIVING DECLINES

Cost of living in the United States was 3.0 per cent lower in December than in the preceding June and 9.3 per cent lower than in December, 1930, as determined by the Bureau of Labor Statistics, Washington, in its semi-annual survey in 32 cities. The index number for cost of living for December is 145.8, based on the cost in 1913 as 100.

BUENOS AIRES BONDS DRAWN

According to Hallgarten & Co. and Kidder Peabody & Co., fiscal agents for the 6 per cent refunding external bonds due in 1961 of the Province of Buenos Aires, there have been called for redemption by lot March 1, 1932, $257,000 principal amount of the bonds.

RECORD TYPEWRITER ORDER

One of the largest single orders for typewriters ever received has just been placed by the New York Board of Education, with the Woodstock Typewriter Company of Chicago, according to R. W. Sears, president. This order, placed in December, 1931, calls for 1,305 new Woodstock typewriters, and was secured through Woodstock's New York branch.

U. S. PLAYING CARD ELECTS

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

STEEL DEMAND INCREASE HALTED

Changed Sellers' Attitude Points to Stabilization In Finished Steel Prices

By B. E. V. LUTY

Increase in steel demand which marked the greater part of January, has come to a halt, the sum total of buying in the last two weeks being perhaps even under that of the two weeks preceding.

Steel ingot production this week was at about 27 per cent, the same as last week. January production was officially reported at 26.54 per cent on the basis of the capacity rating of December 31, 1930, but this will be revised when the new capacity ascertainment is completed and is likely to go down about one point.

MARCH PICKUP SEEN

While little improvement in steel was seriously expected so early in the year, there is ground for some disappointment at the course of affairs. Some observers had mentioned March 1 as the time for beginning of real seasonal improvement, and there is still opportunity for their expectations to be borne out.

In the last week there has been a decided change of attitude by steel sellers, many of whom had been cutting prices. There are definite prospects that the whole finished steel market may be stabilized again, as it was from the middle of last year until late October, when cutting developed in strips, then extending to bars, plates, shapes and sheets. Bars, shapes and plates were at 1.60c Pittsburgh for a year up to December, when 1.50c became common and the objective is to make the market firm at that figure. In sheets and strips advances are talked of, to put prices up close to the level of last July.

PRICES UNDER COST

Pipe and standard rails have been steady right along while wire products were advanced recently, the new prices being held rigidly, but without much test, as jobbers have stocks. Speaking broadly, steel prices of late have been somewhat below cost plus overhead and well above cost less overhead, an awkward position for any competitive market to be in.

Steel buying is in numerous small orders, for prompt shipment, and is widely diversified, nearly all lines of consumption being represented. Automobile activity is not expanding farther after its December and January gains. The farm implement industry is curtailing schedules somewhat after a seasonal run of three or four months at a moderately fair pace. Fabricated structural steel lettings have been very light for four months and have shown no semblance of a seasonal upturn since the first of the year. Railroads are studying very deliberately how they should lay out the additional funds now promised. There will be some rail buying, but probably not much, as track in general is in good shape from the heavy work done for years, and more will probably be done in general upkeep.

GENERAL CIGAR SALES GAIN

Steady increase in sales of its principal class "A" cigar, the White Owl, enabled the General Cigar Company to cover its common dividend last year with a margin of more than 25 per cent to spare. Earnings of $5.01 a share on the common compared with $6.03 in 1930. Reduction last June in the price of the White Owl to the class "A" (5-cent) brought sales of this brand to record levels, the year 1931 scoring a gain of 52 per cent over the previous year. Expansion was also noted in sales of the company's other leading brands, each of which contributed to the year's total net profit. The company declared the regular dividend at the rate of $4 a year on February 1.

COMBS NAMED P. A. REGISTRAR

W. S. Combs, formerly associated with Kaynee Company as manager of their New England office, has been appointed registrar of Pittsburgh Academy. Mr. Combs was graduated with the Bachelor of Science degree from Cornell University, and is doing post-graduate work in the school of education at the University of Pittsburgh. He has had a varied business and educational experience.

Mr. Combs

Mr. Combs reports a very satisfactory enrollment for the opening Wednesday, February 17, of the special evening classes. These special courses are attractive to many office people who desire to advance so that they may be of more service to their employers.

The faculty for the special evening courses in advertising and selling is composed of William W. Harris, Samuel K. Smith and Joseph Schewe; practical speaking, E. R. Moses; practical psychology and commercial English, J. L. Zerbe, in law, William Aiken; in French, Maj. Charles Schisano; in typography and layout, Edwin H. Stuart and George W. Kinnard; in machines including the comptometer, Miss Catherine Derr, dictaphone, Miss Ruth Wise, and stenotype, Miss Catherine Sullivan.

Utility Building Programs Lower

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—V. D. Simons, Inc., industrial engineers, have estimated that financing for new utility construction in 1932 will aggregate nearly half a billion dollars.

From present indications, utility financing for new construction and maintenance this year will total approximately $450,000,000 as against almost $633,000,000 in 1931, and more than $960,000,000 in 1930.

Better Prospects Seen For Local Industry

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

GENUINE ENCOURAGEMENT was given to Pittsburgh industry last week. The hope for prompt broadening of Federal Reserve powers, without the unsatisfactory features of the original plans, had an important psychological effect. This indicated that the liquidity of bank assets may be vastly increased in the future which would add to the margin of safety of the institutions.

Of more immediate importance, however, was the announcement that Ford is actually ready to start on the production of new four and eight-cylinder models. The direct buying by Ford is expected to stimulate the production of steel and glass plants at several localities. It is also likely to prove a helpful factor in increasing the buying of materials by other automobile manufacturers.

It is now generally known that the buying of new motor cars following the automobile shows was disappointing. Some of the automobile men attribute the lack of interest in cars in the low priced field to the general knowledge that Ford was planning new models. Naturally prospective purchasers tended to hesitate until they had a chance to see what Ford had to offer.

May Increase Steel Operations

WHILE IT IS IMPOSSIBLE to predict the extent of the increase which will result in Pittsburgh's industrial activity from the resumption of Ford production, it seems quite probable that it will have a fairly important beneficial effect. At any rate the necessary production to supply Ford dealers with cars will exert an immediate stimulating influence on the industries dependent on motor car manufacturing. Whether this will be maintained or not will depend entirely on the ability of the public to buy cars.

The great number of automobiles which have been run beyond the natural period of their life and are now ready for the junk pile certainly indicates that the motor industry has been accumulating a substantial back log of demand. At least part of the American public has not suffered seriously from the depression but has been withholding purchases out of a feeling of caution. Sooner or later these more fortunate persons may be expected to resume buying and this seems to be the most likely factor to start business on the upward grade.

Fear Vanishing

CONCRETE EVIDENCE THAT there are people with money and that they are willing to do something besides keep it in a sock can be seen from the improvement in the buying of investment securities in small lots which started early this year and which seems to be gaining momentum. Purchasing of this type may spread to commodities if confidence does not receive a new shock.

FOREIGN DAIRY TRADE FALLS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—American foreign trade in dairy products in 1931 resulted in an unfavorable trade balance to this country of $5,224,416.

With the exception of cheese the trade balance is decidedly in favor of the United States. Exports of all dairy products, save cheese, had a value of $10,159,531 while imports had a value of $1,035,459. But shipments of cheese from this country amounted to only $374,887 and imports were valued at $14,723,375.

Of the total value of all dairy products exported in 1931, condensed and evaporated milks constituted 75 per cent, dried milk over 14 per cent, butter 6 per cent, cheese 3.5 per cent and fresh milk and cream less than 1 per cent.

TRADE ACTIVITY STILL LOW

Comparatively little change is noted in business activities in this district, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review. Volume of business at both wholesale and retail is about the same as last week and is still about 15 per cent lower than a year ago.

There has been a slight improvement in the demand for women's wearing apparel but this is mostly in the cheaper grades. Dealers in hosiery report demand quiet and prices low. Manufacturers of confectionery report volume of business considerably lower than a year ago, but prices have been reduced to some extent. Sales of automobiles continue to average well below normal and buying of accessories is also slow, chains in particular having sold poorly owing to the open winter.

The bituminous coal market continues slow, production averaging about 25 per cent lower than a year ago.

Collections continue to average slow, although a slight improvement is reported in a few lines.

Erie Bars Political Meetings in Schools

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Political meetings will be barred in Erie public school buildings in the future. William F. Carney, assistant school solicitor, said such meetings violate the state school code.

GLASS DEMAND STILL SLOW

Less than seasonal demand for flat glass products continues to prevail, according to American Glass Review. The impetus given safety glass through the demand from automobile manufacturers has not affected other forms of flat glass nor has there been any improvement generally, which would strengthen the movement of regular flat glass.

Inability of automobile manufacturers to anticipate requirements or to settle upon definite production schedules has had a slowing effect upon both production and shipments of plate and heavy sheet glass. Six weeks ago, it was believed that before this time the automobile industry would be entered upon active schedules. However, this market has failed to develop as it generally does.

Until residential building costs are known more clearly, prospects of a better demand for flat glass are not encouraging. However, most forecasts on residential building in 1932 agree that this branch of the construction industry should be active.

Air Travel Increase, Plane Output Falls

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—(INS.)—The production of airplanes in this country in 1931 totaled 2,800, of which 1,807 were for domestic civil use, the Commerce Department has announced. In 1930 the production was 3,437 planes. Sixty autogiros were built last year.

Scheduled air lines carried 457,340 passengers in 1931 against 4,935 the year before. Miles flown, 41,416,688, exceeded 1930 by 10,000,000. The carrying of express also expanded rapidly.

$500,000 Rum Raid Staged in Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Feb. 13.—(INS.)—A raid on a five-story building in the downtown section by federal agents yesterday resulted in the seizure of alcohol and distilling equipment valued at $500,000. Five men made their escape over an adjoining roof after hurling wooden boxes in the path of the raiders.

Woman Ends Life In 17-Story Plunge

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Feb. 13.—(INS.)—Mrs. Isadore L. Shulhafer, 45, wife of a city alderman, leaped to her death from the seventeenth floor of a building in the downtown district here yesterday. Alderman Shulhafer, who identified the body, said his wife had been suffering from a nervous disorder.

ACCOUNTANCY MARSH TOPIC

"Accountancy" will be the subject of a vocational address over radio station WCAE today at 5:00 p. m. by William F. Marsh, C. P. A. The program is sponsored by Pittsburgh School of Accountancy.

Mr. Marsh is well-fitted to talk on the subject since he is the resident partner of Lybrand, Ross Brothers and Montgomery, accountants and auditors. Gov. Gifford Pinchot recently honored Mr. Marsh with an appointment to the Pennsylvania State Board for the Examination of Public Accountants. He is vice chairman of the Pittsburgh Chapter of the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants and past president of the local chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants.

BETTERFEELING IN STEEL

According to Hickman, Williams & Co. factors that have created a more favorable sentiment in the iron and steel industry are a slow but steady increase in the rate of steel mill operation in the middle west, a further increase in the employment index figure covering the automobile manufacturing district and an increased volume of orders being placed by the railroads.

Considerable interest has been taken in recent sales of machine tools for shipment to Japan. This is reported from Cincinnati.

Pig iron business continues in small volume with price levels unchanged except along the Seaboard where some low quotations have been made on foreign iron.

Reports from the trade covering a wide territory indicates that so far the year 1932 has brought forth about as much improvement in the general situations as could reasonable be expected.

Pennsylvania Oil Stocks Show Drop

OIL CITY, Pa., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The Derrick says stocks of Pennsylvania grade crude oil held by major pipe line companies of the East showed a decrease of 70,240 barrels at the end of January as compared with the end of December. The January total is given as 3,219,630 barrels and December 3,289,870 barrels.

Enforced proration by pipe line companies has reduced runs from wells and caused a slight draft on stocks.

Keystone Driller Elects Johnston

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Feb. 13.—L. M. Johnston, of Pittsburgh, formerly vice president of the A. M. Byers Company, has been elected president of the Keystone Driller Company, drilling equipment manufacturers.

Other officers elected are E. C. Rebeske, vice president; R. R. Downie, secretary, and C. T. Smith, treasurer.

GLOOM IN WEST LESS APPARENT THAN IN EAST

Fewer Folks on Coast Found Selves Out on Limb When Financial Storm Broke

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 13.—During this world wide depression, San Francisco has been taking it on the chin with especial grace.

Less gloom is superficially in evidence—much less than on the faces seen near Broad and Wall street, New York, the new financial center of the world. San Francisco has never been money mad. It never had the delusion of mere bigness, which caused the reckless expansion in other centers.

Mr. Rukeyser.

Accordingly, it appears that fewer folks up this way found themselves out on a limb when the financial storm fell. This does not by any means signify that San Francisco has escaped the blizzard of deflation. Estates here, as elsewhere, have shrunken greatly in value, but there is less of the spirit of catastrophe in the air.

MAKE FRIENDSHIPS

The people of this city did not put all their eggs in one basket—the basket of material possessions. It was a tradition of the city to temper money-making with cultivating friendships. The position of a man here is measured to an unusual extent by the number of substantial persons he can call by their first names. Those spiritual values have remained intact throughout the dismal months of bear raiding on securities.

Edmund Burke, when speaking in the British Parliament, remarked that you cannot indict a whole nation. Likewise, it is dangerous to generalize about a whole city, yet municipalities do take on personality. San Francisco and New Orleans are perhaps highspots from the standpoint of colorful individuality. The ancient Greeks thought 10,000 population the ideal limit for a city. Out in San Francisco, there is more pride in quality of numbers and achievements than in mere size.

PHILOSOPHICAL ATTITUDE

The whole West, though subject to serious economic problems, takes the business situation somewhat more philosophically than the East. The head of one large nationally conspicuous corporation told me that in 1931 the only division of his to run ahead was that west of Denver.

S. O. Johnson, Oakland timber man, gave me his "low down" on the distinctly subnormal lumber industry. He thought that prices had reached rock bottom, but would rise slowly to a limited extent after an equilibrium has been established, because of the excess capacity in the industry. He thought that over the long pull consumption of lumber would fail to keep up with the growth of other products, because it is gradually being partially replaced by competing products.

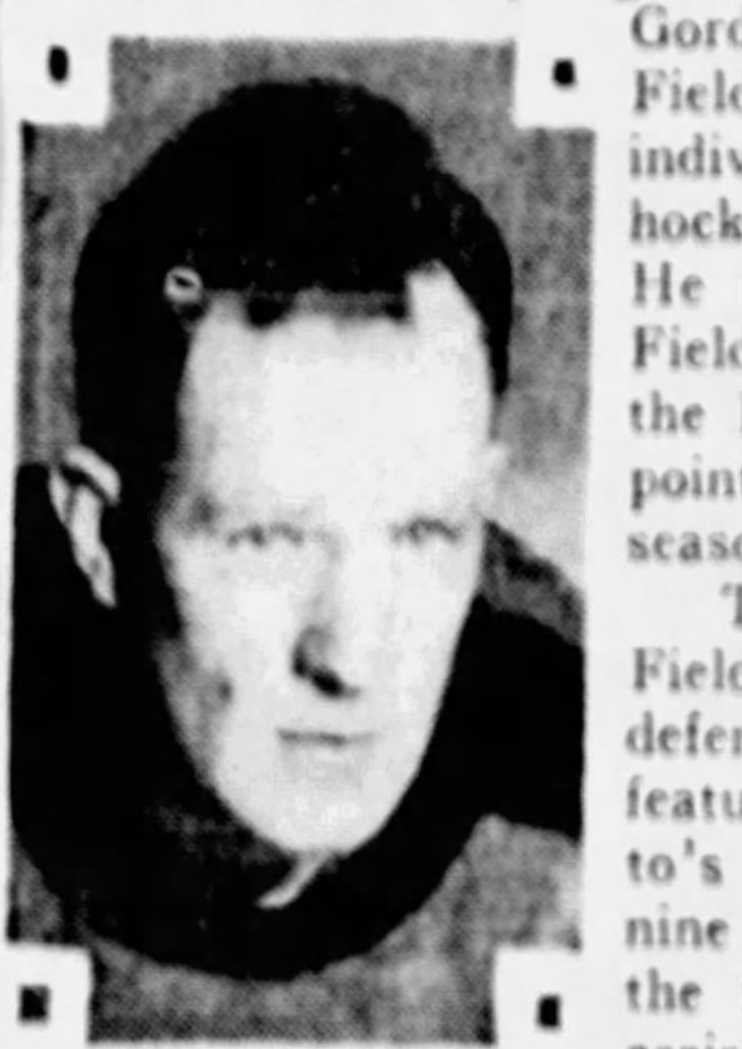
FRASER TOPS JACKETS BY ONE POINT

BY ADDING A goal and two assists to his string for the season in Thursday night's scoring harvest against Cleveland, Gordy Fraser broke a tie with Whitey Fields and gained the leadership in the individual race on the Pittsburgh hockey club by a margin of one point. He now has 17 points to his credit. Fields, previously on even terms with the left defense player, registered two points the same night and boosted his season's total to 16.



Gordy Fraser

The close race between Fraser and Fields, unusual from the angle that a defense skater is top man, is one of the features of the local season. Carl Shatto's records show that each has made nine goals, Fraser getting his lead from the fact that he has turned in eight assists against seven by Fields. The closeness of the figures is a tribute to the pair as team players. They work so well together that when one of them gets a goal it is generally on a pass from the other.

IT IS NOT only on the Pittsburgh club that Fraser leads. He is a standout among the defense men of the entire International League as a scorer. He tops all the rest by such a wide margin that he is virtually certain to rank above every other backfielder in the circuit in the season's final tallying records. The standing of the Jackets up to date, omitting the scores produced by Frank Ingram, Earl Miller and other performers no longer with the club, follows:

	Goals.	Assists.	Total Pts.		Goals.	Assists.	Total Pts.
Fraser	9	8	17	Romnes	4	1	5
Fields	9	7	16	Proudlock	4	1	5
Dunning	9	4	13	Rodden	1	5	6
Arbour	4	4	8	Locking	2	2	4
Gregg	3	4	7	White	1	1	2
Matte	3	2	5	Barton	1	0	1

CINCINNATI PLAYERS AND critics believe that George Grantham, former Pirate, will be used in the Red outfield. Infielder Leo Durocher is one holding that view, and he is confident Grantham will succeed there.

"George merely got into a rut in Pittsburgh," Durocher says. "He is one sweet ball player, and the Reds wore horseshoes to land him. I don't understand yet how Mr. Weil was able to do it. But we got him, and now you're not going to keep that baby off the varsity.

"GRANTHAM HAS SPEED and can hit," Durocher adds. "And if you don't think he's dangerous going down to first, just try to double him on an infield grounder. He's the hardest player in the National League to two-time, in my opinion. In the first place he bats on the near side of the plate, and he's very quick on the break. He gets away just about as quickly as the ball. No infielder can make any mistakes on the grounders that Grantham hits and still double him up."

ED (MOOSE) KRAUSE, who was seen in football here against Carnegie Tech last fall and in basketball against Pitt just recently, is one of the most versatile athletes ever to enter Notre Dame's halls of learning and bids fair to earn a ranking with the greatest all-around stars that institution ever turned out.

Ed Krause

Even in his sophomore year, Krause is a standout. He specializes in forcing famous regulars to the bench. In football he was so good in his first varsity season that he ousted Al Culver, himself rated one of Notre Dame's mightiest tackles. When he came out for basketball, the fact that the position he coveted was occupied by a noted luminary did not feaze him in the least.

WITHIN A VERY short time, Krause had won the jump job from Ray DeCook, varsity center and high score man for two years, and already he is ranked with the greatest college players of the year. He has few equals as a deceptive and accurate passer, is a great feeder, and can do so many things well that he is the key man on almost every play.

And the Big Moose, standing 6 feet 2 inches and weighing 220 pounds, is not going to stop there, for the Notre Dame athletic heads are also counting on him to be the bulwark of the baseball team in the spring, as he is said to be as accomplished on the diamond as he is on the gridiron or the court.

IT IS SURPRISING that, in connection with the meeting of the football rules committee, now on at Hanover, N. H., a suggestion that a rule be adopted to prohibit the striking of a player on the back of the neck with the hand—in other words the fight game's rabbit punch—should have been discussed seriously among leading gridiron men. There is absolutely no need for any such regulation. The code already bars the use of the hands in that manner, and all that is necessary is for the officials to enforce the rules now in the book.

UNDER THE PRESENT pigskin laws, a defensive player in the line is permitted to use his hands only as part of the charge. If he stands still and swings his hands at an opponent, he is using his hands illegally, even slugging. The only time he can possibly use the rabbit punch is when he is beside, directly over or past an opponent.

At such a stage it can no longer be held that the hands are being brought into play as part of the charge. Therefore, the rabbit punch is illegal under the present rules, and has been so for years. The remedy needed is not another rule, but stricter enforcement of the one now in the code.

ACCORDING TO CRITICS in the New York newspapers, the decision given to Eddie Flynn, national champion from New Orleans, over Charles Crovetta, of Uniontown, at the charity show in which amateur boxing champions appeared in New York Wednesday night, was grossly unjust. The newspaper experts agree that the verdict should have gone to Crovetta, and 8,000 booing spectators took the same view.

Published accounts say that Flynn took the first round handily, but that the two other rounds belonged to Crovetta, Flynn standing flatfooted and returning slaps for punches. The New Orleans boxer himself admitted afterward that he had put up a poor exhibition. He said his legs had gone back on him in the second round and that his punching had lost its pep. He attributed it to a recent attack of stomach trouble. This was only the fifth decision to go against Crovetta in a total of 71 bouts. He is working as an electrical engineer and plans soon to enter Penn State.

Sir Malcolm Campbell

SPECULATING AS TO the probable limit of speed while awaiting favorable conditions at Daytona Beach for his attempt to break his own world automobile record of 245.7 miles an hour, Sir Malcolm Campbell says the limit will be reached when the power becomes so tremendous that the vibration literally will blow the machinery apart. "Airplanes have traveled 416 miles an hour," he observed. "My Bluebird, rebuilt and revised, should exceed my present record of 245.7 miles an hour, but how much I cannot say. There is no sensation of speed while driving at that pace. One is entirely enclosed, you know. Otherwise the air pressure would cause instant death. The most terrible thing is the awful noise of the 1,500-horsepower motor. But that soon passes when one becomes completely deaf. That is where the real danger lies in driving, other than veering from the course or swerving too much."

GAMES TONIGHT

Pittsburgh at Buffalo.
Syracuse at Cleveland.

By CARL W. SHATTO

The same Yellow Jacket lineup that completely outclassed the Cleveland Indians here Thursday will be sent against the Buffalo Bisons in Fort Erie, Ont., tonight, Charley Reid, coach of the local skaters, announced as he and his warriors departed for the Dominion at 9:30 this morning.

This means that Gordon (Sonny Boy) Baxter will continue to guard the Pittsburgh cage, and that Eddie Rodden will be back for more International Hockey League warfare. In view of the fact that Rodden was one of the "standouts" in the Jackets 7-2 win over the Indians, the announcement regarding the diminutive center occasioned absolutely no surprise.

LONG ROAD TRIP

The Reidmen will participate in three battles before returning home, next Wednesday. After dueling with the league-leading Bisons tonight, they will appear against the Stars in Syracuse tomorrow. Tuesday will find them meeting the Tecumsehs in London.

If the Jackets can turn in two victories on the present jaunt their chances of gaining the title play-off series will be greatly enhanced. They are regarded as being at least an even-money choice against the Bisons, who have won only one game in their last six starts, and who were vanquished the last time they met the Yellow Shirts. The Jackets, on the other hand, appear to be at the very peak of their game.

Weiss is Named Yankee Secretary

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—The New York Yankees took another important step toward the establishment of a "chain store" system yesterday with the appointment of George Weiss, for the last three years vice president and general manager of Baltimore, of the International League, as assistant secretary of the club.

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: THE FAMILY LAFARQUE—In the year 768, Pepin the Short, King of the Franks, defeated Weifre, the Duke of Toulouse, subjugating his land and incorporating it in his kingdom. Many of his soldiers and retainers were rewarded with grants of land in the newly conquered territory, where they settled, established families and homesteads. The settlers then were confirmed in the possession of the soil by Charlemagne, Pepin's son and successor, and their descendants have been living on their farms ever since. The family of LaFarque, in particular, descended from a hardy retainer of the Frankish King, has been living and laboring on the same farm for the last 1,160 years, ever since the original LaFarque was endowed with the property by the father of Charlemagne in the remote eighth century of our era, as ascertained by the ancient University of Toulouse in the year 1928.

VOTED FOR LINCOLN SIX TIMES AT ONE ELECTION—W. H. Green proved his devotion and loyalty to "Father Abraham" by casting a vote for him six times in the same election. It was in 1864, when Lincoln was running against Gen. George B. McClellan. There were no registration books in those days, which facilitated matters for the old veteran. Green now lives at 3104 North Eighth street, Tacoma, Wash., and still chuckles at the memory of his industriousness on that election day.

A varied program of indoor athletic events are scheduled tonight for the followers of collegiate sports in the Tri-State district. The Pitt and Duquesne varsity basketball teams both face tough opponents, the Dukes entertaining Adrian (Mich.) College on the Bluff, while the Golden Panthers invade Annapolis to engage the Naval Academy quintet.

Down in Morgantown West Virginia stages its fourth annual indoor games with 280 athletes entered from virtually all colleges and universities in this section. Quite a number of high school and prep school stars will vie for honors.

BOXING ON TAP

Besides the basketball and track events, both Carnegie Tech and Pitt will engage in boxing matches. The Panthers are hosts to Temple University at the Pitt Stadium pavilion, while the Skibos invade New Haven, Conn., to exchange punches with the Yale Bulldogs.

Both the Carnegie Tech varsity and freshman swimming teams are slated for action this afternoon, Delaware University being the attraction in the Skibo pool.

An attractive schedule of basketball offers the collegiate supporters a chance to see some fine teams in action tonight. Davis & Elkins plays at Salem, Penn State invades West Point to meet Army, West Virginia Wesleyan tackles the Fairmont Teachers at Fairmont, Indiana and Edinboro Teachers clash at Edinboro, California Teachers play at Clarion, Slippery Rock Teachers play at Glenville Teachers, St. Vincent's and Alliance come together at Latrobe, the Pitt Freshies invade Johnstown to meet the Junior College passers, and Notre Dame is the opponent of Western Reserve at Cleveland.

TRACKMEN IN ACTION

Georgetown, Geneva, Lafayette, Marietta, Marshall, Michigan, Michigan State, Ohio Wesleyan, Pitt, Penn State, Carnegie Tech, Princeton, Ohio State, Catholic University, Temple, Villanova, West Virginia and West Virginia Wesleyan have entered athletes in the West Virginia games.

Besides this array of college talent, Morgantown fans will see some excellent high school and prep school stars in action. Among the district schools entered are Shady Side Academy, Langley High School, Mercersburg Academy, Washington Township, Uniontown High School, and Pitt, Tech and Duquesne freshies.

The Pitt Junior College of Johnstown, Pa., will meet the Duke Frosh in the preliminary to the Duke-Adrian tilt at 7 o'clock.

Following are the pairings for tonight's Pitt-Temple bouts:

115 pounds, Pete D'Alessandro, Temple, vs. Billy McCarrell, Pitt; 125 pounds, Justin Kehleman, Temple, vs. Joe Namila, Pitt; 135 pounds, Emanuel Fischoff, Temple, vs. Willie Schempf, Pitt; 145 pounds, Nicholas Demus, Temple, vs. Mario Rubbo, Pitt; 155 pounds, Capt. Irving Kutcher, Temple, vs. Jack Schricker, Pitt; 165 pounds, Samuel Neil, Temple, vs. Francis Seigel, Pitt; 175 pounds, Joe Haubrick, Temple, vs. Warren Heller, Pitt.

Officials—Referee, Ralph Shinton; timekeeper, Dr. J. B. Sutherland; announcer, William Brinker.

BRUNETS KEEP SKATE TITLE

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Pierre and Andree Brunet, of France, last night won the figure skating contest for Paris, a feature of the third winter Olympic program. Second honors went to Sherwin C. Badger and Beatrix Loughran, of New York.

Hungarian teams won third and fourth honors, Laszlo Szollas and Emilia Rotter capturing third place and Sandor Szalay and Olga Orgonista fourth.

In winning, the Brunets, married since shortly after the winter Olympics at St. Moritz, in 1928, retained the honors they gained at that time.

To the worry and strain of weather more suitable for May-pole dancing, there was added last night the comic opera relief of a set of judges choosing the wrong winner of the Olympic ski jumping championship event, and then waiting three hours before announcing the name of the other fellow.

By a recount, over which arguments lasted far into the night, the judges of the leaping contest on Intervales Hill decided that Birger Ruud, 19-year-old Norwegian, and not Hans Beck, equally young Norwegian, from the tiny town of Kongsberg, had won the international title with jumps of 218 and 226 feet.

The United States has 78 points, Norway 68, Canada 36, and Sweden 27, with the rest scattered among eight nations.

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Bea Gottleib, of New York, won the Miami women's golf championship yesterday with a 4-and-2 victory over Mrs. Joseph Rydzek of Buffalo, N. Y., in the 36-hole final round.

GEORGETOWN BUMPS PITT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Georgetown came out of a 10-game losing streak last night to beat Pitt, 33 to 30. The Panthers held their hosts to a hard battle throughout, but failed to get beyond a three-basket lead. At the half they were only a lone point behind Georgetown, with the score 18 to 17.

Tom Carolan starred for the victors by directing the drive which started near the end of the first half, and gave the galleries an exhibition between the two husky squads of cutting, blocking and spectacular shooting.

Pitt launched a vigorous assault in the second half with Lawry, Kowallis and Smith carrying the battle beneath the Georgetown basket. Lawry led the Pitt scoring with eight tallies, followed by Kowallis and Smith with five each and Wrobleski and Hughes with four each. The lineup:

Georgetown	Fg	F	Pt	Pitt	Fg	F	Pt
King,f	3	0	6	Wrobleski,f	2	0	4
M'Laughlin,f	0	1	1	Lawry,f	4	0	8

Eddie Towns, Noted Links Pro, Dies

Eddie Towns, at one time one of the finest professional golfers in the land, died yesterday at 8:40 a. m., at 1435 Dormont avenue, and funeral services are to be held tomorrow afternoon from the Laughlin funeral home, Washington road, Mt. Lebanon, at 2 o'clock. Interment will be made Monday morning in the Mt. Lebanon Cemetery. Towns had been ill for more than a year.

Towns, who served several district clubs during his brilliant career, including Allegheny, Shannopin and Ambridge, for several years held the important post of private instructor to Edward B. McLean, Washington publisher. He scored a hole in one during the national open at Skokie in 1922, and was a consistent big-tourney qualifier while in his prime. His many friends throughout the nation will mourn his passing.

LOCAL POLO TEAMS PLAY

Three of the four teams of the Pittsburgh Polo League will see action tonight, the Shady Side and the 107th Artillery teams fighting it out in Hunt Armory and the Vangs invading Youngstown, O., for two games with the Mill Creek Riding and Polo Club.

The Vangs originally were scheduled to meet the artillery team but decided to stage the two games in Youngstown tonight and tomorrow night in preference to a latter date.

With Schenley tripping Peabody, 46-16, and Allegheny beating Langley, 30-17, leaders in the sectional races of the City Senior League easily kept their places yesterday. Connelley Trade trumped Westinghouse, 19-10, and South walloped Fifth Avenue, 42-23, in other Section 1 tilts, while South Hills toppled Carrick, 33-14, and Perry won from Oliver, 27-20 in Section 2. Taylor Allderdice idle, beat Shady Side Academy, 34-20, in a non-league affray.

Gladstone, Latimer, Herron Hill and Schenley won City Junior League games.

The W. P. I. A. L. contesting waxed as fierce as ever, with victories being returned by McKees Rocks, Mt. Lebanon, Wilkinsburg, Charleroi, Monessen, Leetsdale, Duquesne, Aliquippa, Beaver Falls, Bellevue, Swissvale, Crafton, Braddock, Ambridge, East Pittsburgh, Washington and Midland.

St. Mary of the Mount, Millvale and Edgewood won non-league contests, while triumphs were registered by the girls' teams of Turtle Creek, Aspinwall and Millvale.

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

A spectacular windup of a spectacular campaign looms today as embattled entries in the Class A sector of the Pittsburgh Squash Racquets Association Inter-Club League tangle in contests that may drop the local team title any of four ways. For right now, with only two contests remaining on the season's card, Pittsburgh Golf Club, P. A. A., Keystone A. C. and University Club remain definitely in the chase for honors, and a score or more of ambitious racqueteers cling tenaciously to the hope that before nightfall the crown now adorning the Winged Head of the P. A. A. will prove the reward of their respective efforts of the winter.

This afternoon's bill requires appearance of K. A. C. in the P. A. A. courts with University Club jaunting to Sewickley Heights for combat with Allegheny. The Golf Club host, reposing in first place, has completed its slate.

TITLE QUEST NEAR END

It would seem that P. A. A. and University Club constitute the chief menace to the position of the Golfers. The Winged Head men, by trimming K. A. C. at 5-0 can attain the top of the list beyond possibility of even a deadlock. A 4-1 decision over the Keystoners would tie the Red and Gray with the Golf Club, with prospect of a tri-cornered affair in the event that University Club should at the same time whitewash Allegheny.

The varsity outfit though at present a notch to the rear of P. A. A. merits strong consideration by virtue of the fact that the task of blanking the Sewickley delegation should certainly be no more difficult than the P. A. A. minimum contract of registering a 4-1 triumph at the expense of Keystone—this despite the angle that U. C. will be competing afield as P. A. A. performs at home.

K. A. C. TASK HOPELESS

Likelihood of a K. A. C. championship success is quite remote as the Downtown luminaries must submerge P. A. A. 5-0 to forge onto a par with the Golf Club continent, and unless all local precedent is to be shattered utterly to bits, the Winged Head combine will suffer no such an overwhelming setback in its own bailiwick.

STRUB BEATS DON M'LEOD

ERIE, Pa., Feb. 13.—Maxie Strub, Erie lightweight, fighting his first bout before a home crowd since last May, punched out a decision over Don McLeod, Detroit, in the 10-round main event here last night. Strub, strictly a right-hand puncher, injured his right hand in the fourth round and his most potent weapon was practically useless during the remainder of the fight. McLeod, however, was outclassed from the start. Strub weighed 138, McLeod 135½.

Young Rudy, Charleroi, Pa., outpointed Roger Shea, Cleveland southpaw, in a grueling battle over the six-round route. Rudy floored Shea for a count of eight in the second round with a right to the heart. The knockdown gave Rudy the edge. Each weighed 149 pounds.

TOMMY PAUL WINNER

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor

Tommy Paul of Buffalo, ranking featherweight boxer, defeated Joey Thomas of the North Side and formerly of Chicago in the 10-round windup in Eddie Kaphan's arena in Addison street last night.

The bout was not spectacular. Both boxed carefully over the route, with Paul the harder hitter. Tommy found the rangy blond a well-seasoned opponent and had his hands full making a showing worthy of his reputation. On the other hand the smaller Paul, weaving and bobbing and ducking, offered Thomas very little in the way of a target.

The best punch of the fight was landed by Paul early in the sixth round. It was a left hook to the jaw that bothered Thomas momentarily. There were no knockdowns, and the bout lacked for action at times due to the wariness and cautious maneuvering of both men.

Thomas weighed 125¼ pounds, and his opponent 124½.

WILSON STOPS WARNER

A corking knockout victory for Jackie Wilson, East End Negro youngster, 123½, over Johnny Warner of Clairton, 125, after 1 minute 35 seconds of the sixth round of the scheduled eight-round semi-final featured the show. Wilson was too fast and hit too straight for his opponent and dropped him for a count of six with a right to the jaw in the fifth round and sent him down for the final count in the following session with a similar blow. Warner rolled over and tried to get up at seven, but fell back.

Mickey Solomon, of New Castle, 136½, defeated Jimmy Moore, Hill Negro, 135¾, in the second bout of six rounds, a slugfest, and Jimmy Gilligan, 118½, won handily over Petey Jahn, a local rival, 118¾, in the opener.

Red Robinson refereed all of the bouts and Freddie Lux and Jock Simco were the judges. It was announced that Billy Holt and Tiger Joe Randall, local Negro welterweight rivals, will box the main bout of next Friday night's show.

Fight Results

At Kaphan Arena—Tommy Paul defeated Joey Thomas, 10 rounds; Jackie Wilson knocked out Johnny Warner, 6 rounds; Mickey Solomon defeated Jimmy Moore, 6 rounds; Jimmy Gilligan defeated Petey Jahn, 4 rounds.

CENTRAL LOOP TITLE AT STAKE

By TOM BIRKS

With the Central League championship at stake, Clan Douglas and Union Switch and Signal are set to battle 90 minutes of hectic soccer at Westinghouse High School Stadium this afternoon.

With a protest pending, Clan Douglas must win the game in order to force the Swissvalers into a playoff. Dunn and his mates need only a tie to nail the pennant to the Swissvale mast.

Manager Jack Campbell, of Swissvale, is confident Angus McNair and his mates will win today's game. Swissvale has been very fortunate to field the same team week after week, while on the other hand Manager Frank Mincher has been fighting hard to keep a team on the field. Injuries and players leaving the district have been the big bugbear to the Clansmen's chances to repeat.

The Clansmen will have at least four juniors in the lineup, and it will be interesting to see how they react under fire.

Douglas' big problem will be to stop McNair, Eicher, Marshall and Nelson. This is a good goal-getting aggregation, and plenty of speed can be flashed. Since Craig left for Cleveland, McDonald has been pushed hard.

Two other games will be played this afternoon. Gladden goes to Houston in the Panhandle loop, while Glenn A. C. tangles with Ambridge at the Bridge Works grounds.

DREYFUSSIANS

Stories They Tell of the Late Barney Dreyfuss

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The late Barney Dreyfuss' character, like that of many a fine French soldier who rubbed shoulders with our Doughboys, was a contradiction.

"One minute you're in love with him and the next you feel like punching him on the jaw," is the way one Yank expressed himself as he touched upon the traits of the hard-to-understand Poilu.

To illustrate, a fan would walk up to Dreyfuss with the idea of offering Barney sympathy concerning a player who was playing poorly. The rooter would open up by "panning" the player. Instead of "yessing" the other fellow, Dreyfuss would retort in this fashion:

"Let him alone—quit riding him—he's just having some tough luck."

Another fan might approach him and remark:

"What a great player Paul Waner is. He's having a fine season, isn't he?"

"He ought to—I'm paying him enough to have a good season!" would be the retort.

In other words, if you wished to figure Dreyfuss you had to proceed on the theory of contrasts or opposites.

It was Charley Grimm who gave the most eloquent appraisal of the Pittsburgh magnate. Grimm started off in Pittsburgh as a very mediocre batsman. In the early days of his career here he had many an argument with Barney, whose remarks seldom were complimentary. Eventually, however, Grimm became a real force at the plate. He led the club in batting one season, his mark being in the neighborhood of .340.

HE SAID I WAS GREAT AN THEN--- GREAT FELLOW !

The fans cheered Grimm daily, but there were few compliments from the front office, although Lefty didn't expect any. Nevertheless, he was destined to hear some office chatter on his remarkable work.

As Grimm entered the office one pay day, Dreyfuss looked up from his desk and remarked:

"Well, you're hittin' good."

Before Lefty could acknowledge his thanks, Dreyfuss followed through with:

"But you ought to—the ball's lively."

Grimm's comment on the speech of his boss rang the bell.

"Barney is a wonder," quoth Charles. "He can pat you on the back and give you a swift kick with the same motion."

CELTICS DOWN BROOKLYN BY 32-25 SCORE

By JULIUS LEVIN

A crowd of more than 2,000 basketball fans, among them several hundred collegiate and high school coaches and players, were treated to a flashy exhibition game at Motor Square Garden last night when the Cleveland Rosenblum-Celtics defeated the Brooklyn Americans 32 to 25.

The Rosenblum-Celtics, including in their lineup Davey Banks and Pete Barry at forwards, Cookie Cunningham at center and Dutch Dehnert and Nat Hickey at the guard posts, took the lead at the outset and maintained it throughout the 40 minutes of speedy action.

HICKEY SCORES WELL

Hickey made a decided hit with the basketball throng as he shot one field goal after another in the first half to give the winners a comfortable margin. Hickey made five shots at the start of the game and all went through the hoop. In fact, Hickey made six double-deckers in his first seven attempts at the hoop. The Cleveland flash led the scorers with eight baskets and two fouls for a total of 18 points.

Ray Kennedy, guard of the Americans, was not far behind Hickey in effectiveness. He accounted for 12 of the Americans' points as a result of shooting six field goals.

Dutch Dehnert as usual thrilled the crowd by the manner in which he engineered the famous pivot play.

In a rousing preliminary between two 10-year-old midget teams, the Urban Abbs' Trinity Cardinals defeated Bud Leech's Trinity Hawks, 16 to 5. MacCallum and Parker starred as the boys gave a fine account of themselves.

CLINIC AT DUKES' GYM

This afternoon the Rosenblum-Celtics will stage a basketball clinic for high school coaches and players at Duquesne University. The clinic will get under way at 2 o'clock.

Tonight the famous professional aggregation will appear in a benefit game in North Braddock, engaging an all-star team lined up by Johnny Reed, Scott High School coach. Reed has mapped out a zone defense which he hopes may trouble the pros. The game, a benefit affair for the unemployed of the North Braddock district, will start at 9 o'clock in the Scott High School gymnasium. The lineup:

HOLLYWOOD

Gossip About Events In Film Capital

Studio Purchases New Yarn As Starring Material For Buster Keaton

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, by King Features Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 13.

Likely novels are grabbed off by Hollywood while they're still proofs. Through such a deal, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer is able to announce the purchase of Clarence Buddington Kelland's "Footlight" just as the first chapter of the serial makes its appearance in a national magazine.

Buster Keaton

"Footlights" is intended for Buster Keaton and probably will be his next picture. This makes two stories on tap. "The Unexpected Husband" having been announced several days ago. In the Kelland film, Buster plays a college professor who inherits a fortune, backs a Broadway show, gets mixed up with a jewel robbery and undergoes an amusing series of misadventures.

Lawrence Johnson already is at work on the screen treatment and Edward Sedgewick will direct the picture as the first assignment under his new contract. Larry Weingarten will supervise.

AND SO TO GOSSIP

Jim Tully's new novel will be called "Laughter in Hell." he's written a 30,000-word outline of it... From what I hear, the Lupe Velez-Randolph Scott romance isn't as cold as some people think ...Victor McLaglen has the most amazing estate. He's installed a complete operating room, surgical equipment and all...Rex Lease has a birthday today...

Vilma Banky

Saw Ivor Novello escorting Billie Burke onto the "Grand Hotel" set at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Novello's comedy, "The Truth Game," is Bob Montgomery's new picture ... The premiere of George Arliss' picture, "The Man Who Played God," failed to develop any rumors of new romances. Bette Davis was with Irwin Gelsey again, likewise Vivienne Osborne and Ivan Lebedeff and Austin Parker and Thelma Todd. Am I wrong or is Thelma a little plumper these days? ...Saw Vilma Banky and Rod La Rocque again. They've come out of retirement to attend several openings of late. Gene Dannis, the mental marvel, watched the crowds come in. Says she gets a kick out of it.

WALLACE MOURNED

All over Hollywood you hear expressions of shock and regret over the death of Edgar Wallace, the novelist.

Mr. Wallace made good in Hollywood, as he did at everything else he turned his hand to. From the time of his arrival, on December 1, he had written six film stories, three of which are definitely accepted by radio. They are "The Beast," "Soul Hunters" and "The Man Without a Face."

The amazing facility of the English writer already had become a legend in Hollywood. For example, a reporter called Wallace recently, asking for an interview. When he arrived, 20 minutes later, a 1,000-word article was completed and waiting for him.

Ubangis Host To Newsies

Since the announcement was made that the Ubangi savages, those strange natives of the African Congo with their notoriously thick, protruding duck-billed lips, are to entertain 3,000 carrier boys and newsboys of the Sun-Telegraph organization tomorrow afternoon, there has been a tremendous lot of excitement among the boys and they are getting ready to pop a lot of questions that may stagger those strange people. "How come you are a prince?" "Where do you park those big lips at night?" "What's the idea of the needle point teeth?" and questions such as these will probably come in the rapid fire interviews.

The Sun-Telegraph, however, was glad to accept the offer of the management to let those youngsters view the Ubangis and their native village now on view at Motor Square Garden on account of the educational value of the exhibition. These queer natives will put on a special show of songs and dances for the boys. The doors of Motor Square Garden will open promptly at 3 o'clock and admission will be by ticket only. In the meantime the Ubangis and their unusual exhibition are attracting a lot of attention in Pittsburgh. They will be here for another week.

MUSIC

Syria Mosque

Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra and Eunice Norton

PROGRAM

Symphony No. 5, in C minor, Op. 67 .... Beethoven
Concerto for Piano and Orchestra, in A minor, Op. 54 .... Schumann
Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks .... Richard Strauss
Polka and Fugue, from "Schwanda" ...... Weinberger

The Minneapolis Symphony Orchestra gave us its annual concert in Syria Mosque last night introducing a new director. Judging from the enthusiastic applause tendered him, Eugene Ormandy will be a favorite in Pittsburgh.

Mr. Lissfelt

Ormandy's conducting has decided characteristics. He has the energy and force of youth. He, like many other directors nowadays, likes to find little patterns in a score that others have not made so prominent, and makes these motifs speak as if they were all-important, forgetting too often thereby the larger panel of the composition. His tone is raw throughout, and if the Beethoven Symphony did sound original in his reading it was because a carpenter, not the muse, was whispering into his ear.

The program lacked variety, for the symphony and the concerto are much the same form, and Strauss and Weinberger are half-brothers in orchestration. Weinberger's music, both the polka and the fugue from his popular opera "Schwanda," is a most welcome novelty for orchestral programs; it is gay and vigorous and clearly written.

Eunice Norton appeared as soloist, playing the Schumann Piano Concerto. Her playing is marked by rapid-fire technique, tone not always adequate to compete with orchestra, and grimaces which can not replace emotion which her music does not express. She was well received and played a Bach arrangement as encore.

Music Lovers' Hour

Carnegie Music Hall

PROGRAM

Symphony No. 8, in B minor, "The Unfinished" .... Schubert
Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 1 in E flat major .. Liszt
Waltzes from "Der Rosenkavalier" .... Richard Strauss
Symphonic Poem No. 3, "Les Preludes" .... Liszt

The fourth and last Music Lover's Hour of this season, which replaces the former Saturday matinee and children's concert by visiting orchestras, was played by the Minneapolis Orchestra in Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon. Eugene Ormandy conducted and kept safely to conventional readings. When directors play so many scores from memory and leave so much to be desired, one wonders whether referring to notes might not often be a stimulant to more musical readings.

During the Strauss "Rosenkavaliere" Waltzes there was many an admirable touch in tone and rhythm that presages excellent development for this new director.

Eunice Norton played the Liszt E Flat Major Piano Concerto, which really demands man power to surmount the difficulties of its octaves and to clarify its brilliant scales.

Das Gelaut zu Speier .... Ludwig Senfl (1492)
O Praise Ye God ... Tschaikowsky
Two German Christmas Songs .... Albert Kranz
Praise to the Lord .. Peter Sohren

The Lutheran Inner Mission Society presented the St. Olaf Choir in Carnegie Music Hall last night, and in spite of other important musical attractions there was an excellent audience. F. Melius Christiansen led his singers with a sure hand through the contrapuntal difficulties of his choruses and motets as always before.

This choir is one of the outstanding choral societies in America. It sings without accompaniment, and, considering the ever-changing personnel necessitated by the changing student body in Minnesota's university, Christiansen works wonders in pitch and nuance. More than that, he is creating among impressionable young men and women a reverence for and understanding of often forgotten music and composers.

His programs never fail to include Bach, older writers of folk music, some of the great Russians, and always some contemporary composers.

Walter Winchell On Broadway

And They Shoot Dice!

Dot Sauter, who winds up her letter in this wise: "Just The Bass Player of Babe Egan's 'Redheads,'" tells of a lass named Gracie Barrie, who carried a portable radio with her while on tour.

Miss Barrie, says Dot, always made sure to ask the various hotel clerks what sort of electrical current they featured, as her radio was for Direct Current.

The pay-off in howls came at a Minneapolis hostelry when Miss Barrie ankled in at a tardy hour, and said to the dope behind the desk:

"Do you have A. C. or D. C. Current here?"

The clerk looked over his rack and replied:

"No, madam, neither of them are registered!"

As If We Didn't Know

And these days, observes Dana Cotie, the night club racket consists mainly of managers squawking over the empty tables.

Off Key

Several hundred clergymen, who were asked for puffs on "Black Tower," a mystery play, were mailed tickets for the show. Many returned the seats, asking for another date, but the classic came when one pastor wrote:

"If it is all the same to you, would you mind changing these tickets for a pair to 'Of Thee I Sing?'"

Gag

George White tells the story of the comedian who called on his lawyer to make out his will. The comic began dictating to the attorney as follows:

"What dough I have, if any, such as it is, or is liable to be, that is to say—"

The legal light broke in:

"Listen, Mr. Actor, that's my business. I'll put that in legal terms."

"I know you can," retorted the comic, "but I want to leave them laughing!"

The Humor of Tragedy

You probably read how a West 55th Streeter leaped out of a window to his end the other day.

Louis Alter, the song writer, dwells in the same shack, and he is in the habit of having his breakfast brought to him from downstairs. Alter pays at the end of the week.

That morning, however, the waiter demanded his money in advance.

"Why?" asked Louis. "I never paid in advance before!"

"We got new rules," said the waiter, pointing to the lifeless form in the street below. "You can't depend on people any more!"

O, Mr. Wilstach!

Suggested for the simile dictionary: David Alber's: Empty as zero without the rim. Myles Bell: Necessary as stage money in a burlesque show.

The Last Stand

I lunch at the corner cigar store,
At a druggist's I buy all my hats,
I get "coffee and—"
At a newspaper stand—
A barber shop sells me cravats.

A department store washes my auto,
A doctor prescribed for my shoes;
They've changed things aroun'
All over the town—
But the speakeasies still sell the booze.

—Norman Sullivan.

Heheheh

"Dear Winchell," writes Al Schwartz, "I hope all your children go to college and have to sell bonds for a living! . . . The Greeks had a word for it—but they never said it was around the corner."

For Women Only

The Western Front is not going to be too quiet in a day or two or three. For the Clark Gables have decided to come to a perfect understanding, as it is tragically called.

The fact is that Clark wants the divorce and has retained Loeb, Walker & Loeb as his arguers. An attorney named Harris will represent Mrs. Gable.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

NEW YORK, N. Y., Feb. 13.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Will Rogers

The worst thing that has happened to us in a long time is that this is an election year. Every statesman wants to vote appropriations, but is afraid to vote taxes. The oratory of Washington is on "reconstruction" but the heart of Washington is on November 4, 1932. We never will get anywhere with our finances till we pass a law saying, "Every time we appropriate something we got to pass another bill along with it stating where the money is coming from." Yours, WILL.

Geneva Meet In Hearst News

THE GLOBE TROTTER

The opening of the conference on disarmament in Geneva is pictured in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News, showing in the Penn, Fulton and other theaters. Sixty nations have representatives in attendance and the proceedings begin with Arthur Henderson, former British foreign minister, president of the council, delivering the initial speech. Hugh Gibson, American ambassador to Belgium, represents the United States.

Thrills are shown in the Olympic winter games at Lake Placid. The women's 1,000-meter skating race is won by Miss Elizabeth Dubois, of Chicago. It is a neck-and-neck contest between Miss Dubois and Miss Jean Wilson, of Canada, to within 50 feet of the finish line, where Miss Wilson collapses and the American girl glides over the line. All Olympic records are shattered by the Stevens brothers—J. Hubert and Curtis—of Saranac, in winning the final two-man bobsled race and defeating the Swiss team. Their amazing speed and the terrific chances they take bring gasps from the spectators.

Next is shown the 10,000-meter skating race won by Irving Jaffee, of New York. There are graphic descriptions of the events by the Globe Trotter.

Will Rogers, the American humorist, returns from the Chinese front and his trip around the world, and is seen and heard as he calls upon his old friend, Speaker Garner, of the House of Representatives, in Washington. Quips come thick and fast from the two celebrities so that a group of legislators gathered to greet the American wit is kept in roars of laughter.

Capt. Charles Smyth, Canadian oarsman, gives Paris a thrill when he launches his canoe into the Seine by jumping off a bridge with it.

A children's fashion show held in New York City, carnival time on the Italian Riviera, and pictures from the air and water at a celebration in Tampa, Fla., are other subjects.

German Lady In Debut

By MILDRED FILLMORE

Lil Dagover, dark and willowy lady from Berlin, who is one of the more recent foreign importations to knock on the Hollywood door, is appearing in the Davis in her first American film. It is titled "The Woman From Monte Carlo."

Fraulein Dagover portrays the role of a flashy lady with a past, who marries a French naval officer for the safety and honor of the future. In posture she affects the Garbo slink. Vocally, she registers with an effective accent, now and then going German entirely.

The fraulein isn't very true to her seaman husband. But when disgrace threatens him she redeems herself gloriously. Then away she goes back to her old and "fast" life.

There is a good battle scene, between two warships. Boom, boom go the guns and the exploding shells fall all around.

Walter Huston turns military in this one and he does a good job of the officer-husband. In fact, all the cast, including John Wray, George Stone and Warren Williams, satisfy.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Fred Stone, who stopped his show, "Smiling Faces," because of the death of his mother, will resume the Washington engagement tonight, and will be with the company when it opens for a week in the Alvin Monday. Stone's daughter, Paula, is co-featured with her father. The usual matinees will be given.

John Gilbert, beginning today, will be the Sheridan Square feature for three days in "West of Broadway," the cast also including Lois Moran and El Brendel. Vaudeville is out.

* * *

"Charlie Chan's Chance," with Warner Oland as the Oriental detecatif, will be the three-day Enright screen feature from today on. No more variety on the stage.

* * *

Small Timer says a pessimist is one who believes his likker supply will be cut off every time a big still is seized.

The Harris today begins a new week of cinematics only, two screen features being offered, "The Speckled Band," Sherlock Holmes tale, and Lloyd Hughes in "Air Eagles."

Critics Have Their Say About the New Shows

IN THE THEATERS

Happy!

Court Trials Lure Actor

Jean Hersholt, who has played everything from kindly old fathers to hardened villains, is a "trial fiend." In his opinion, attending criminal trials to watch gangsters, analyze spectators and officials and to study reactions, enables him to play roles with a full knowledge of the character he is playing.

In "The Beast of the City," a Cosmopolitan production, soon to be released in Pittsburgh, Hersholt plays Belmonte, a sinister underworld czar, perhaps the grimmest character of his entire screen career.

"I remember a fellow I saw on trial once," Hersholt confided, "and I recalled his mannerisms, his tricks on the stand. From them I judged his psychology fairly well. When I go to trials, it is not out of curiosity. I view the court room as a sort of lecture hall."

"The Beast of the City" is a story of the "inside" workings of police forces in American cities. Walter Huston, remembered for his brilliant roles in "Abraham Lincoln" and "The Star Witness," is seen as a police chief battling to uphold the law against corrupt politics and other obstacles. A dramatic romance is woven into the plot.

Charles Brabin directed the new picture, in which Jean Harlow has the leading feminine role. Others in the cast include Wallace Ford, Tully Marshall, John Miljan, J. Carroll Naish and Dorothy Peterson.

Film of Barry Play To Have Preview

A private screening of Philip Barry's "Tomorrow and Tomorrow," starring Ruth Chatterton with Paul Lukas, will be held in the Warner at 8:30 o'clock Sunday evening. Among the audience will be state, city and county officials, newspapermen, doctors and lawyers.

Wilkinsburg Board Drops 15 Teachers

Fifteen Wilkinsburg school teachers were notified yesterday that their contracts for the 1932-33 term would not be renewed, according to report. No official announcement of the cut in the borough's faculty was made. The action is believed to have followed a resolution of the borough school board providing a cut in the budget. The reported cut will save the community $18,000.

Cable Censorship Lifted in Mexico

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 13.—(AP.)—Western Union officials have announced that government censorship, established in their cable office two weeks ago, had been lifted on all ordinary commercial messages.

'Arrowsmith' Is Triumph In Penn

By GEORGE SEIBEL

When Hollywood does something big in honest and intelligent fashion, the effort should be applauded by the honest intelligentsia. Well, Hollywood has done just that thing in "Arrowsmith," the picture made from Sinclair Lewis' novel by the same title, which is now at the Penn Theater. The honesty begins with the title—they have not changed it to "Tropic Love" or "The Serum of Life" or anything like that. Sinclair Lewis would know his book by the title as well as by the story faithfully followed in the scenario.

George Seibel

I could hardly believe my eyes when I saw sweet little Helen Hayes die of the plague. Ordinarily the director would have shown the colored doctor reaching Martin Arrowsmith somehow just in the nick of time to warn him of his wife's danger, and we'd have seen Arrowsmith on a galloping horse riding through the night and arriving just in the nick of time to administer the serum that saves sweet Helen Hayes, smiling radiantly from a spotless pillow in the final fadeout.

THIS IS DIFFERENT

But this picture is different. Four great players are in the picture—Ronald Colman, A. E. Anson, Richard Bennett and Helen Hayes. They do remarkable work, especially Helen Hayes and Richard Bennett. Not the acting, however, but the infinite detail of the production and the conscientious devotion to the author's idea make the greatness of this picture.

"Arrowsmith" is a masterpiece of epic sweep and grim veracity.

GALENOS ARE GREAT

In the stage show there is also something superlative—the acrobatic flights of the Galeno troupe. With their triple somersaults, one of them landing with one foot on the up-raised sole of another, they were the marvels of the bill.

It's a good bill all through, with Bert Frohman singing and clowning happily, while Maureen Rio is a dancer both graceful and agile, and that eccentric pair, Dugan and Hadley, twisting their legs into terpsichorean bowknots.

Hoover Proves Franklin's Thrift Idea Was Wrong

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Government crusade against the hoarder who keeps his dimes in his vest pocket so they won't jingle.

The string-savers and wrapping-paper misers are fleeing to the woods.

The secret service captured a stamp collector and will classify him at sunrise.

Now seems that Ben Franklin was wrong when he preached thrift and that the only reason the sluggard should go to the ant is because the ant goes to the picnics.

Bickford Gets The Girl

The Lois Moran the talk screen is developing, bears little resemblance to the nice little heroine she was in the silents. Again, in "The Men in Her Life," new Warner film, she has one of those more mature, sophisticated roles and she carries it quite well. She is developing a neat flare for emotional acting.

In this film a bogus count doesn't do right by our heroine and she finds herself stranded. Then she meets a retired bootlegger, in the he-mannish person of Charles Bickford. He has the role of a retired gangster-bootlegger. And the sight of him dancing in a tuxedo is a sight indeed.

Well, he'd like to be a gentleman and he'd like to marry the heroine. But he finds the racket of being a gentleman is tough, and he imagines the girl is too good for him.

Eventually, though, after the count and another young wealthy fellow are erased from the running, it is the happy fadeout for Charles and Lois.

The picture has a murder, laughs and some tawdry dialogue.

Hatchet Man Active in Stanley

By CLARENCE E. GRUNDISH

Edward G. Robinson comes smashing through with another forceful portrayal in the title role of "The Hatchet Man," Stanley film. Here is a melodrama of tongs on the loose, with yellow men scurrying to safety and hatchets slamming through the air.

Action begins in the old San Francisco Chinatown of 15 years ago, skips over the years to the present day and then jumps over the Pacific to China.

The production is a motion picture that is true to itself. It has motion. It is excitement all the way. And it builds into a climax that whacks you between the eyes.

IT HAS PUNCH!

To get the biggest punch from the film, the less you know about the plot the better. So we'll turn oriental in this respect and keep silent.

The direction is keen, the photography is good, and the supporting cast has the situation well in hand. And the makeup art is at its best. Loretta Young, as the heroine, is completely Chinese until she speaks.

Leslie Fenton does an effective part as a combination Chinese gigolo-gunman. And the gentleman, name unknown to us, who has the part of the tong president is oriental all the way through.

ORCHARD MENACE

But it is Mr. Robinson, of course, who is the figure supreme. And if you'd turn him loose in a cherry tree orchard he would make George Washington look like a piker.

Hollywood's influence is felt on the stage also, due to the personal appearance of Sue Carol and Nick Stuart. They make a pleasant couple. Joe and Jane McKenna come along with a lot of rough-and-tumble stuff, dragging Dick Powell into their horseplay. They're funny. The Three Swifts are swift in the dumbbell tossing.

Organist Bernie Armstrong and Orchestra Leader Dave Broudy develop some variety by trading jobs.

150,000 in Chicago Vote 20 Pct. Pay Cut

CHICAGO, Feb. 13.—(Universal.)—Thirty-one building trade unions representing 150,000 workmen yesterday accepted a voluntary wage reduction of 20 per cent for one year "to stimulate business and relieve unemployment."

TELL IT TO SALLY -:- -:- Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day -:- -:- By SALLY MARTIN

What Causes a Husband to Tire of His Wife?

"What can a wife do when her husband is tired of her?"

That's the heartbroken question that Anne is asking us today. She can't see what's wrong—why her husband doesn't care for her as he did when they were married, five years ago.

They're both still young—healthy, strong—there are no children or heavy cares to dull the edge of living. They should still be in their honeymoon.

Yet everything she does seems to irritate him. He doesn't phone her from the office any more ... or bring her little surprise gifts. He stays away from her as long as he can. And if she calls him up he snaps at her.

"Why?

"I do everything I can to make him happy," she sobs. "I haven't changed. I know I'm just as I was when he married me."

Can you tell her what's wrong?

"Dear Sally Martin:

"What can a wife do when her husband is tired of her? Do you really believe she should just continue along 'until death do us part' when that happens?

"My husband supports me, but only because he has a fine sense of duty. And everything I say or do seems to be wrong. Even the simplest remark will irritate him. If I say the weather is fine, it seems to call forth an argument that it is rotten.

WANTS ADVICE

"Everything about me that he used to think was nice now irritates him. He stays at his office longer than he has to and if I call him up he snaps at me.

"I haven't changed. I know I'm just the same as I was when he married me, but he just seems to have tired of me, and when that happens I guess nothing can bring back love, can it?

"Unfortunately, I can't have children, and he doesn't want to adopt one, so that's out. I'm only 26—we've been married five years—and I'm wondering if I have to spend the rest of my life like this. Or whether it wouldn't be better to obtain my freedom while I am young and try to find happiness elsewhere. I still love him, but I've got some pride.

"Can you tell me what's wrong and what I should do?"

ANNE

You wonder what's wrong? Why he doesn't love you as he once did? Well, you're not alone in your wonder, lady. For about 900 out of every thousand other wives are probably wondering with you.

Why does the big boy's ardor cool?

Why doesn't he love you in December as he did in May?

For exactly the same reason, ladies, that he doesn't continue to love kiddie cars, all-day suckers, beanies, roller skates and pet toads. Humans grow, ladies, and their tastes grow with them ... or should. And one's taste in love or life at 21 is quite a different thing than one's taste in love or life—five years later.

PLENTY HAS HAPPENED

For consider: while the Dear Little Woman is sitting around the house keeping her girlish shape and technique intact, what has been happening to the young husband?

Plenty has been happening to him.

He has been growing into a man. He has been fighting a man's world. He has been acquiring man interests—and having 729,853,806 fool kid notions kicked out of him.

Five years ago he was a lazy, hazy youngster, full of romance and conceit. Today he's a hardened, serious adult—with up-to-date ideas and a snappy technique. And his associates are adults. He spends his days with lively, intelligent, competent human beings—people who made a zestful business of living. Every one of these people are living today—facing problems of 1932. And after eight hours of that, he goes home—to what?

He goes home to 1926.

He goes home to "the girl he married—"

STOP BOASTING

To the days when he was still wet behind the ears—

He goes home to the girl he married—who "hasn't changed" in five years of living. Who has the same notions at 26 that she had at 21 ... the same line of baby talk ... the same giggles ... the same childish meaningless talk.

Snap out of it, lady. Stop boasting that you "haven't changed" and proceed to do so—pronto! Grow up! Get different—and current! Be your age! Make yourself worth coming home to and he'll come home.

'WHAT WILL HE BE?' -:- -:-

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

What will he be like—how tall, how short, how good, how wise, how clever, how foolish, how little? What to live with? How worthy to love? Dark or fair? Able or "wavery?" Who? And when? And what?

If it were true that each man's—and woman's of course—"Fate were bound about their neck" when first they were born, then long ago there would have been discovered by some bright human the secret of how to see ahead into the future just what this Fate might be! The life and fate ahead is like a treasure chest whose jewels are doled out one by one. But you cannot see through the lid—and you cannot open it—for you have no key. This is what the fatalist thinks—all life is there if you could see it, labeled, ready for you. The treasure chest, fitted out for you alone, with old Time giving you your due from it as the proper day comes round. Now if that were true, Jack and Jill, long ago someone would have found a magic formula to see through the chest. And the seer's crystal ball would have been a thriving reality. If that were true, Jack and Jill, what would be the use of trying! And what woes, and what deep black sorrows!

But it isn't true. No stages are set for you that you are bound to play on. All trails to travel, and the luck and the gain that lie along side them are yours! The treasure chest of all the world is yours and the others' too. It's the trail you happen to take, the by-path you loiter through, the Inn you stop to rest at, that deals you one Fate or another. And many times you see with your own eyes the thing you choose from the chest—but you do not KNOW it.

Partners in LOVE and LIFE are "pickings" that a girl would like to know about before she makes up her mind. Oh joy for a crystal that would show that going-to-be man in her life—just what he will some day be! Oh gratitude for some second-sight! But Jill can no more see that lover-and-husband-to-be than she can find the end of the rainbow ever, or catch a falling star, or rock back and forth on the new moon!

I can tell you what Jill would have if she could see that faint figure in the crystal CLEARLY. Above all else, A man who is kind. Nine out of ten Jills have no hankering for the cave-man or the beauty. KIND and Brainy! Be he little or big, dark or fair, passable or plain.

NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

Gift for a Baby

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Would you be so kind as to suggest something that I might bring a boy of 18 years of age. He is a victim of infantile paralysis. Thank you.

MRS. ——

It would be an excellent idea if you could find out some of his hobbies, especially something that he might develop during this terrible period of convalescence. Then go to a book store and get some books that he could read on this. Here is a real chance for you to make him happy in providing him with enthusiasm to follow and you could keep him supplied with books and magazines on the subject. Radio, perhaps, its history and the study of the different mechanisms. Or music, if he is fond of this. Or some form of art, such as painting, if his bent is artistic. Or cartooning, if he can draw. Or some of the excellent biographies now obtainable, if he is fond of reading. Most boys are keen about biographies.

Most patients, too, like a bowl of gold fish, for there is something so beautiful about the shining gold of these darting bits of loveliness that seems to rest the eyes and provides them always with something charming and vivid to look at. Have the bowl ample in size, enough to give generous breathing-room.

How about giving the young man a subscription to one or two magazines? He will then have the joy of looking forward to its, or their, arrival every week or month.

Matron of Honor

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister is to be married next month, and would like to have me as her matron of honor. Please tell me if it is proper for a young married woman to be matron of honor. I am married.

M. M.

Yes, this is correct. Nowadays attendants are often married and no distinction is made between married attendants and unmarried ones. It would be charming and correct for you to be your sister's matron of honor.

Sane Bidding

A very commonplace deal may contain points of interest both in bidding and playing, as does the hand given here:

♣6 3
♦A 8 6

♠J 7 6

♣A 9 8 4
♦Q 7 4 2

Z made an opening bid of 1-No Trump, which his partner shifted to 2 Spades. The adversaries had nothing to say, but the dealer did not at all fancy his partner's shift, so Z bid 2-No Trumps. His hand being worthless at No Trumps, Y bid 3-Spades. Of course B dared not double a declaration that could not go game on its fulfilled contract, unless doubled. With the No-Trump hand lying back of him, B would not have ventured to double anything short of a game bid.

A second little lesson in the holdings is that Z let contracting die short of a game score. Had he ventured a game declaration, B would have doubled and defeated the contract. Having shown all his values to the limit, Z passed. Many of us are too prone to think that part scores are almost wasted hands, whereas a part score at contract is a much greater asset than it was at auction.

B had a problem: each of three suits was headed by a K, considered very bad suits from which to make a blind lead. When three suits are headed by some honor or honor combination affording bad opening leads against trump makes, the general rule is to lead a worthless trump, thus signalling the situation to partner. And an opening trump lead might prove to be the worst lead of all. B decided to lead his 2 of clubs. The trick was won by dummy's A and it looked somewhat as if Y could not fulfill his contract. It appeared as if the declarer must lose at least these five tricks: two spades, one heart, one club, one diamond.

Y reached his own hand by means of his A of diamonds and led a small trump. When B won with his ace second hand it appeared certain that either his Ace was alone or else that he held the Q; there seemed to be no other excuse for B's play.

As A's Q of clubs had been played to the first trick, under Z's Ace, it was taken by B as a signal to again lead clubs. A won the trick with his 10, and returned his J, which Y ruffed. Next Y led a small diamond towards dummy's Q and the trick went to B's K. There was led and trumped by Y B's K of clubs. A discarded his last diamond.

The declarer led a trump, picking up B's Q, then he led back Y's Q of diamonds for A to ruff with his top trump if he chose. Upon A's refusal to ruff with his winning spade, dummy's last diamond was led, and upon it Y discarded his lowest heart, thus saving one trick and insuring fulfillment of his contract. The fact that A delayed trumping diamonds made no difference in results. As long as the six missing diamonds were divided 3-3 between contestants they could not defeat the contract, provided Y played carefully.

Heart of a Wife -:- -:-

Continuation of Love's
Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Veritzen Gives Madge Reason for Preference

Philip Veritzen looked at me speculatively as he said that he wondered what I would say to his second reason for preferring Avis Arlen to Mary as a wife for Noel. There was no displeasure in the look, however, and I ventured a light retort.

"There is one sure way of finding out," I said smilingly.

"You ought to sympathize with it," he said. "It is a sentimental reason."

He paused and looked oddly at me. I guessed that he meant me to ask with the usual banality of such repartee, if he considered me sentimental, but I warily avoided that bait and waited demurely for whatever he might say.

"The dearest friend I ever had was Avis Arlen's father," he said soberly. "When he died, a year ago, he left vacant a place in my heart that never can be filled."

There was sincerity in his voice, but there was also the most flamboyant theatricalism. I had the sudden fantastic impulse to tell him that if he became too lonely, I was sure that his dead friend's widow would be only too glad to fill any number of vacant places for him.

"I know that it was my friend's dearest wish to have Noel as his son-in-law," he said.

I choked back the comment that his dead friend was a wise man. The father of any daughter might be glad to give her to a lad as gifted and high-minded as Noel.

"Of course," he went on, "if that were my only reason, I should not think of objecting to any attachment already formed provided it were a suitable one."

Still I kept silent, but he answered my unspoken comment.

"No," he said sharply, "I do not consider Mary a suitable wife for Noel. If you must have it—remember—you asked me to tell you these things—my greatest objection to Mary arises from a certain painful episode in her past—to speak plainly, my son's wife must be like Caesar's—above suspicion."

He had the grace to keep his eyes averted as he spoke the words so cruelly insulting to Mary. If he had looked at me I felt as if he must have shriveled under the hot anger which was in my eyes.

"I suppose you mean," I said, when I could speak, "that episode when Mary was the masked dancer."

"Exactly," he said. "Do not misunderstand me! I have never doubted that Mary's only fault in that affair was indiscretion, but you know as well as I that anyone who did not know her well would not be so charitable. Luckily the secret has been so well kept that if it ever does become public property, it is not likely to hamper her career as a Veritzen star. But my son's wife, the mother of his children, that is another matter. I cannot help but prefer the woman at whom no one can cast a possible stone."

I had a sudden mental vision of Avis Arlen's avid eyes when they rested upon the face of any attractive man near her, and for the clinging, curving arm with which she encircled the neck of any man dancing with her. I was willing to lay a wager that Avis, the sheltered home girl, was far more likely to be hiding some discreditable episode in her past than was Mary.

But of what use to say anything like that to Philip Veritzen. I did not know even that he had spoken anything of his real thoughts to me since he began to talk of Mary.

I knew his tenacity of purpose and his vindictiveness. Both had been evidenced when Mary and Noel had broken the specious bonds which to the great approval of Philip Veritzen had united them in betrothal, Noel to Princess Olina of Transvania and Mary to Prince Georges, now King Georges of Trees.

The "royal" romantic quartet, as Harry Underwood called the four, had rearranged themselves into the more suitable and much happier duos, Mary with Noel and Princess Olina with her childhood playmate, Prince Georges, but this result had put Philip Veritzen into a mental state closely resembling insanity. Fantastically proud of his royal blood, even though it resulted from a bar sinister in his family escutcheon, he had been determined that Noel, as he expressed it, should "come into his own" by marrying Princess Olina.

No one of us would ever forget that scene of danger and distress when Philip Veritzen saw Noel's arms clasping Mary instead of the Princess to whom he was betrothed. His wrath had been cold, terrible, and deadly in its results. He had disinherited Noel, banished Mary from her position as a potential Veritzen star and gone away for months in mingled grief and fury.

Not until the preceding Christmas had he yielded to my plea and done justice to either his son or Mary. I could not help but feel that it was that old sore, not the reasons he had given me, which was responsible for his choice of Avis Arlen over Mary. That was something I could not voice, however, and it was with a distinct feeling of relief that I heard him say:

"Well! you have heard my reasons and I can see very plainly that you disagree with them all. Suppose we change the subject. Will you surely have the revision of this third act for me tomorrow morning?"

How to Help Victims of Burns and Scalds

Prevention is better than cure, is a saying that can be applied to any ailment. It applies particularly to burns. Severe burns are often difficult to cure and in most instances could have been prevented.

Dr. Copeland

Burns may produce permanent deformities which may become lifelong handicaps. We cannot say enough about their dangers.

Careless handling of hot liquids, such as boiling water, hot soup, tea or coffee, is the most frequent cause of burns. The scalding is sometimes severe and serious. This accident is particularly dangerous when it involves children and elderly individuals.

Scalding causes marked reddening of the skin. The pain is intense. If the skin and underlying structures are damaged, scars form.

In a mild burn there is simple reddening of the skin and blisters may form. Scars do not occur in this type of burn.

Treatment of a bad burn should be left to the physician. His care lessens the discomfort and pain, shortens the duration of the healing process and prevents possible complications. Yet everyone should be familiar with the treatment of a burn. Often it is difficult to secure a physician or he may be delayed in arriving.

For the simple burn, keep the air away from the inflamed area. To this end apply a paste of moistened starch, flour or baking powder. Where there is [illegible] reddening of the skin, [illegible] oil, vaseline or [illegible] ointment may be [illegible].

[illegible] severe burns [illegible] is intense, the [illegible] may be placed in a warm tub to which a pound of [illegible] soda has been added. Cold water should never be used.

While waiting for the doctor warm drinks, such as tea or milk, should be given to promote warmth. The body should be wrapped in warm blankets and hot water bottles applied to the feet.

Much of our present knowledge concerning the treatment of burns came from the experiences in the World War. During that conflict picric acid was used for treating bad burns. Recently tannic acid solution has been used with great success. Sometimes it is sprayed on the painful spots.

Severe burns, as I have said and desire to repeat, require the utmost care and expert attention as soon as possible. After the acute symptoms disappear further attention may be demanded. After the scar has formed, skin grafting and plastic surgery are often necessary to prevent serious handicaps.

The many permanent disabilities resulting from burns should serve as a warning against carelessness which might result in permanent damage.

Pittsburgh, February 5, 1932.

NOTICE is hereby given that the following Ordinance was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on February 1, 1932, pursuant to provisions of the several Acts of Assembly authorizing said City, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits.

BILL NO. 166

AN ORDINANCE—Vacating a portion of Valley Rue Street in the Twentieth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, as laid out in the C. Hanson Love's Plan, from the northerly line of the Richard and Isaac Knowlson Plan to the northerly line of Rudolph Street.

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That a portion of Valley Rue street, in the Twentieth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, as laid out in the C. NOTICE is hereby given that the following ordinance was introduced in the Council of the City of Pittsburgh on February 1, 1932, pursuant to the provisions of the several Acts of Assembly authorizing said city, without petition of property owners, to open, widen, straighten, extend, vacate, grade, pave, curb, macadamize and otherwise improve streets and alleys or parts thereof, within its limits.

BILL NO. 165

AN ORDINANCE—Vacating a portion of Greenfield avenue in the Fifteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Second Avenue to Irvine Street.

WHEREAS, The City of Pittsburgh has adopted a plan known as "The City of Pittsburgh Plan for the widening and opening of Irvine street from Greenfield avenue to Mimosa street and the widening of Second avenue from Mimosa street to a point 170.21 feet north of Hazelwood avenue," and has entered into a Contract, Ordinance No. 250, approved July 21, 1930, with the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company in Pennsylvania, its subsidiaries, successors, lessees and affiliated companies, wherein it is provided that Greenfield avenue, from Second avenue to Irvine street be relocated, by which relocation a certain portion of the said street may be vacated except for the right to maintain a 30-inch water line on the line thereof; and

WHEREAS, The said Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company has dedicated to the City of Pittsburgh the property for the said relocation of Greenfield avenue, which dedication was accepted by the City of Pittsburgh by Ordinance No. 286, approved June 4, 1931; now therefore

SECTION 1. Be it ordained and enacted by the City of Pittsburgh, in Council assembled, and it is hereby ordained and enacted by the authority of the same, That a portion of Greenfield avenue in the Fifteenth Ward of the City of Pittsburgh, from Second avenue to Irvine street, be and the same is hereby vacated, the same being more particularly bounded and described as follows, to-wit:

BEGINNING at a point on the southeasterly intersection of Greenfield avenue as now located and Second avenue, 44 feet wide; thence along the easterly line of Second avenue on a course north 29 degrees 34 minutes west for a distance of 60.12 feet to the northeasterly intersection of Greenfield avenue and Second avenue; thence along the northerly line of Greenfield avenue, 60 feet wide, on a course north 58 degrees 50 minutes east for a distance of 41.52 feet to a point on the proposed southerly line of Greenfield avenue as relocated on "The City of Pittsburgh Plan for the widening and opening of Irvine street from Greenfield avenue to Mimosa street and the widening of Second avenue, from Mimosa street to a point 170.21 feet north of Hazelwood avenue"; thence along the said proposed line of Greenfield avenue on a course south 60 degrees 34 minutes east for a distance of 75.60 feet to a point of curve; thence continuing along the said proposed line of Greenfield avenue, by an arc of a circle curving to the right with a radius of 41 feet for a distance of 27.84 feet to the southerly line of Greenfield avenue as now located; thence along the southerly line of Greenfield avenue as now located on a course south 58 degrees 50 minutes west for a distance of 188.67 feet to the southeasterly intersection of Greenfield avenue as now located and Second avenue, at the place of beginning. Containing within said described boundaries 7,628 square feet of land be the same more or less.

All as shown in yellow on blue print attached hereto, made part hereof and marked "The Baltimore and Ohio System Drawing No. 13034, Pgh. 1929."

SECTION 2. This vacation is made subject to the reservation by the City of Pittsburgh of the right to the City Water Line and Tunnel occupying and surrounding the same now constructed in, under and across the portion of the said vacated street and the City of Pittsburgh reserves the right and privilege to maintain, repair, construct or reconstruct the said water line and tunnel or other water lines and tunnels in, under and across the said portion of the vacated street.

SECTION 3. That any Ordinance or part of Ordinance conflicting with the provisions of this Ordinance, be and the same is hereby repealed, so far as the same affects this Ordinance.

EMBERS OF LOVE -:- Story of a Pretty Girl in Whom Burned The Flame of a Great Emotion -:- By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

Lily Lou Advised Not to Let Ken Take Up So Much Of Her Time

Synopsis

Young and beautiful Lily Lou Lansing aspires to an operatic career, but her moderate circumstances necessitates that she go to business and study music evenings. Wealthy Ken Sargent, whom Lily Lou loves, becomes angry when she insists upon practicing instead of seeing him and discontinues calling. Lily Lou grows listless and overworks trying to forget him. She goes to her parents home in Woodlake for a rest. Ken arrives and once again she is happy. She assumes an air of indifference towards Ken, however, and one night, feeling she is no longer interested, he kisses her good-bye and leaves for town. Lily Lou rushes down the path to stop him and stumbles. Ken runs back to assist her and she confesses her love for him. A week later, she returns to the city. Ken is out of town. When he returns Lily Lou waits for a call from him.

Now Go On

CHAPTER IX.

Lily Lou came into the dining room. Irene was already there, using the telephone. She was telephoning to her friend, Lefa.

"I think I'll get pink . . . no, I mean real rose pink. What? Yes, I know, but black is so dead looking for a bride . . . And it doesn't wash well . . . What? I can't hear you, Lefa! But, Lefa, I don't look good in black. Well, I might get one black one—georgette, I guess."

Lily Lou thought. "That's been going on for half an hour. No wonder I haven't had a call . . . Oh, why doesn't she phone at home instead of here? Raymond's relatives—they make me sick!"

Surprisingly, Irene hung up. "Now," Lily Lou thought, "now it'll ring."

She went back to the front room. Fiddled with her music. Ran a few scales . . . Quarter to nine. The time would be all gone. Probably he got discouraged when the line was busy for so long . . . But he shouldn't get discouraged. He should know . . . wait . . .

She stopped her exercises in the middle. Came back to the dining room. Both Raymond and May looked up inquiringly. It wasn't like Lily Lou to stop in the midst of her work.

"I'm too tired!" she said nervously, dropping into the nearest chair.

"Ankle bothering you?" May was all solicitous at once. Even Raymond was sympathetic. "You better get to bed and don't try to do anything tonight."

But she couldn't go to bed! He might want to come over, or to take her out riding. . . .

The telephone rang.

Raymond heaved himself up from his arm chair. "I'll go!"

GOES FOR RIDE

"I think it's Lefa. She was going to call me back." Irene made for the telephone, but Lily Lou got there first.

And it was Ken. He'd been trying to get her for an hour. How did she feel? He'd been worrying about her ankle. He was so tickled to see her this morning he completely forgot it, selfish hog that he was. They should have had a taxi . . . She was sure she was all right? Want to go for a little ride? Five minutes?"

Lily Lou put down the receiver, a different girl. "I'm going out for a little while."

"I thought you were going to bed!"

"No, I didn't say—"

"You said you were too tired to practice."

"I know—that's why I'm going for the ride."

When the horn had honked outside, and Lily Lou had dashed down the steps, for all the world as though there was nothing the matter with her ankle, Raymond said, "I thought that was all over!"

"So did I," May sighed. She wished she had peeked out the window. She would have liked to get a good look at the Sargent boy and his green car, but she wouldn't give Raymond that much satisfaction. She felt hurt, and disappointed. Last night Lily Lou seemed so happy, so ready to settle down to work, after her long rest. Now she was gadding, the very first day.

"Lily Lou is a fool to go around with a fellow like that. He won't marry her." Irene twirled the ring on her finger, complacently.

"You mind your own business!" her brother told her.

HAPPY TOGETHER

They were so happy to be together again. So thrilled to be alone, so full of wondering, gentle dreams. He drove with one hand, put him arm around her. For a moment Lily Lou sat up stiffly . . . She had her opinion of girls who drive around with their heads on a man's shoulder . . . but it was quite dark . . . Besides, this was different . . .

She said, half laughing, all in earnest, "Ken, we're so close together, and so far apart. I mean, you don't come in to my house and I don't go to yours—"

There was an instant's awkward pause. "Want to make a call on the family?"

"No! Oh, dear no—I didn't mean that—"

"We can. Would you like to?"

"No. I just meant it seemed sort of funny. You know—you and your home, and me, and mine, and you honking outside for me, and us riding around—"

"Like a couple of homeless bums," he finished for her. They had driven up to a little point on a hill, overlooking the city. Ken stopped the car, drew her close to him. "Are you unhappy? Sorry you've decided to love me?"

He kissed her and she forgot to answer. "This is love," she thought. "This is the thing they write about in songs. I'll only have to think of it now, to really sing. To sing as things ought to be sung—"

"You're a hundred miles away," he told her reprovingly.

She nestled closer. "No, just dreaming. Thinking about love, and songs."

Suddenly she wanted to talk about her music. Her plans for it. But Ken was talking. Telling her about two new ships the line was buying, describing the engines, the oil capacity, the speed—

She was interested, but not enough to beg him to go on when he suddenly stopped in the midst of it, and kissed her again and again.

"Oh, Ken—I love you so!"

"My girl," he whispered. "My own, darling girl."

Next night it was the same. "Just for half an hour," she told him, but they went out at 8, and got home at 1.

On Friday she made him come in and meet the family, though she didn't really want him to. She wanted to keep him separate from the family. She wanted something she didn't have to share. She'd had to share everything else... Even her music hadn't been her own. She wanted Ken for herself.

HER POOR DAD

Of course, Raymond's dad had to be there. He was so cordial, and he meant so well, and oh, dear, his gold teeth, and his toothpick, and his grammar... his terrible grammar... And he couldn't keep quiet about things. First thing he did was to tell how he used to be a bellhop in a hotel when he was young, and got to meet a lot of rich people that way... Irene, too. She didn't act much like an engaged girl, with her silly little simpering, and her "Oh, Mr. Sargent, do you really think so!".

It spoiled things, in a way, for Lily Lou. Nothing could spoil her feeling for Ken. Her love for him shone like a star, clear and bright, and true, and nothing could touch it, nothing could influence it. It was just her happiness that they could touch.

Funny about happiness and love . . . so far apart, when all your life you'd thought they'd be together . . . And some people did seem to be happy . . . Irene was happy, and in love . . . but was she really in love? Or was she happy because she was having six new stepins and a wedding ring, and new visiting cards and all the rest of it?

Lily Lou wondered. Wondered through many tossing, sleepless nights. How was it going to come out?

NOT ENGAGED

"Why doesn't Kentfield Sargent have you meet his people?" May asked worriedly. "He comes here and makes himself at home, but he doesn't take you there."

"He's not happy at home."

"Are you engaged, Lily Lou?"

"No! Of course not, May!" But she blushed nervously. Her pale cheek turned scarlet.

"Then don't let him take so much of your time," her sister advised.

When Lily Lou didn't answer, May said more gently, "I'm just thinking of your happiness, Lily Lou. Your music is your whole life. If Ken Sargent isn't going to marry you, and I don't think he is—I'm certainly glad he isn't, too—why, you mustn't let a thing like this spoil your whole career. Now is the time that you've got to work. You know that—and we've invested so much."

"I know," Lily Lou said.

May was right.

She went to bed, and cried all night.

ALL IN A DAY By MARK HELLINGER

Attorney for the Defense

FRANK JONES was a young lawyer. These are bad days for young lawyers, and they're not so hot for the older ones either. So, with his feet on his desk in his tiny office, he gazed gloomily from the window and considered the situation. His clients were few and far between. His income was extremely light. When would the break arrive?

It wouldn't be so very bad, he told himself, if he only had something to occupy his time. Some trivial cases that, while they wouldn't bring in too much revenue, would still help him while away the hours and keep people sitting in his office.

At any rate, Frank Jones glanced at his watch. It was 5 o'clock and there wasn't any use hoping for anything further that day. He sighed heavily, placed his hat upon his dome and strolled to the elevator.

As he walked through the lobby of the building he noticed a middle-aged woman standing in a corner. Plenty of middle-aged women can be found standing in any corridor, but this was something different. The poor lady was crying as though her heart would break.

Other people stopped, looked at her curiously and passed on. Not so with young Mr. Jones. He stepped over to her, placed a sympathetic paw upon her shoulder and asked her if he could help her in any way.

"I'm thinking of my husband," she cried. "He's in such terrible trouble. Such terrible, terrible trouble. I cry all the time, no matter where I am. Oh, what am I going to do?"

The lawyer rubbed his chin.

"Madame," he said, "you are only going to embarrass yourself by doing this. People are staring at you as though you were a freak of some sort. If I can be of any service to you, I might tell you that I am a lawyer and that I have an office in this building."

The woman looked at him with large eyes.

"That's very kind of you," she murmured. "I want to talk to somebody and I need an attorney very, very badly. But I must tell you that I am a poor woman. I haven't a penny to pay a lawyer."

Mr. Jones shook his head.

"It doesn't make any difference, madame," he chirped. "We're all in the same boat these days. You come up to my office with me and tell me what this is all about. Then, if I can advise you, I will."

So back to Mr. Jones' office went the attorney and his penniless client. The moment they were seated the woman unfolded her sad story.

"A few weeks ago," she stated, "my husband went to Chicago on some business. We had a few dollars saved up, and he went there to see if he couldn't close some sort of a deal that might make us some money.

"Unfortunately he wasted his time. He couldn't find the right deal and he was back home within a week. He did, however, find a young housemaid out there who was willing to come to New York and work very cheaply. He knew I wasn't very strong, so he brought the girl back with him."

If the lawyer saw anything fishy about the fact that a penniless woman should be hiring a housemaid, he said nothing about it. He merely coughed and told her to continue.

"Well, she wasn't with us more than two days when we found out that the girl had run away from her home. Yesterday detectives came around and took her away to a detention home. I don't know what she told those officers, but they learned that my husband had brought her on from Chicago.

"So they came back and took my poor man away with them, too. He is being held now on charges of violating the Mann Act. He's in jail. I know he's innocent, but I can't help him. I have no money and I can't afford to hire a lawyer to get him out.

"What can I do? Oh, you look like such a kind young man. Tell me what a poor woman like myself can do?"

Mr. Jones drummed the table. Here was an interesting case, but it would take a great deal of his time. True, he wanted something to occupy his mind while waiting for clients, but he expected some recompense for his trouble. Then, too, suppose something big came along while he was working on this case for nothing? What then?

But the young man had too big a heart to refuse this pleading woman. He saw the tears welling to her eyes again, and he nodded abruptly.

"I'll do it," he announced. "I will represent your husband in this action. And since you have no money, I am going to do it free of charge. I am only too glad to help."

The wife did everything but fall to her knees in gratitude. "You're such a good man," she sobbed. "May God bless you. You're such a good man."

Mr. Jones really went to work on that case. He interviewed the husband on several occasions and he made copious notes in his own handwriting. He hadn't reached the stage where he could afford a typist. More, he stayed in his office in the evening for a week, digging up angles on the case and searching for loopholes.

To show you how conscientious that chap was—which proves how young an attorney he was—he even went to older and more experienced lawyers in order to ask their opinions. In short, he put everything he had into the case. And before he was through he had lined up a defense that would have done credit to a Clarence Darrow.

About a week before the trial the wife stepped into his office on an early afternoon. The young man was most cordial to her.

"Sit down, Mrs. B——," he chirped. "Sit right down. I suppose you want to know about your husband's case. Well, let me tell you right here and now we are doing very well indeed. Doesn't that please you?"

The woman shrugged her shoulders.

"I'm sorry you said that," she replied, "because I've got some news for you."

Mr. Jones wrinkled his brow.

"News?" he repeated. "What news?"

"Well," was her startling response, "I've decided that I don't want you to handle my husband's case after all."

The lawyer almost fell off his chair.

"Did I understand you correctly?" he muttered. "Did I hear you say you don't want me as your husband's attorney? After I took the case for nothing and after I have put in so many days and nights of hard labor?"

"That's right," said the woman laconically. "I don't want you."

The young man gulped and asked her why.

"Well, I'll tell you," was the woman's explanation. "I talked the whole thing over with some of my friends and they told me it was a very serious case. Then they said I should have a really good lawyer.

"So I went downtown this morning and cried for one of the best lawyers in town. Now he's taken the case for nothing—and you're fired!"

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS -:- Junior Komic Club

There was an important matter taken up under the head of "New Business" at the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theater Junior Komic Club meetings today. It was the big celebration being planned by each of the 17 chapters, in honor of the two hundredth birthday of George Washington. The programs will be staged in connection with the regular meetings of the chapters on Saturday, February 20.

Boy Scouts and Girl Reserves were asked to report to the managers of the theaters after the meeting, for the purpose of co-operating with Scout masters and leaders in putting on special ceremonials. Scout bands will furnish the music at many chapters, and where Scout bands are not available, the regular chapter orchestras are arranging special programs of martial music in keeping with the occasion.

Color will be added to the programs by the appearance of dancers from representative schools in the city, who will do clever military routines in costume.

Grand Jesters and Boards of Governors of each chapter are co-operating with the managers of the theaters in arranging programs that will do honor to the memory of the Father of Our Country and at the same time be interesting and entertaining to the thousands of children who will atend.

It was also announced at the meetings today that Warner Theaters, through the courtesy of L. E. Waterman, of New York, would distribute nearly a thousand Waterman pencils at the meetings next Saturday. That means that about 50 children in each chapter will receive one of these handsome gifts.

Watch for the life-size ready to wear mask of Mickey Mouse in tomorrow's Sun-Telegraph. This is the third of a series of these comic masks. Cut out the mask, mount it on light cardboard, heavy paper or cloth, color it—if you wish—then tie it on your face and have a lot of fun.

Don't forget to have your Sunday Sun-Telegraph Komic Section ready at 12:30 tomorrow. Tune in on WCAE and read it with Uncle Bob and Betty.

The following members of the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club will celebrate their birthdays tomorrow. The Club wishes them Many Happy Returns of the Day.

Pauline: A Portrait

Downcast her gaze and few her words,
Has life been kind to her, or cold;
Of flowers or flame the memories
She leaves untold?

We would be friends to her, and yet
We have no measure of her need;
We dare not offer her a gift
Of kindly deed.

How can we fathom her desires;
How guess what good or ill befell?
Her young and lovely face is veiled,
Inscrutable.

She dwells among us day by day,
Yet strangely, never grows less strange.
How can we her aloofness end;
How work a change?

This beautiful enigma moves
About her duties commonplace;
But, ah, the romance which we weave
Round her still face!

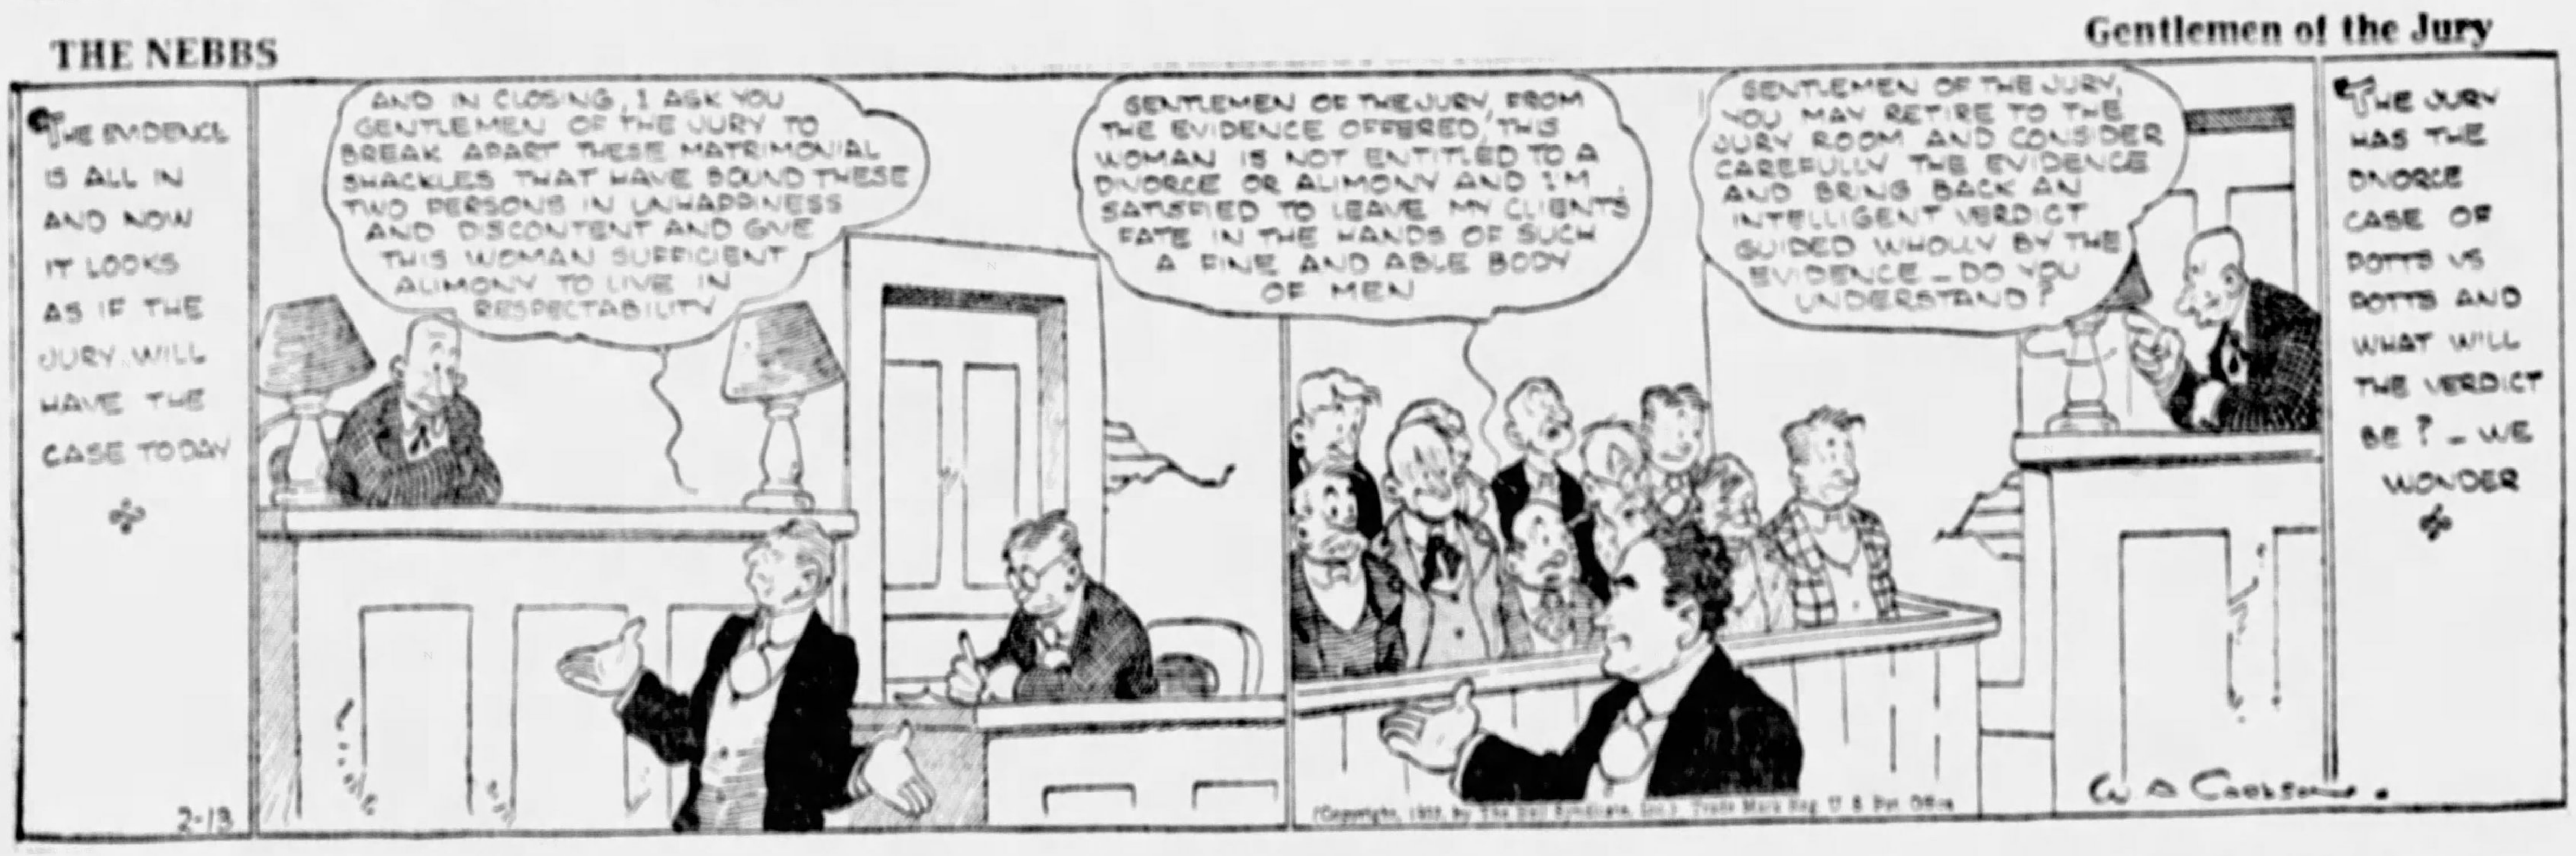
Gentlemen of the Jury



THE EVIDENCE IS ALL IN AND NOW IT LOOKS AS IF THE JURY WILL HAVE THE CASE TODAY
AND IN CLOSING, I ASK YOU GENTLEMEN OF THE JURY TO BREAK APART THESE MATRIMONIAL SHACKLES THAT HAVE BOUND THESE TWO PERSONS IN UNHAPPINESS AND DISCONTENT AND GIVE THIS WOMAN SUFFICIENT ALIMONY TO LIVE IN RESPECTABILITY
GENTLEMEN OF THE JURY, FROM THE EVIDENCE OFFERED, THIS WOMAN IS NOT ENTITLED TO A DIVORCE OR ALIMONY AND I'M SATISFIED TO LEAVE MY CLIENT'S FATE IN THE HANDS OF SUCH A FINE AND ABLE BODY OF MEN
GENTLEMEN OF THE JURY, YOU MAY RETIRE TO THE JURY ROOM AND CONSIDER CAREFULLY THE EVIDENCE AND BRING BACK AN INTELLIGENT VERDICT GUIDED WHOLLY BY THE EVIDENCE—DO YOU UNDERSTAND?
THE JURY HAS THE DIVORCE CASE OF POTTS VS POTTS AND WHAT WILL THE VERDICT BE?—WE WONDER

CAGE BEAST

Wild giant try to tame beast
They are great elephant.
Giant went to cover elephant
But couldn't it well
Because it's so cruelty
But giant give to heartfelt love
Elephant glad to go in cage
This way it's to elephant tame.

Let It Be Voluntary

The Public Utilities Will Win Favor by Reducing Rates—Brief Comment on Local News.

Councilman Robert Garland has expressed the hope of many persons in suggesting that the public utilities voluntarily reduce their electric light and gas rates and so save the public and themselves the cost of expensive litigation. The maintenance of unduly high rates in the face of reduction in the price of other necessities of life makes for ill-will.

Ill-will is a liability and good-will an asset to every company, but particularly to public utilities, since they receive from the public privileges such as franchises and tax exemptions, which might be revoked if the utilities should incur the hostility of the voters. It probably would be well worth while for the local utilities to accept a cut in their earnings through lower rates and thereby win popular favor.

William D. Mansfield, Republican county chairman, is entitled to a commendatory pat on the back for his refusal to accept the state slate put out by William S. Vare and the Philadelphia machine and submitted to Mansfield by State Chairman Edward Martin. The ticket omits the name of Justice Joseph Stadtfeld, substituting as a candidate for the Superior Court former Lieut. Gov. Arthur James.

*The repudiation of Justice Stadtfeld by the Phila*delphia machine should be resented not only by Stadtfeld's fellow citizens at this end of the state but by independent and fair-minded Pennsylvanians generally. He is entitled to a full term on the Superior Court bench by reason of his fitness for the position. That he is not a politician is only the more reason why he should be retained.

It is not pleasant to learn of the dismissal of 50 county employes, but since their services were unnecessary the new county administration cannot be blamed for letting them go, especially since it means a saving to the taxpayers, according to Commissioner C. C. McGovern, of $140,000 a year. Efficiency as well as economy demands the pruning of all "dead timber."

An admirable spirit of unselfishness is being shown by the Pittsburgh Railways Company employes who favor a five-day work week as a plan for preventing the discharge of a number of their fellow-employes. It increases respect for the innate nobility of mankind to learn of examples of helpfulness such as this. These troublous times have furnished many instances of self-sacrifice.

The question of salary reductions, a live subject now in almost every branch of human activity in which salaries are paid, was up for consideration at the meeting of the Independent School District Superintendents' Association of Allegheny County. It is a pleasure to note that only two of the 16 school districts represented feel that a cut in the teachers' pay is necessary.

The taxpayers naturally wish the tax burden to be reduced to the lowest possible point consistent with satisfactory public service. But we believe the last branch of the public service in which they would favor a niggardly policy would be the public school system. They desire good teaching for their children, and are willing to pay good teachers good salaries.

The annual meeting of the Welfare Fund Council at the William Penn Hotel Monday is expected to produce gloomy reports of unemployment and destitution and of lack of means for coping with the situation. More and more the desirability of a great program of public works to provide work for many thousands of jobless men is emphasized by the difficulties faced by local relief committees.

There is ground for hope that something worth while will be accomplished by the national movement started by the American Legion to improve economic conditions. Western Pennsylvania Legion posts will, of course, take a prominent part in the campaign, which aims to obtain employment for 1,000,000 men in 30 days. The goal is high, but a famous teacher has told us to hitch our wagon to a star.

Another organization of former soldiers, the United Spanish War Veterans, is also in the news with the announcement that it will hold exercises in North Side Carnegie Hall tomorrow night in commemoration of the blowing up of the Maine in Havana February 15, 1898. Such exercises help to keep strong the spirit of patriotism.

In connection with the observance of Lincoln's Birthday his visit to Pittsburgh in February, 1861, was recalled, and several Pittsburghers still living, who saw the President and heard him speak, presented their recollections. It makes Lincoln a more vivid figure and increases our interest in him to learn of his associations with Pittsburgh.

Washington, whose birthday we celebrate a week from Monday, and in honor of whose bicentennial commemorative exercises will be held every now and then throughout the year, was more intimately identified with the history of Pittsburgh than Lincoln. Not only the school children but also the grownups of Western Pennsylvania should make themselves familiar, as a patriotic duty, with the details of Washington's visits to this region.

School and college students have an incentive for studying Washington's career in the essay contest, based on his Farewell Address, which will be conducted in Pittsburgh under the auspices of the Sun-Telegraph. William Randolph Hearst will present 500 awards to the winners in this nationwide competition. The Farewell Address will be printed tomorrow in the American Weekly section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph.

The American Weekly tomorrow will be found a treasury of valuable literary material. Entertainment and instruction are combined in a variety of articles. The nerve-wracking life of Dr. MacRobert, the nerve specialist, is the subject of one of them. "What Is Your Back Good For?" is the subject of another stimulating article. The illustrations are as notable as the text.

Scores of interesting pictures will be presented in the Gravure Section of the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. Among them will be the prize winning paintings in the annual exhibition of the Associated Artists of Pittsburgh. A page of pictures of babies and photographs of local scenes and persons, taken many years ago, are other worth while features.

Part and parcel of a systematic attempt to modify and even direct American fiscal policies is the foreign lecturer propagandist. In return for our good American lecture-hall dollars, these propagandists publicly admonish us that we must cancel the huge debts foreign governments justly owe us, that we must join the League of Nations, that we must enter the League Court, that we must depart from our traditional foreign policy and concern ourselves with foreign politics.

And our pacifists and our internationally minded encourage this propaganda!

There is a limit to this sort of thing and the time has come to call a halt.

Ossified Hearts

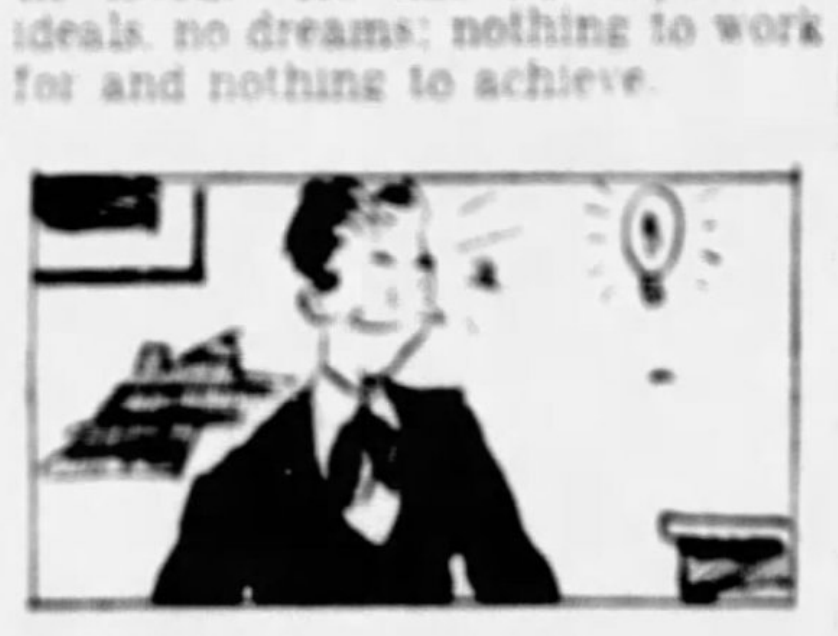
The trouble with modern lovers is that they haven't enough heartaches.

* * *

It seems a pity, but a man's heart must have been broken—or at least sprained, chipped or dislocated—by one woman before he is fit to marry ANY woman.

* * *

The most cynical failure in the world is the man who has never failed to win a woman that he wanted—and never lost one that he loved. He has no hopes, no ideals, no dreams; nothing to work for and nothing to achieve.



When a man's heart is completely satisfied, it goes into a coma and gradually ossifies; but when it is broken or bruised, it spills magic emotions which water his whole nature and make it blossom.

* * *

A man must have had at least one unhappy love-affair, one unrequited love, before he is actually human. Unrequited love is sometimes the most beneficent thing in a young man's life.

* * *

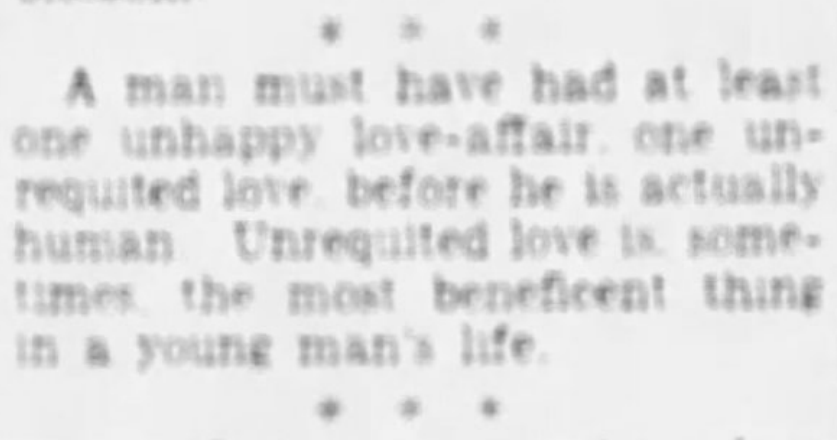
The first woman who plays with a man's heart and makes him suffer is an angel-in-vamp's-clothing, who shatters the hard shell of his vanity, unlocks his soul, deadens his conceit and makes him fit to be a devoted husband—to some other woman.

* * *

A man's greatest inspiration in life is always the thing he wants—and HASN'T got or CAN'T get!

* * *

It is hope of a woman's love, not gratitude for it, that puts a man on his mettle and taps the well-springs of his ambition or genius. It is the girl he didn't marry, the kiss he didn't get, that gilds his dreams; it is the woman he failed to win, who inspires him to effort and achievement.



The bird who sings its sweetest in the dark has nothing on the poet, the painter or the musician, who always does his greatest and most inspired work under the cloud of a hopeless passion.

* * *

A poet with a devoted wife and three good meals a day will soon descend to writing canned goods advertisements and blurbs for laundry soap.

* * *

The world is full of versifiers and wisecrackers, today; but there are few good poets, and almost no great ones. This is partly because life and love have been made so EASY and pleasant for a man, that his emotions get no exercise.

* * *

Sometimes the kindest thing a woman can do to a bored and cynical bachelor is to cause him a few heartaches. Because a man's heart, like his teeth, has to be made to "ache" before he is conscious of its existence.

* * *

A man who has never had an unhappy love affair is merely a body of protoplasm entirely surrounded by egotism and self-complacency. To marry a woman-hater is taking a big chance—but the girl who marries an untamed woman-charmer hasn't even a LITTLE chance!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Nobody could have so much trouble buying a hat as I. First. My head is the shape of an egg, a Zip-the-Whatisit effect. Second. The hat fitting the back of my head leaves enough space on either side out front to tuck in a kitten. Third. I can't take it!

Every time I go into a store to try on hats, one clerk after another purrs a "Pardon me" and rushes to the rear to unloose a setting of whoops. I've had a whole store rolling on the floor at the same time. And the manager of one place is just leaving the hospital Tuesday.

Always a clerk approaches me as though I might be only another customer. He doesn't know what he's in for. "Something in an every-day hat," I explain. Where I came from we go in for every-day and Sunday things. I've never gotten over it.

He brings out that mechanical hoodus to slip over my head which clicks off in perforated pin points the miniature shape of my dome. Invariably, he looks at the result casually and gives a frightened start. Then he suggests another impression as though something had slipped.

"It's all right," I comfort him. "It always comes out like that." And I try to make out I don't feel silly although I'm conscious that what is now a sedate hat shop will soon become a three ring circus. Strange faces are peering around the corners. Strike up the band!

I've never figured out what there is about me that makes a clerk try to sell me a hat with a little yodel feather sprouting from the side. It may be the droop of my ears. But without fail it's his first offering. No use trying to stop him.

Yesterday, as usual, he brought the feathered chapeau and adjusted it. Another customer passing, glanced at me and called: "Pretty good. I got a friend in Jersey who can do those Ed Wynn imitations, too." That gives you an idea, or are you listening?

* * *

The next hat suggested a peanut shell fluted around the edges. Toto, the clown, wore the original over one ear, although he had a chin strap. You know, pull it up in the air and let it snap back. I waved it away and he brought a derby. Well, sir, I'm more fun in a derby. The minute I put one on people look for the ventriloquist. They expect him to sit me on his knee and inquire: "Well, how are you today, Felix?"

* * *

But I'm no shakes as a derby boy. Kin Hubbard—rest his soul—spoiled them for me, observing: "Tilford Motts' new derby is lined like a coffin." So they brought a wide-brimmed sombrero. I fancied it. With a calico pony, you'd thought of Gary Cooper riding hell-for-leather against a background of purple sage. I asked my wife's opinion. "Tom Mix gave you one and there's Amon Carter's," she replied. "I like it," I riposted. (And by the way how are you getting on in your riposting these days?) "Well, why don't you take it?" she inquired in a voice that really said "I dare you to, you bum."

* * *

By this time all the clerks left whatever they were doing and surrounded us, splitting into factions—the "McIntyre crowd" and the "Mrs. McIntyre crowd." I was glad one fellow with creeper stuff that grows on graves and Chief Justice Hughes' face was on her side. I decided to be calm. There must be no headlines: "Columnist Crushed in Hat Shop Rioting." Tact was the thing. Win by diplomacy. So I whispered to a clerk and adjusted the cow puncher hat again. "You are not by chance Clive Brook?" beamed the clerk, carrying out orders beautifully. I glanced hopefully at my wife. She thinks Brook is quite a hattist. It was N. G.

Anyway, I continued to try on hats but always sneaked back to the big son-of-a-gun. In final effort, I put it on again at a rakish angle and stepping before her whined like an old organ with the quiver stop out: "I'd certainly like this one. It's a hat for every occasion." She replied: "Outside of a hog calling contest—what occasion?"

So I came away without a new bonnet. I may give up hats altogether. After all it's hard to tell where my neck leaves off and head starts in. There's a legend in Gallipolis that Grandma once used a fancy ointment to remove a wart on my scalp and it removed the head.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Here's a letter. You've read dozens like it lately. Perhaps you'll agree with it. Perhaps you, too, think that it would be a great thing for women in general if married women were forbidden to work.

BUT WOULD IT?

OR WOULD IT CHEAPEN ALL FEMININE LABOR . . . BLOCK ALL FEMININE AMBITION . . . KEEP WOMAN WORKERS IN THE OFFICE BOY CLASS?

Read this letter. Think it over.

"Dear Miss Robinson:

"I am taking this means of asking you what you think of THE MARRIED WOMEN IN OUR GREAT CITIES, WHO ARE WORKING WHILE THEIR HUSBANDS HAVE GOOD JOBS.

"I am a graduate of the High School of Commerce . . . just one of many, of the class of 1930. I have looked for work in offices and department stores, as bookkeeper, stenographer, or clerk, and, nine times out of ten, my interviews will be with some married woman, and when I ask for work, her answer will be 'nothing today.' In our City Hall there are twice the number of married to single women, perhaps with husbands working in the same office.

"You speak to these women, and say the depression is terrible and their answer will be 'We don't feel it.' OF COURSE THEY DON'T FEEL IT. WHY SHOULD THEY? THEY HAVE IT SOFT WHILE THE SINGLE GIRLS STARVE.

"Now I ask you! DON'T YOU THINK THAT WHEN A WOMAN GETS MARRIED SHE SHOULD STEP DOWN AND LET THE YOUNG GIRLS HAVE A CHANCE? IF THEY'RE SO FOND OF WORKING WHY NOT HAVE THEIR HUSBANDS QUIT THEIR JOBS SO SOME OF THE REST OF US COULD EAT?

HAZEL."

Sounds like a hard break, doesn't it? And you'll be sympathizing with Hazel, just as I am. But suppose she had her way . . . suppose all women had to quit work when they married . . . WOULDN'T EVERY WOMAN, SINGLE OR MARRIED, SUFFER?

Take Hazel herself. She has ambition. She is looking for something more than a small, immediate job with beginner's pay. She doesn't intend to stay a file clerk or stenog. She has prepared herself for serious work . . . for a position with a future. Some day she hopes, just as a man hopes, to be a Big Shot in some large company.

That's fine. That's the way a girl should feel about her work. The whole human race will profit because working girls feel that way.

BUT SUPPOSE A GIRL HAD TO STOP WORKING IF SHE FELL IN LOVE AND MARRIED?

What would happen, then, to her ambition? How would that affect her standing in the business world?

HOW WOULD IT AFFECT A MAN'S STANDING?

He wouldn't have any standing, under those conditions. He'd remain a transient worker—in the office boy class. It takes time and money to train workers, and Big Business doesn't groom people for important positions if it knows that they will step out just when they are getting good.

That's what would happen to the man worker if he retired when he married. And that is what would happen to woman workers—to all woman workers—if retirement on marriage were compulsory.

At present some of our most serious and valuable work is performed by women. BUT NO WOMAN WOULD HAVE A CHANCE TO DO SERIOUS OR VALUABLE WORK IF A LAW WERE PASSED AGAINST THE MARRIED WOMAN WORKER. For no employer could tell when a woman might marry. Therefore no employer could bank on a woman worker's permanency—or would bother to train her for a larger program . . . or trust her with heavy responsibility.

IF THE MARRIED WOMAN IS NOT PERMITTED TO WORK, NO WOMAN WORKER WILL BE TAKEN SERIOUSLY.

Is THAT a happy solution for the working woman's problem?

(Copyright, 1932, King Features Synd., Inc.)

Isn't It So?

To make things go, take them as they come.

Office boys learn much about men; that's what makes so many of them turn out well.

Life is nothing but a big parade down the highway of time with the weaklings falling out of line as the parade progresses.

Some are born fools, some achieve foolishness, and others have fools thrust upon them.

A bird in the hand costs twice as much as it used to—especially if you kill it out of season.

THE RIGHT TO WORK

> "The heart yearnings and unquenchable desires of the workers are reflected in the appeal of the masses of the people for the exercise of the right to work. They prefer work and the enjoyment of opportunities to earn a living to relief supplied from any source or sources whatsoever. Employment and the development of opportunities to secure work are of more importance to them than the appropriation of relief."
>
> (The above is quoted from the appeal made by the American Federation of Labor to the President and Congress.)

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

Frank A. Vanderlip, former president of the National City Bank, once wisely defined prosperity as the full employment of labor at high real wages.

Political tampering with the economic cycle is likely to remain futile, as long as it fails to place emphasis on the welfare of the working population.

As long as 7,000,000 human beings are denied the right to work, business profits cannot be satisfactory and financial risks cannot be considered safe.

Until the unemployed are redeemed from idleness, insufficient buying power will continue to disorganize trade and industry.

The American Federation of Labor, in its temperate appeal to President Hoover and Congress, for economic and legislative relief, gets to the very core of the problem.

In its nine point program, the mouthpiece of labor stressed jobs, not doles.

It declared that organized labor, like 46 eminent American economists, are "FOR THE DEVELOPMENT OF A PUBLIC WORKS PROGRAM WHICH WILL SERVE TO PREVENT A RECURRENCE OF UNEMPLOYMENT, WIDESPREAD AND DISTRESSING AS IT NOW EXISTS."

In preaching the American gospel of work, instead of handouts, the statement vigorously declared:

"The heart yearnings and unquenchable desires of the workers are reflected in the appeal of the masses of the people for the exercise of the right to work. They prefer work and the enjoyment of opportunities to earn a living to relief supplied from any source or sources whatsoever. Employment and the development of opportunities to secure work are of more importance to them than the appropriation of relief."

In this restrained manner, organized labor rebukes the policy behind the Gifford committee.

It is a plain statement of dissatisfaction with the administration policy of being satisfied with co-ordinating local relief agencies.

It is a challenge to the Democratic House to reveal its initiative and its capacity to govern wisely, in spite of coolness at the White House to the widely recommended economic plan of accelerating public works as a means of re-employing labor and expanding credit.

The gallantry with which labor takes its medicine should be an inspiration to lawmakers to initiate economically sound job-creating activities.

It should make political leaders ashamed to content themselves with mere reconstruction schemes to finance the financiers.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW?

By S. H. Connolly

What is the correct form for:

1. I am through with my dinner.
2. You are stronger than him.
3. He is the brightest of the two brothers.
4. Each worker must not forget their particular job.
5. The dog is laying under the table.

Do you know:

6. What nom de plume was used by Charles Lamb?
7. What is Frankenstein synonymous with now?
8. What is meant by a game-leg?

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

When you are making an extended visit in any home try to absent yourself from the family at least once a day.

In every home there are matters to be discussed that would not be talked over and discussed before an outsider.

Some guests seem to think that to be properly appreciative for their entertainment they should remain with the hostess every hour in the day.

Even when the hostess and the guest are alone together in the house the hostess should be allowed the privilege of some time alone to rest or to plan.

The one who is the entertainer needs more time alone than the one who is visiting, in order to get rest and quiet.

Not having the responsibility or the extra work that a guest makes, very often a guest acts restless and seems to crave excitement.

This is very unpleasant for those who entertain, because it is not always possible to keep something moving all the time.

Following the hostess around from room to room is maddening to some.

Your friend likes you or you would not be invited to visit in her home.

You can easily make yourself a burden or a blessing.

Do as you would be done by—follow the Golden Rule—is a good thing for a guest to remember.

Wise Words

No man is worth his salt who is not ready at all times to risk his body, to risk his well-being, to risk his life, in a great cause.—Roosevelt.

Of all the nations in the world, at present, the English are the stupidest in speech, the wisest in action.—Carlyle.

But the tender day of grace of a day that is dead
Will never come back to me.
—Tennyson.

All that we see or seem
Is but a dream within a dream.
—E. T. Palgrave.

Never slang a cabman—he can beat you.—H. J. Byron.
